CONVENIENCE YOU DON'T HAVE TO PAY FOR!

Rigging Your Own Great Lakes Fishing Boat

Each and every year more and more folks are taking their own boats to the shores of Lake Michigan and Superior in pursuit of giant Trout and Salmon.

While there is some special equipment you're going to need, your primary consideration should first be given to whether or not your boat is going to be safe.

For the most part, you're going to need an absolute minimum of 16 feet in length. Actually, 18 feet or more is recommended. Pay close attention to the depth and width of your boat, and most importantly of all, the design of the stern. It is common, particularly in older boats, to find low stern designs which can allow a following sea to virtually roll into the boat. The stern must either be high, or designed in such a way, that it protects both the interior of the boat as well as the outboard motor from drowning out from incoming water.

Horsepower is another important consideration. You're going to be fishing some deep water and that often means traveling as far as ten miles out onto the lake. Since bad weather can develop very rapidly, a good rule of thumb is that you should be able to reach port from a distance of ten miles in fifteen minutes or less.

A marine band radio is absolutely essential for safe fishing on the lakes. Along with constant weather broadcasts, you will be able to contact the United States Coast Guard or another boat should an emergency arise. Fishermen on the big lake communicate constantly as to how the action is in a particular spot, and for the most part, are more than willing to share

Rod and Reels

Rods should be a minimum of seven feet in length. The longer rod is more forgiving when it comes to absorbing the shock of a strike.

Your choice of reels should hold a minimum of 200 yards of 15 pound test mono.

While spinning reels can be used, for the most part, they don't have a drag system capable of holding up to the run of a big chinook. In other words, when a big fish runs fifty to a hundred yards and you're using a conventional spinning reel, the odds are that the drag is just going to burn up.

A star drag casting reel is the first choice when it comes to Salmon.

When fishing the Great Lakes, the odds are you're going to be fishing far deeper water than you might on inland waters.

The downrigger is undoubtedly the most useful tool you can install on your boat to catch Salmon. This device gives you positive depth control. A down rigger is a reel device which holds a long cable to which is attached an 8-12 pound lead ball. Attaching a release device to the ball, the actual fishing line is clipped to the ball and lowered to a pre-determined depth. When a fish strikes the lure, the line is released from the downrigger ball, the rod tip snaps up, taking up the slack line and the fish is on. You can choose from a variety of downriggers in both manual and electric models. Careful consideration should be given to their installation so that they can be conveniently operated.

Last, but not least, is a depth sounder. Because of the extreme depths, a locator with sufficient power to transmit a signal from as much as 200 feet of water is a must.

Timely Tip

To keep fish from spoiling while out fishing on a hot summer day, carry along a burlap sack. When a fish is caught, wet the sack and put the fish inside. The wet burlap keeps the fish from spoiling and insures better tasting fish.

Oahe is Big Walleye Country

Most non-residents think about South Dakota as a farming state with a lot of pheasants. But water?

That assumption might have been true until the U.S. government decided to dam up the mighty Missouri. In 1962 the Oahe Dam was dedicated and the Walleye fisherman was in for a real thrill.

While a number of different species of fish have been planted in Oahe, the Walleye just showed up.

To the first time visitor, Lake Oahe looks more like an ocean than a fresh water lake. Oahe spreads out over an unbelievable 375,000 acres and has more shoreline than the sea coast of California.

Not many years ago Oahe started producing Walleye pike. Not the everyday run-of-the-mill Walleyes however, these fish were, in a word, big. Four and five pound Walleyes are common from Oahe and the state record 15 pound 4 ounce Walleye came from the big lake.

For whatever reason, the bigger Walleyes all seem to come from the southern portion of the lake. With ideal habitat and food sources, no one is betting against the chance that Oahe might just become the best Walleye fishing spot in the country.

When To Fish Oahe

By and large, your best fishing is mid June through July. Remember, there is no closed season on Walleyes here so don't hesitate to give the tailwaters of the big reservoir a try throughout the year.

Where and How?

Best bets on the reservoir are in 6-20 foot depths in the spring and early summer. Move to deeper water as the summer progresses. Tailwater fishing is usually in 8-25 foot depths and shallower in the late summer. Sand bars and sunken islands seem to be the best producers during the summer months, while the creeks and bays are real hotspots in early spring. By late June you should stick to the rocky points and gravel bars in the big lake.

Most of the fishing in the big lake is done trolling. Fish here like slow moving bait, the slower the better. When fishing Oahe, a trolling motor and locator are really a must. Remember that 90% of Oahe's fish are in just 10% of the water.

Live bait is without a doubt the champ when it comes to action. The standard lindy rig or bait walker works very well.

How good is the fishing at Oahe? No one knows for sure, but chances are, it will continue to get even better.

Facilities Start to Catch Up on the Missouri

While the quality of sport fishing has grown immensely on South Dakota's Oahe Reservoir in the past two decades, it has been in just recent years that tourist facilities have begun to catch up with the demand.

What Kind of Boat Do You Need to Fish Oahe?

While Oahe is referred to as a lake, don't be fooled. 375,000 acres of water is, in a word, big — and safety should be foremost in your mind should you decide to take your own boat.

To be on the safe side, a deep V 16 foot or better is your best choice. South Dakota has lots of wind and getting off the lake in a hurry can be a prime consideration. Motors most suitable for use are 25 HP and up.

Regulations also require an approved personal flotation device for each person in the boat. In addition, all boats 16 feet and over must have on board the following equipment:

A sounding device (whistle or horn) capable of a two second blast audible for at least one mile.

Proper lights when on the water between sunset and sunrise.

Since ninety per cent of your fishing will be trolling, an electronic motor is a real asset. You will find the majority of Walleyes under water bars and points so the use of an electronic locator is a necessity to assure you of success.

Your Personal Flotation Device is for Your Safe Survival!

THERE ARE 5 TYPES OF LIFE SAVING DEVICES!

TYPE I

A type I PFD (Personal Flotation Device) has the greatest required buoyancy and is designed to turn most unconscious persons in the water from a face down position to a vertical and slightly backward position and to maintain the person in the vertical and slightly backward position and, therefore, greatly increase his or her chances of survival. The Type I PFD is suitable for all waters, especially for cruising on waters where there is a probability of delayed rescue, such as large bodies of water where it is not likely that a significant number of boats will be in close proximity. This type PFD is the most effective of all the types in rough water. The TYPE I PFD is easiest to don in any emergency because it is reversible and available in only two sizes — Adult (90 lbs. or more) and child (less than 90 lbs.) which are universal sizes (designed to fit all persons in the appropriate category)

TYPE II

A Type II PFD is designed to turn the wearer to a vertical and slightly backward position in the water. The turning action is not as pronounced as with a Type I and the device will not turn as many persons under the same conditions as the Type I. The Type II PFD is usually more comfortable than the Type I. This type PFD is normally sized for ease of emergency donning and is available in the following sizes: Adult (more than 90 lb.) — Medium Child (50 to 90 lb.) and two categories of Small Child (less than 50 lb. or less than 30 lb.). Additionally, some models are sized by chest sizes. You may prefer to use the Type II where there is a probability of quick rescue such as areas where it is common for other persons to be boating, fishing, swimming and other water activities

TYPE III

The Type III PFD is designed so that the wearer can place himself or herself in a vertical and slightly backward position, and the device will maintain the wearer in that position and have no tendency to turn the wearer face down. A Type III can be the most comfortable, comes in a variety of styles which should be matched to the individual use, and is usually the best choice for water sports, such as skiing, hunting, fishing, canoeing, and kayaking.

This type PFD normally comes in many chest sizes and weight ranges, however, some universal sizes are available. You may also prefer to use the Type III where there is a probability of quick rescue such as areas where it is common for other persons to be engaged in boating, fishing, and other water activities

TYPE IV

A Type IV PFD is designed to be grasped and held by the user until rescued as well as to be thrown to a person who has fallen overboard. While the Type IV is acceptable in place of a wearable device in certain instances, this type is suitable only where there is a probability of quick rescue such as areas where it is common for other persons to be engaged in boating, fishing and other water activities. It is not recommended for non-swimmers or children.

TYPE V

Type V PFD is a PFD approved for restricted uses. No Type V PFD is currently approved for use on recreational boats.

YOUR PERSONAL FLOTATION DEVICE

You are required by Federal Regulations to have at least one Coast Guard approved Personal Flotation Device (PFD) for each person in your recreational boat unless all your PFDs are in serviceable condition, are readily accessible, are legibly marked with the Coast Guard approval number and are of an appropriate size (within the weight range and chest sizes marked on the PFD) for each person onboard.

Leave Hook to Save Fish

You can do your part to have under-sized, deeply hooked game fish or a prize catch. How? For starters, if you catch an undersized fish, don't remove the hook. Handle the fish as lightly as possible and cut the line. Leave the fish in the water while completing this action. Believe it or not, the body fluids of the fish will soon digest the hook. The small Bass, Walleye or Northern you release today can survive to become the trophy fish you catch tomorrow.

Surface Baits Produce Fish and Thrills

There is no artificial lure that produces more excitement than a surface bait. Here are some tricks when it comes to learning the technique of fishing with them.

While most folks think of fishing primarily for large or smallmouth Bass, the fact is that surface baits can also be dynamite for Northern Pike as well.

Surface baits are most effective in shallow water and on reasonably calm days.

Find a likely spot and make sure you get a good long cast. Once your bait hits the water, wait until the circle or splash has dissipated. Then retrieve the bait just a foot or two and wait again. Remember, you're trying to make the bait look like wounded prey and more times than not, you'll get your strike when the bait is actually sitting still.

For a real thrill, try casting your favorite shoreline for largemouth in the dark. A jitterbug type surface lure or, for that matter, any walking type of bait retrieved slowly is a sure fire producer. But hang on, you're going to hear that fish hit long before you feel him. It takes awhile to figure out how to set the hook.

When fishing for Northerns with surface lures, you'll be surprised at how many times a Northern will take after a surface lure and actually miss the bait. Keep an eye on the bait and not on the fish. When you can't see the bait, odds are the fish has taken it. It is not uncommon for a big Northern to strike a lure four or five times before he actually takes the hook.

How to Pick The Canadian Fly-in Trip of a Lifetime

Sure it's fun to fish around home, but very few folks that ever picked up a rod and reel haven't dreamed about having the chance to try their hand fishing in the Canadian wilderness.

Along with spending a sizeable amount of money and investing those precious vacation days, there are some other considerations to think about to make sure your trip is all you wanted it to be.

Here are some tips to help you pick the perfect Canadian fishing trip.

Fly-in, Yes or No

While there are literally thousands of Canadian Lakes accessible by road, there is little or no argument that those lakes reached only by float plane offer the finest fishing. Most of these lakes will have as few as forty or fifty fishermen per year and the resource is as close to unspoiled as you will ever find. It's a fact that the fly-in lakes generally offer the best fishing.

American Plan or Outpost Camp

There are basically two different kinds of Canadian fishing camps. American plan camps which offer lodging, guides, boats, motors, plus all the other extras and outpost camps.

The outpost camp simply provides you with a place to stay along with boats and motors. From the time you're dropped off, you're on your own.

If you've got some extra money burning a hole in your pocket, the American plan is the way to go. But if you're interested in saving a few dollars and still catch fish, the outpost is the number one choice.

A quick glance through any magazine offers literally hundreds of outpost camp trips — some seeming almost too good to be true. COMPARE WHAT YOU GET FOR WHAT YOU SPEND BEFORE DECIDING.

The biggest part of any fly out outpost trip is how far you will be traveling by air. Float planes are expensive and it's easy to figure out it costs a camp operator more to fly his guests sixty or seventy miles than it will just fifteen or twenty. If the map does not offer a package plan, be sure and check out how much your air fare is going to be. If the air fare is included, be ready to pay a little more if you're traveling a greater distance. Keep in mind that camp operators had a reason for selecting the lakes on which they placed their camps. Here again it seems to hold true, the farther you go, the better the fishing.

Accomodations

Accommodations can vary in an outpost camp from a tent and bed roll to truly comfortable log cabins complete with almost all the comforts of home.

A top of the line outpost camp will come equipped with gas range, refrigerator, built-in propane lighting, and in some cases, even a freezer for making ice and keeping your catch. If you don't mind cooking with a Coleman stove and are willing to settle for a styrofoam cooler, there is no question you can save a few dollars.

Most first rate outpost camps will also provide you with a complete range of utensils from silverware to glasswear and pots and pans.

Boats and motors should be your next consideration. How many boats are provided, how old are they, and how big are they, are the main points to check out. Three guys in a twelve foot boat on a windy day is anything but fun.

What kind of motors, their size and age is another consideration. 9.9HP motors are more expensive but will also provide better performance than a six horse. How many motors are in camp and what do you do if one breaks down?

To find out how good the fishing is, ask for a reference in your area. If you talk to two or three folks that have fished the lake you're planning on visiting and the lake has been with the same operator for a number of years, odds are you're getting the straight scoop.

While some outpost camps offer groceries, remember you're paying for them. Shopping in Canada is quite simple and even the small towns gear up to accommodate the fisherman during the summer season. If you're purchasing your own grub you will find it hard, if not impossible, to spend ten dollars per day per person and for that expect to eat like a king.

What to Bring

Most fly out operators will tell you exactly how much weight you're allowed including your tackle, baggage, etc. per person. If you're overweight, it is going to cost you so don't bring what you don't need. Along with your clothing (good raingear is a must), you'll need a sleeping bag, your fishing tackle, and if it's allowed, your choice of live bait. Oh, last but not least, regardless of where you choose to visit for that trip of a lifetime, don't forget old lady luck.

Don't Let the "Mystery" of Lake Trout Fool You

Except in the brief periods of spring and fall when Lake Trout move into the shallows, many fishermen just give up and go for other species. This is especially true in Canada where Lake Trout abound. Don't accept the old idea that you can't catch Lake Trout in the summer.

There are really only two principles involved that will produce Lake Trout at any time of the season. These two principles are simple: (1) Habitat areas and (2) Proper depth. Finding Trout will necessitate use of a couple of pieces of equipment. A depth finder and a fishing thermometer.

First scout the lake for the suitable structure. Points, holes, humps, flats, shelves etc. This structure must contain abundant food sources. Second, locate water temperatures in the above structure from 45° to 55° Fahrenheit. It's really that simple.

A good example of where you will likely find active Trout is a 30 foot shelf that drops off immediately to 60 to 75 feet. Where the water temperature is 43 to 54 degrees and containing a sufficient food source. The Trout will follow the temperature up or down in depth; lying either on the shelf or just off the edge at the depth where the water temperature is in their range.

Many lakes have limited areas of suitable structure and once you have found an area, your chance of success are enhanced due to the concentration of fish in these areas.

If you are fishing 60 to 100 feet, you probably will have better results if you use wire line — If you locate fish above 30 feet, 25-lb. monofilament line will be sufficient. Use a large jig tipped with 5 or 6 inch smelt or sucker (either dead or alive). Work the jig slowly up and down in the temperature zone.

When trolling shallow waters in spring and fall, use heavy spoons, big Rapalas or large spinners. When fishing deep waters, use enough weight to bottom-walk your bait.

Don't Discard old Monofilament Line in the Lake or River

Nylon monofilament decomposes very, very slowly and discarded line can cause endless problems to waterfowl and other wildlife as well as outboard motor propeller shafts. Discarded line along with beer cans, plastic sandwich bags and other litter should be stashed in your boat litter bag and returned to camp for disposal.

Little-Known Fact

A Knotty Choice

The most expensive line you can buy is only as good as the knot you tie.

Most everyone has learned this lesson the hard way — when that lunker on your line is replaced by that little curl. Strong language may reduce your frustration, but it will not bring back the big fish.

According to research of the DuPont Company, makers of "Stren" fishing line, the roughest thing for nylon monofilament fish line is nylon monofilament fish line. Just tie a simple overhand knot in ordinary 10-pound test mono and pull. The line will usually break without much strain. The reason is that ordinary nylon mono line cuts into itself when notted.

Although everyone most likely has a favorite knot, the Palomar is probably the easiest to tie, and the break will come in the line before the knot with the Palomar better than anything else. The improved clinch knot performs equally as well.

The moral to the story is, use a premium line like "Stren" or "Trilene" and the proper choice of a knot — one that cushions the cutting contact.

Keeping Worms on Hand and Healthy

Building a simple worm box will keep a live supply of healthy worms all summer and save you the trouble of finding them when you need them.

Use any old wooden box with solid sides. The size will depend on the quantity of worms you want to keep. When selecting size however, make it large enough to give worms some room to roam around. Knock out the bottom of the box and replace it with a mesh screen. Cover screen with a couple of inches of coarse gravel, topped with 10 to 12 inches of loose fertile soil. Moisten soil well but do not drench. Place worms in their new home. Spread straw over soil and keep wet.

Set the box in a cool shady spot that is definitely out of direct sunlight. Feed worms every two weeks with about a quart of 1 part corn meal and 1 part powdered milk mixture. At every third feeding, crumble a hard boiled egg and add to mixture. Work the food gently into the soil, replace mid-way through the summer with at least half new fresh soil and work into old soil.

Freeze Your Fillets to Save Freezer Space

If you freeze your fish in water, as many people do, try this method:

Use a freezer proof storage bag. Put the fillets in the bag and fill with water about half way. Tie the bag and place it in a bread pan or small cake pan and let it settle in until it fits the shape of the pan. After about 24 hours in the freezer, the frozen block of fish will lift from the pan.

These blocks will store in your freezer using a minimum of wasted space.

Timely Tip

Line color has little or no bearing on your fishing success with many species, so use a line that you can see and control better.

Boat Docks Are Summer Hotspots

Unfortunately the days of cabin-free lakes and total solitude are going fast. Many people are very disappointed that progress has made such strides. Twenty years ago, homes on lakes were rare; now as land developers realize the prime real estate value of lake shore property, houses and cabins are springing up all over the place. This needn't be depressing news for the fisherman.

When people build houses on lakes, they also build boat docks. Many of the fish found in shallow water need to protect their eyes from the sun. Being creatures that are victims of their environment, they moved into a modern form of housing for fish, BOAT DOCKS! These boat docks are the simplest and easiest places to find fish. They offer food and shelter to the fish, and both panfish and gamefish will live under boat docks.

Of course, not all docks are fantastic. As a rule, however, wood dock posts attract more fish than metal pipes. Deeper water docks are better than shallow ones. Docks near points are usually better than ones found in small bays. A fairly clean bottom under a dock is preferred over a weed choked one. As with most rules, there are exceptions; no boat dock should be completely ruled out until you have fished it.

Fish under docks feel safe, and it's surprising how close you can get to the dock without spooking the fish. Always fish as close to the dock as possible. Your goal is not to spook the fish and yet keep your bait within a foot of the posts. Dock fish expect their food to be under or very close to the posts and won't travel very far to grab your bait. Shaded areas around the docks will permit the fish to wander further from under it. Therefore, if possible, always keep your bait in the water shaded by the dock.

Inspect your line regularly as dock posts can easily nick or damage your line. Bass fishermen should use at least 17 pound test line. A heavy line is needed to keep the powerful bass from wrapping you around the posts of the dock.

If the docks in your lake don't seem to produce fish, try fishing around swimming platforms. These free-floating docks are often favorite places for fish.

Northeast Iowa — A Great Place to Fish

Iowa fishing really has two seasons. The Iowa Great Lakes area gamefish opener is May 5 and includes West Okoboji, Big Spirit and East Okoboji. All other lakes and rivers are open year 'round for all species.

Here are a few hot spots and tips on filling your stringer.

Lost Island Lake

Here is a great spot for walleyes along with some fair to good fishing for crappies, northern pike and bullheads. Early in the year your best luck will be wading the shore line with hip boots or waders. Night fishing seems to produce the best action. Try casting a lead head jig with a three inch white or black Mr. Twister. Another good method is a slip bobber with a small jig and minnow combination. A lighted bobber will work like a charm and has added a new dimension to night fishing in Iowa. By late May through July, if you choose to fish from a boat during daylight hours, crawlers and leeches have both proven to be good producers on Lost Island.

Storm Lake

Here is a shallow lake, 8' maximum depth, that produces some lunker walleyes. In addition, you can expect to find a good crappie population, silver bass and recently stocked muskies. The lake has several man-made islands and the majority of them can be reached by wading.

Five Island Lake

Here is another small lake, of just 1500 acres, that produces surprisingly good fishing. The northern pike is king here with lots of trophy pike, weighing 15 pounds and up, taken each year. The first choice for bait is big sucker minnows.

West Okoboji

Big walleyes, smallmouth bass, muskies, northerns, plus yellow perch and bluegills make a great choice for summer time vacationers.

The bad news is that this clear water, deep lake can be super tough — particularly during bright daylight hours. Take care to use light line and get your bait as far from the boat as possible if you want to be successful.

Trolling during the evening hours can produce some good muskie action. You can expect to find super walleye action in the late fall. Jigs and minnows in 30 to 50 feet of water are best for walleyes.

There are any number of excellent camping areas. However, good boat landings are at a premium.

East Okoboji

While just half the size of her big sister to the west, East Okoboji has excellent launching facilities and good access to West Okoboji. Many folks choose to launch on East and utilize the resources of both lakes.

Big Spirit Lake

With a maximum depth of 30 feet, Big Spirit is a great choice for walleyes, smallmouth bass, muskies or northern pike. Spring is wading time once again and night fishing seems to be most productive. Having somewhat murkier water than some of the other area lakes means good results can be found during the daytime hours. Big Spirit is really underfished. Jigs and minnows, rapalas, and live bait set-ups such as a Lindy rig, are all good choices during both spring and summer. Excellent camping areas and launching facilities make this a great choice.*

Baked Stuffed Northern Pike

You may also use this recipe to bake and stuff Walleye and Trout. Prepare with heads either left on or cut off — whichever you prefer.

2½ to 3 pound Northern
Bread stuffing — prepared sage or your own recipe
4 or 6 bacon strips
½ medium onion, finely chopped
3-tablespoons butter
¼-cup white wine
Lemon slices
Parsley flakes

Fill the scaled and dressed pike with stuffing and sew up the opening (you can also use skewers).

Wrap bacon completely around pike, barber pole style, fastening with toothpicks. Place in shallow baking pan or dish and sprinkle chopped onion over top of fish.

For basting sauce — melt butter, stir in wine and keep warm.

Bake fish in 325° oven for 20 to 30 minutes, or until fish flakes easily with fork. Baste often with butter and wine sauce. Garnish fish with lemon slices and parsley flakes.

The All-Purpose Jig

Throughout history the jig has produced many fish. No matter if you're fishing fresh water or salt water, the jig can be a deadly fish catcher. To describe a jig is not too difficult. It is a hook with a piece of lead, any size or shape, attached to its shank just below the eye of the hook. Now, if you want to learn how to make one work, that's a little harder to do. One definite fact that has proven itself time and time again is that there is no best way to make a jig catch fish for you. Whether you're in fresh water or salt water, the type of fish you're trying to catch makes the final choice in technique.

Jigs can catch perch or muskies; but, knowing which jig to select and how to fish it, does take a little more time. Once you hit the right combination you'll be hooked on jig fishing. For the most part jigs need to be small enough to be swallowed quickly by the fish. The basic rule to use is to stay small. Big bait does not mean big fish when using a jig. A ¼ ounce or ⅓₂ ounce jig are good for bigger sunfish and crappie but ¼ ounce jigs are just too large for a panfish to grab. So always start small and work your way either larger or smaller until you start catching more fish.

Jig head design has a lot to do with how the jig acts in the water. Round jig heads work great for fishing straight up and down. There are even airplane jigs with small wings on them to make them dart from side to side.

To get the best action out of your jig, it's best to tie directly to all of your jigs; no snaps or swivels should be used. Fishing rods that work the best for jig fishing usually are short and have a very sensitive tip.

The word jig itself means to jerk up and down or draw through the water. Basically, that's exactly the action for which you must aim. Sometimes fish want a jig jumping fast and other times they prefer it to just crawl along the bottom. That is why there is no best method. You must experiment with action until a preferred method is found. While putting action on your jig, never let your line go limp. Slack line is one of the biggest reasons for missed fish. For the best results for someone just starting out in jig fishing, it is highly recommended that you always keep your jig near the bottom.

Originally, jigs were designed to fish without adding live bait to them. Many of the colorful designs look great in the water, but sometimes that little extra scent from the bait will get you a few more fish. Small minnows and night crawlers are very popular. Minnows should be hooked through the lips and made to trail behind the bait naturally. One big secret is not to use a big minnow if your jig has a lot of rubber or hair on it. These attractors just make the bait look bigger in the water. Oftentimes, a finicky fish will turn down a bait that looks too big. For best results, night crawlers should be cut in half and just threaded on the hook.

The art of jig fishing is a challenge to even the experienced angler, but they do catch fish for everyone.

Sport Fish Of The 80's; Largemouth Bass

In this fast-paced world in which we live, trends in fashion and style seem to change over night. Sportsmen seem to cling to their traditions longer than most other groups. Fishermen number in the millions in the Midwest alone. They are known as gadget lovers and as a group of people always looking for a shortcut to make fishing easier. Fishing gadgets seem to rise and fall in popularity every season, but one steady trend has never changed. That is the popularity of largemouth bass fishing. It is growing at a rate hard to believe, but easy to understand. If you ask a Midwest bass fisherman why he fishes bass, the answer would probably sound something like this, "I used to fish walleye all the time but I got sick and tired of not catching anything. When I finally hooked one, its fight was about as exciting as catching an old shoe." Here in the Midwest the walleye is still king, but the trend towards bass fishing is increasing.

The big difference between a plain fisherman and a sportsfisherman is what they bring home. The sportsfisherman is challenged by catching fish and works hard to catch even one, but releases his catch to bite again another day. The largemouth bass meets his challenge every time and can be safely released without damage to the fish. There is nothing wrong with the fisherman who keeps what he catches, but in many cases, he is more interested in walleye fishing precisely because very often the fish cannot be released after being caught. The growing satisfaction of fishing itself often challenges the modern day angler to become a sportsfisherman.

The trend to bass fishing began in the early 60's and has been growing steadily ever since. The jarring strikes and awesome leaps of the fish as well as the methods needed to catch it all seem to contribute to this increase in popularity. Space age materials, in both lures and boats has made bass fishing even easier and more fun than ever before.

Bass tournaments seemed to reach a peak in recent years. However, more and more anglers are striking out on their own to perfect new methods to catch bass. They continue to practice conservation methods to insure good fishing for years to come. In the early years, local people used to frown on tournaments because they believed it would hurt fishing in their lakes, but this trend has also changed because now many tournaments release 99% of the fish caught. Bass fishermen are the last group of people who want to hurt their sport.

Although you can spend an easy $10,000 getting properly organized with a fancy boat and motor as well as hundreds of sure-fire lures, commonly used equipment can get you started just as well. Your equipment selections will expand as your knowledge of bass fishing increases.

All in all, bass fishing is a trend that is sure to continue. Without a doubt, the largemouth bass will be the sport fish of the 80's.

Timely Tip

To remember a great fishing trip, carry your camera out in the boat with you and don't wait until you get on shore to take a picture of your great catch. The fish look better and the memory of the day can be seen as well as remembered for many years.

NORTH STAR Reading Council held their annual spring banquet at the Thief River golf club on Thursday evening with approximately 230 members in attendance to hear special guest speaker Ruth Randall, Minnesota commissioner of education. Directors and officers of the council posed with Randall before the meeting. From left to right are: Becky Pribula, treasurer, Newfolden; Loreen Gibson, Thief River Falls; Lee Hoekstra, Kennedy; Val Johnson, Badger; Ron Leverington, president; Warren; Jean Buhl, president-elect, Thief River Falls; Commissioner Randall; Jo Sorenson, secretary, Warren; Dave Stone, Waubun-Ogema-White Earth; Renae Orstad, Karlstad; and Fay Bolin, vice-president, Thief River Falls.

School Board OKs Offer For Bldg.

Thief River Falls board of education heard a report on utilization of the resource center at Northrop school, discussed with instructor Vern Isaacson some concerns about the science facilities at Lincoln high school, and authorized an offer of $91,000 for the Pepsi-Cola Bottling company building east of Lincoln at its meeting last Monday in the school district service center.

Utilization of the Northrop resource center was reported by Jane Miller and Beverly Kays. They said the center averages about 89 students per day making use of its offerings. They were commended by the board for the time and effort they have put into making the center a success.

Isaacson's discussion of science facilities with the board includes several safety-related conditions. The concerns were referred by board consensus to the administration for investigation and recommendation for correction. Recommendations are to be made at the next board meeting on April 23 at 7:30 p.m.

Jerry Prickett, supervisor of buildings and grounds, distributed to the board reports on the recent asbestos and PCB tests that were completed in buildings in the district. No asbestos was found in any classroom, hallway, commons area or office in Knox, Northrop, Washington, Franklin-Mark Twain, AVTI, service center or AVTI facilities at the regional airport.

In most schools, however, asbestos was found or presumed present in the boiler rooms as pipe lagging and therefore poses a low-exposure risk to custodial personnel. An area of concern, he said, is the exposed and damaged pipe lagging in the boys and girls locker rooms next to the gymnasium at Lincoln where a high degree of risk to staff and students exists. Asbestos materials were also found on pipe laggings in the athletic facilities of the old bus garages.

Recommendation to temporarily wrap these pipes would be implemented immediately, he said; the material to be completely stripped and removed at a later time, such as the summer, when risk of exposure is reduced.

A resolution was approved authorizing the Armstrong, Torseth, Skold and Rydeen architectural firm to make the necessary arrangements to remove transformers containing PCBs from Lincoln and Franklin schools.

Dr. Leo Ruberto, assistant superintendent, discussed with the board the concept of a personnel management system geared to improvement of the individual staff member and which would take about five years to implement. The system would include six processes including recruitment and selection; performance

Stumpf Reports State Business Climate Is Good

State Senator LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer says that a recent edition outlining the state's successful business climate in a study by the Minneapolis Tribune "just proves what we have been saying all along at the Capitol and in this state, that Minnesota's business climate is a good one, has grown gaster than most states — and all of the other states in our region — and is expected to continue improving."

The week-long study, published after an exhaustive, seven-month analysis of statistics derived from federal and state agencies. Wall Street consultants and economic forecasting firms, concluded that Minnesota generally is a good place to do business because it has held its ground against the redistribution of wealth from aging manufacturing states of the Northwest to western "Sunbelt" and southern and midwestern agricultural regions.

"While we have often been criticized for having a bad farm economy, high taxes, high wages, tough environmental regulations, a remote location and other supposedly negative factors, the figures prove that we actually have increased our economic growth over the past decade," Stumpf said.

In the comprehensive study by the newspaper, the Tribune found that Minnesota's economy especially improved in a number of critical areas:

+ It grew faster than any of the other nine "Frostbelt" states in the region, except North Dakota;

+ The cost to business of taxes, wages and energy expenses is lower than the average for 24 northern tier states, and is narrowing the gap with the "Sunbelt;"

+ The state built or acquired 60 per cent of its production plants here, indicating that businesses consider other factors in their moving plans;

+ Minnesota companies have grown faster than their national competitors, and become a world-wide leader in the development of high technology jobs;

Rickey Hanson Injured In Cycle Crash

A young Thief River Falls man suffered a compressed vertebra and facial abrasions shortly before 9 a.m. Friday in a motorcycle accident near the Soo Line roundhouse on County Road 77 in North township just north of Thief River Falls.

Rickey Jon Hanson, 27, was riding a motorcycle south on County Road 77 when he apparently failed to turn at a curve in the road and the cycle left the roadway. Investigation was conducted by the Pennington county sheriff's department with assistance from the Thief River Falls police department.

The motorcycle was considered to be a total loss.

Ag Census Gives Review Of 4-Year Farm Picture

Number of farms in Pennington county decreased during the period from 1978 to 1982 from 703 to 655, according to the U.S. census of agriculture. Acreage of land in farms also decreased from 331,315 acres to 313,450 acres, according to the census, so that the average size of farm increased only eight acres from 471 to 479 acres.

Number of farms increased during the period in the very small and very large acreages but decreased in the more medium sized farms. Number of farms in 1982 in each of the acreage categories was as follows with the 1978 comparative acreage for those categories listed in parentheses: 1 to 9 acres, 23 (16); 10 to 49 acres, 51 (39); 50 to 179 acres, 165 (169); 180 to 499 acres, 215 (260); 500 to 999 acres, 121 (145); 1,000 to 1,999 acres, 61 (57); and 2,000 acres and larger, 19 (17).

The census bureau defines a farm as any place from which $1,000 or more of agricultural products were sold or normally would have been sold.

Land from which crops were produced declined from 212,387 acres to 199,427 acres during the four-year period. Total cropland in the county also declined from 277,292 acres to 267,389 acres. Cropland not harvested included other cropland for pasture, grazing, woodland or rangeland.

In 1982 the county's farmers sold $24.4 million in agricultural products for an average of $37,205 from each of the county's farms. In 1978 the sales totaled $3.1 million for an average per farm of $32,892.

Sales in 1982 included $15,328,000 in grain crops; $575,000 in hay, silage and field seeds; $3,362,000 in dairy products; $2,185,000 in cattle and calves; $276,000 in sheep, lambs and wool; and $854,000 in hogs and pigs.

In 1978 the grain sales were $14,279,000; hay, silage and field seeds were $980,000; dairy products were only $2,157,000; cattle and calves were $1,836,000; sheep, lambs and wool were $169,000; and hogs and pigs were $719,000.

Volume of sales by farms were as follows in 1982 with comparative number of farms for 1978 listed in parentheses: Seven (6) totaled $250,000 or more; 50 (40) had total sales from $100,000 to $249,999; 125 (112) had sales from $40,000 to $99,999; 112 (130) had sales from $20,000 to $39,999; 110 (159) had sales from $10,000 to $19,999; 89 (94) had sales from $5,000 to $9,999; and 162 (162) had sales of less than $5,000.

Of the total farms in the county, 182 had gross sales of $40,000 or more and 251 reported sales of less than $10,000. Farms operated as sole proprietorships represented 88 per cent of the total. In 1982 the average age of farm operators were 47.7 years, compared with 47.4 years in 1978. Proportion of operators reporting farming as their principal occupation increased from 69 to 75 per cent over the four-year period.

The census report notes that data in the comparisons is directly comparable for acreages and inventories and that dollar values were not adjusted for changes in price levels.

Among county farmers in 1982, there were 44 under 25 years of age, 133 from 25 to 34 years, 109 from 35 to 44 years, 98 from 45 to 54 years, 176 from

Other features of the meeting will be music by Vernon Rogalla and serving of strawberry shortcake at the conclusion of the meeting.

Open House Set At Extension Office Tuesday

Refreshments will be served and an invitation for the public to attend anf view the new facilities is issued by Terry Courneya, county extension director; Deborah Matero, county extension agent in home economics and family living; and Polly Prunuske, county extension agent for 4-H youth development.

FOUR MILLION DOLLARS in checks to be distributed to approximately 170 borrowers in Pennington and east Marshall counties are shown by Paulette Kassa (left) and her sister Diane Laksnes, both office clerks at the Thief River Falls office of the Farmers Home administration. The sisters have worked together for the past six years but Mrs. Kassa has accepted another position with the FmHA office in St. Cloud and completed her service here Friday. She was honored with a retirement dinner Friday evening at the American Legion club rooms and will move to St. Cloud with her husband and two children this month. The checks shown will be distributed over the next several weeks and include funds for operating, emergency assistance, economic emergency and farm ownership. Several clerical people from other offices are assigned to the Thief River Falls office to assist in preparing the loans for closing. Local supervisor Butch Koehmstedt estimates that the local office will process approximately $20 million in loans during 1984.

Surplus Food Distribution Is Next Week

Surplus commodities will be distributed from 2 to 4 p.m. Tuesday, April 24, at community centers in Grygla, Middle River and Strandquist, and senior citizen centers in Gatzke and Holt, for East Marshall county residents meeting income requirements.

Eligibility cards must be presented when picking up commodities, and may be obtained by contacting Outreach aide Karen Skadsem, phone 222-3309, before April 24, and verifying that household income is below the following guidelines: $8,326 for a family of one; $10,887 for two; $16,012 for four; $21,136 for six; or $23,157 for 10.

Residents of Beltrami county may utilize the distribution site in Grygla.

Revised Wheat Program Signup To Begin Today

Pennington and Marshall county ASCS offices begin accepting signups for the revised wheat program today and will continue to accept signups through Friday, May 4, according to Phil Bergland and Jerry Turgeon, directors of the Pennington and Marshall county offices, respectively.

Turgeon stated that there were "substantial improvements" in the new program by adding diversion payments on 10 per cent of the wheat base and increasing the bushel return on payment in kind (PIK) acres to 85 per cent of the farm yield.

Also under the new farm plan the wheat target price was reduced from $4.45 per bushel to $4.38. Therefore the maximum deficiency payment a farmer could earn in 1984 is lowered from $1.15 per bushel to $1.08 per bushel.

Farmers who have already signed up and do not wish to change their signup will not have to visit the county office, Bergland added. Only those farmers who wish to now enroll in the 30 per cent set aside program, the PIK program, or those who wish to drop out of the program will have to visit the county office.

Turgeon and Bergland also stated that advance diversion payments will be paid under the new farm bill. The advance payment of 50 per cent will be paid after May 4 and will have to be requested in writing by the farm operators who wish to receive them. The final diversion payment will be paid after the July 15 certification date.

Those producers who have not signed to participate in the program should now take another look at the advantages the program may offer for their particular farm operation or cropland situation, the county directors said.

Landscaping For Birds Noted By Deer Park Club

"Landscaping for birds" was the topic discussed at the meeting of the Deer Park garden club held at the Patty Radniecki home in Thief River Falls.

Leading the topic study was Shelly Steva, who shared her self-taught knowledge as well as her experiences. She stated that in order to attract birds to feeders, there must be adequate shelter in the yard. For best results, trees and plants should be of different heights. She also said that in providing housing for birds, care must be taken in providing the right type. Dimensions for blue bird houses are very important.

The program also included a study on Clematis and home lawn coping presented by Lavonne and Patty Radniecki.

President Helen Chervestad presided at the meeting and led the discussion on "Should professional flower growers, such as those operating a greenhouse, be allowed to exhibit at the district horticultural flower show?" The question had been raised at the spring workshop and referred to each club with the instruction that the clubs report back to the district executive board. Consensus of opinion was that the professionals should be allowed to exhibit as their entries added a great deal to the different divisions at the show.

Program booklets on this year's flower show were distributed by Mrs. Chervestad. The show will be held in Roseau, August 18. The theme will be "Floral Olympics".

Congratulations were extended to Lavonne Radniecki, who received the district outstanding gardeners award at the spring workshop held at Roseau.

Six members of the club attended the workshop and shared their individual interests. They were Helen Chervestad, Mrs. Harry Hanson, Ethel Wiseth, Dorothy Svanjord, Edna Appleman and Lois Swanson, who commented on the slide presentation on roses given by a representative of the Morden Nursery, Morden, Manitoba, Canada.

During the business session, plans were made for the annual plant sale. Lauretta Stucy, chairman, stated that the event will be held at the senior center in Goodridge with pie and coffee served throughout the sale.

The meeting began with the reading of the garden club creed. Theadora Anderson read the secretary's report and Luella Peterson the financial report.

Following the meeting, a four o'clock luncheon was served by the hostess.

Shroud Of Turin Report Given At DeCor Meeting

In keeping with the Lenten season, a report on the controversial "Shroud of Turin" highlighted the DeCor club meeting held April 3 at the home of Gladys Isaacson.

The report was based on Dr. John Heller's article which appeared in the January issue of the Reader's Digest. It was given by Mildred Wick. After much study, it has been determined that the shroud, 14 feet long and three and one-half inches wide, is made of linen, with the threads hand-spun and the fabric hand-woven. Since there are impressions on the front and back of a nude man, apparently scourged and crucified, it is believed by some to be the burial shroud of Jesus of Nazareth.

Adding interest to the meeting, was a report by Geneva Overum on her recent trip to China, Japan and Hong Kong. She also distributed souvenirs of her trip to the members. Slides of her trip will be shown at the meeting of the club to be held May 1 at her home.

President Mildred Wick presided at the meeting and led the reading of the Women's club collect. Members responding to roll call by revealing their plans for Easter.

Information was given on the General Federated Woman's Club district convention to be held April 28 at Breckenridge.

A report was given on the club's latest community service. It was noted that on March 28, the club had served lunch to 15 members of the Friendship club at the basement meeting room at the Pennington county courthouse. Serving the lunch, to which all members had contributed, were Ethel Aase, Mildred Wick, Mabel Leyden and Carla Peterson.

Members were reminded that the May 1st meeting will include a plant exchange.

Members attending the meeting were Ethel Aase, Mabel Leyden, Geneva Overum, Carla Peterson, Mildred Wick and Gladys Isaacson.

Report On Soil Survey Is Used To Save Money

Soil survey of Pennington county, now available at the Soil Conservation Service (SCS) office, can save many people time and money, according to Allan Gustafson, district conservationist.

Survey contains detailed maps of Pennington county's soils, with descriptions of the soils and an analysis of how suitable each kind of soil is for a variety of farm and non-farm uses. Information is based on soil borings to a depth of five feet.

Survey can help a homebuyer or developer determine soil-related hazards or limitations that affect homesites. It can help land use planners determine the suitability of areas for housing or onsite sewage disposal systems, or identify prime agricultural land so that it can be protected from conversion to non-farm uses.

Farmers can use the survey to estimate potential crop or forage production of the land, and engineers can use it to help determine the suitability and limitations of soil for pipelines, buildings, landfill, recreation areas, and many other uses.

Survey can also be used by land appraisers to determine values of farmland according to production capacity.

Why is soil information needed? Gustafson notes that many people assume that soils are all more or less alike, and are unaware that great differences in soil properties can occur within short distances.

Soils may be seasonally wet or subject to flooding. They may be too unstable to be used as a foundation for buildings or roads.

Clay or wet soils are poorly suited to septic tank absorption fields, and a high water table makes soil poorly suited to basements or underground installations.

These properties and many others that affect land use are discussed in the soil survey.

Copies of the survey and instructions on how to use it are available from the SCS office at 1305 Dale Street in Thief River Falls.

Att'y. General Gives Advice On Wedding Plans

No doubt about it. Spring weddings are romantic events. But don't be fooled. Behind the idyll is invariably a lot of hard work and preparation, notes the Minnesota attorney general's office.

In fact, putting together a wedding is much like any other consumer enterprise. Budgets have to be portioned, products bought, services contracted for, equipment rented and, after it's all over, bills paid. Like any other consumer venture, the surest way to get the most for your money is to adhere to those old tried and true consumer rules: shop around, compare goods and services, check out reputations and read the fine contract print.

If you are about to make wedding arrangements (or even if you are in the midst of them), it might be wise to consider the following:

Arranging the reception — Your budget, of course, will largely determine the kind of event you have. If you're thinking of using a country club or restaurant or hotel know that you may be limited by the facility's menu, liquor and music options. Before putting a deposit down, find out what the rental fee includes, whether there are any restrictions, and be sure to check out the cancellation policy. Get a written contract or policy sheet from whatever establishment you choose. Read it carefully before you sign.

Hiring caterers — Before hiring a caterer make sure you understand exactly what you'll be getting for your money. Once you decide on the type of menu you want, contact several caterers for their per-plate prices. Find out what services and merchandise are included in the fee, such as food servers, dishes, napkins, tablecloths, etc. Get your order written out in contract form with all pertinent charges and services included.

Choosing a photographer — Get recommendations from friends and look through various photographers' portfolios. Have the photographer explain the different packages, prices, and any additional charges for which you may be billed. Get written information about cancellation notices and payment plans. Remember, some studios require you to pay for the pictures immediately upon delivery.

Choosing a florist — When deciding on a florist, make appointments with various florists' wedding consultants to discuss the possibilities that are within your budget. Again, request a written statement describing the flowers, deposits, payment policies and cancellation penalties or privileges.

The time you take to carefully plan your wedding could save you money in the long run. Don't hesitate to ask questions along the way and get as much information in writing as possible.

Stumpf Says Business Climate Good

+ The state's largest corporations expanded throughout the state to more than offset the loss of a number of small manufacturing companies;

+ The state's higher-paying jobs increased in the 1970's and personal income rose above the national average for the first time in 25 years;

+ Minnesota's state and local taxes declined as a percentage of the state's wealth due to economic growth and a slowdown in tax hikes; and,

+ Minnesota was one of only five states in the 24-state region whose gross state product during the 1970's grew and its national per-capita ranking rose nationally from 16th to 13th.

"We have continually been criticized for having high taxes here, even as our business climate and overall situation remains the same or actually improves," Stumpf said. "The simple fact is, as a percentage of taxable wealth, state and local taxes had dropped by 13 per cent in 1980 from the peak in 1972.

"The upshot of this key study," Stumpf added, "is that Minnesota remains a favorable state for the expansion and creation of business enterprises. The favorable climate we have here for larger businesses leads to the development and growth of small businesses as well. Although our farm sector recovery is lagging behind other regeneration, the fact remains our state is returning to prosperous times and is effectively making the major transition from a manufacturing-based to a high-technology and service-related economy.

"The study points out what has been debated time and again since 1954, that our economy is dependent upon the health of the United States economy as a whole," Stumpf said. "The only thing bad about our state's business climate are the bad things some negative-thinking people are saying about it."

State Installs Radio Beacon For Seaplanes

Navigational safety in Minnesota will move forward with the installation of the first non-directional radio beacon for seaplane pilot use, according to Dick Keinz, state director of aeronautics, Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT).

Non-directional beacons are low-powered, low-frequency radio transmitters with a maximum range of about 100 miles used for aircraft navigation, he explained.

Here, the navigational aid will assist pilots during daytime overcast weather in locating the seaplane base and the border station on Crane Lake. Crane Lake is located about 45 miles east of International Falls on the Minnesota-Canada border.

Keinz said the listallation also will boost the state's economic development by providing safe and easier access to the boundary waters area.

Thirty-seven other non-directional beacons are in use throughout the state. Mn-DOT owns and operates 26 of them. The other 11 are federal installations.

Russell Daniels of Buyck was awarded a $29,926 contract to install the beacon at Crane Lake on 7.3 acres of land purchased by Mn-DOT. The transmitter cost $8,000.

Work on the project, including clearing of the land, is scheduled to begin April 1 and to be completed about May 15.

Parnows Take 4-H Training In Washington

Parnows were among 21 delegates from Minnesota, who joined others from Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, New York, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, West Virginia, Wisconsin and Prince Edward Island. About 120 delegates attended the forum.

Program was designed to help organizational volunteer leaders, those who establish 4-H clubs and work with youth and other volunteer leaders, to learn more effective programming ideas and enhance communication skills with youth and adults. Featured were sessions on how youth learning, motivating teens and adults, officer training, recruiting 4-H members and volunteers, sharing skills, community resources, and involving parents in 4-H programs.

Donna said her most interesting sessions were workshops titled "Fund Raising", "Parents as Partners" and "Recruiting 4-H Leaders and Members".

She noted that the fund raising workshop gave helpful and creative ideas and methods; "Parents as Partners" offered tips on ways to help parents support their children; and "Recruiting 4-H Leaders and Members" showed that the vitality of a 4-H club is based on bringing new members and leaders into the group. This workshop focused on sharing proven ways of recruiting both volunteers and members.

Educational field trips added depth to the program, including the visits to the Smithsonian Institution, Capitol Hill Gettysburg battlefield, the changing of the guard at the tomb of the unknown soldier, the Kennedy graves at Arlington, Mount Vernon and many other historic places. They also had a chance to meet and visit with Senators Durenburger and Boschwitz, and get passes to attend committee hearings in both the Senate and House of Representatives.

One of the most exciting parts of the forum was sharing ideas with others, according to the Parnows, who found it interesting that some of the larger clubs in other states deal with the same things we do.

National 4-H leader forums were arranged throughout the year by the national 4-H council. Pennington county leaders council pays for one adult leader to attend this forum each spring.

Persons interested in learning more about 4-H involvement, either as a member or as a leader, should contact Polly Prunuske, county extension agent for 4-H, Thief River Falls, MN 56701; phone 681-2116.

Recreation In America Topic Of Art Exhibit

"America at Play", an exhibition of prints, posters, and illustrations revealing the evolution of recreation in American life from the mid-nineteenth century through the 1940s, opens at Northland community college, from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. starting April 20.

Although Americans today enjoy a broad range of leisure activities, they were very limited a century ago. Tennis, golf, and seaside resorts were the domain of the wealthy. For working-class Americans, strolling in the park, picnicking, and skating were pleasant and inexpensive ways to spend what little leisure time was available to them.

Since the turn of the century, industrialization and technological advancements have contributed to the creation of new forms of recreation and have increased leisure time for the average American. In this exhibition, depictions of popular pastimes by such artists as Thomas Nast, Winslow Homer, John Sloan, and Reginald Marsh illustrate how Americans amused themselves, and how these pursuits changed as the country was transformed from a rural society to a modern industrial nation.

"America at Play" was organized by the touring exhibitions program, University Art Museum, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, and is sponsored locally by Northland Community College.

Loeslie Calls Wheat Program A 'Good Trade'

The revised wheat program, which was signed into law on April 10 by President Reagan, was "a good trade for wheat farmers" according to Don Loeslie. The Warren farmer, who worked on the wheat bill for eight months as the president and immediate past president of the National Association of Wheat Growers, was invited by White House officials to attend the signing ceremony.

The agricultural program adjustment act freezes the target price for wheat at $4.38 for both 1984 and 1985 in exchange for a 10 per cent paid diversion for both years, a 10 per cent increase in the PIL payment for 1984, an additional $2 billion in export credits, and additional money for direct economic emergency loans for farmers in disaster areas. The target price under the original farm program was scheduled to be $4.45 for 1984 and $4.65 for 1985.

"The trade-offs we made to obtain this better program were much less then some people may think by just looking at the numbers," Loeslie said. "It became very apparent during the negotiations that administration officials and Congressional leaders were not going to allow the target price increases, scheduled for 1985, to go into effect."

According to Loeslie, this was evidenced by the administration's budget deficit reduction plan which included the target price freeze regardless of the passage of the compromise farm program with its off-setting benefits.

"Furthermore," Loeslie said, "on the slim chance that we could have held the $4.65 target price for wheat in 1985, USDA sources indicated that it was possible that a 40 per cent unpaid set-aside would be required in order for farmers to qualify. This would be totally unacceptable."

According to Loeslie, the 1985 farm program would have been announced in July of 1984, but with Congress traditionally adjourning in August in an election year, there would not be enough time to generate the necessary support for any improvements before the Senators and Congressmen returned to their home districts. "Congress would not reconvene until after the election," Loeslie emphasized, "which would have removed a lot of the leverage the wheat growers had now.

"We made a very good trade," Loeslie concluded. "We traded off something we would not have gotten anyway, for some very significant improvements in the wheat program that will add up to $35 million to the Minnesota wheat economy and make it much easier for farmers to qualify for operating loans."

Protz Retires, Spends Winter In Arizona

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Protz have returned from Arizona where they spent the past three months following Bob's retirement after 30 years of employment with Bridgeman's Refrigeration department in Thief River Falls.

Protz retired January 1 after serving as manager of the department for the past 20 years. He joined the company in 1947 after completing refrigeration school at Industrial Training institute in Chicago. After five years of operating his own business in Bagley from 1949 to 1954, he rejoined the company in 1954.

While on their extended vacation, Mr. and Mrs. Protz visited three of their four children: Michael, who is working in the Denver, CO, area; Patti, attending Metro state college in the Denver area; and Kathi, attending the University of Northern Colorado at Greeley.

ICCC's Surplus Food Program Requires Cards

Inter-County Community Council (ICCC) is making some changes in the operation of the surplus commodities program in their service area of Red Lake, Pennington, East Polk and Clearwater counties. They will require that anyone picking up commodities have a commodity card.

To receive a card, people will be required to show proof of eligibility, based on income from all sources. This could include copies of paychecks, check stubs, deposit slips, interest statements, tax forms, etc. Most recent tax form will be required as proof for those who are self-employed.

Those who qualified for fuel assistance this past winter should automatically receive a card in the mail. If you do not receive your card by mail, it will be necessary to bring proper documentation to the distribution site where an Inter-County Outreach worker will check it over and issue commodity cards to qualifying people. Cards will be good until March, 1985.

Anyone picking up commodities for someone else must bring the other person's card along. Each card will be punched for the appropriate month and each person will, as in the past, be required to sign up with name, address, number of people in the household and what commodities they received.

Next distribution is scheduled for April 30 to May 4.

Aaland Attends Export Session In Portland, OR

David Aaland, manager of Farmers Co-op Grain and Seed Association, Thief River Falls, participated in Export '84, a Harvest States conference in Portland, OR., last month, along with more than 250 managers of other local affiliates of the regional marketing and supply cooperative based in St. Paul.

Purpose of the conference was to give managers a broader understanding of export opportunities and potentials. Programs featured several marketing experts, both from the Harvest States staff and from outside the cooperative.

Managers were briefed about export financing being provided by the new international department of the Central Bank for Cooperatives.

In addition to the speakers, participants at the conference had opportunity to tour the cooperative's deep-water 6.4 million bushel terminal at Kalama, WA.

It is illegal to increase your speed while being passed unless the vehicle passing is passing on the right where this is permitted such as on a roadway with multiple traffic lanes in each direction.

Lean Beef Is Low In Volume Of Cholesterol

Beef is better, according to newly released nutritional studies which show one three-ounce serving of cooked lean beef contains only about 73 milligrams of cholesterol. That's less than other red meats and most poultry and well under safe daily consumption recommendations.

Most doctors accept the American Heart-association cholesterol guideline of 300 milligrams per day. The relationship of diet to heart disease remains a hotly debated issue. But 300 milligrams is well below the 500 milligram level of dietary cholesterol USDA officials estimate are consumed daily in the U.S. At 73 milligrams, that three ounce serving of beef amounts to only 24 per cent of recommended consumption. Also important, less than 48 per cent of the fat in beef is saturated with the balance being mono or polyunsaturated fat.

That makes new, lean beef an excellent source of good nutrition, based on the new studies by the U.S. department of agriculture. The studies were conducted in conjunction with the national livestock and meat board, with cooperation from laboratories of the University of Kentucky and Michigan state university. Funding was provided by the U.S. army Natwick research and development command, the Texas Cattle Feeders association and the Michigan Beef Industry commission.

Support Cookie Sales

Report locally last week that a staple had been found in a Girl Scout cookie purchased in Thief River Falls was another episode in the unfortunate saga of tampering which has been in the national news for a couple of weeks.

We agree with the editorial published recently in the Fairmont Sentinel:—

The cookies have not been crumbling very well for area Girl Scouts lately. And the mess it's starting to make is a sad one.

How we handle this issue will say an awful lot about us.

The Girl Scouts depend heavily on their cookie sales to raise funds for their organization. From 50 per cent to 80 per cent of their annual budget comes from money made at these cookie sales. Without the cookie sales, the Girl Scouts will be hurt badly.

Then there are the girls themselves. Many of them and their parents have invested many hours in making the cookie drives a success. They are not necessarily doing this for themselves, but for an organization that we are betting will help mold these girls into solid citizens.

So in a real sense, when you order Girl Scout cookies, you are investing in those diligent young women who are in the Girl Scouts. In a larger sense, you are investing in a better future for all of us.

So if the decision to buy the cookies is left to us — the customers — we should buy the cookies regardless of the reports of tampering. If you are afraid of swallowing a pin, have the boxes examined, break the cookies before eating them or just throw them away.

It would really be a shame if we let the pranksters who tampered with the cookies continue to sabotage the cookie sales in this area.

It might also send the wrong message to our Girl Scouts — that we would allow the dirty tricks of a few to undermine a virtual institution in the country which they've worked so hard to maintain and support.

When the Girl Scouts come and ask you if you still want the cookies you've ordered, do the right thing and buy the cookies. You'll be sending a powerful message of support to an organization that needs it right now.

Food Cost Comparisons

A common misconception is that while Americans spend a small percentage of their income on food, because of their higher income they actually spend more dollars on that food. The following is reprinted from the February 17 issue of "Farm Paper Letter," published by the USDA Office of Information.

Sure, food costs are high. But Americans have the world's highest incomes. As a result, though they might spend a smaller portion of their incomes on food at home than consumers in other nations, they really spend more for that food than consumers elsewhere.

Not true!

Truth is, Americans rank sixth — not first — in per capita incomes and they rank 17th among nations in the amount spent per capita on food. This, according to a recent U.S. Department of Agriculture Economic Research Service survey.

The survey uses 1979 figures — the latest available from the United Nations and the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development. All are in U.S. dollars, however.

It shows the Swiss lead in per capita income with $13,309. Followed by the Danes, $11,666; the Swedes, $11,309; West Germans, $10,837; and Belgians, $10,202. Then come the Americans, $9,595; the French, $9,509; the Dutch, $9,507; the Norwegians, $9,132; and the Canadians, $8,323. The Australians rank 11th with $8,096 per capita; the Russians, 20th, with $4,404 per capita.

But the surprising thing is in money spent per capita — again in American dollars — for food at home. The swiss pay the most, $1,911 per capita. Followed by the West Germans, $1,626; Danes, $1,328; Belgians, $1,326; French, $1,232; Swedes, $1,218; Norwegians, $1,175; Dutch, $1,036; Austrians, $1,030; Fins, $1,022; Japanese, $1,004; Italians, $975; Russians, $953; Australians, $950; Spanish, $932; Greeks, $932. Then come the Americans, $874. Followed by the Canadians, $828; British, $750; the Irish, $598; and Panamanians, $515.

As measured against total living expenses, Americans spend 12.7 per cent — the lowest percentage of all nations. They're followed by the Canadians, 14½ per cent; then come the Dutch, 15 per cent; Australians, 17.1 per cent; British, 17.3 per cent; Swedes, 18 per cent; Danes, 18.3 per cent; French, 18.5 per cent; Belgians, 18.6 per cent; West Germans, 19.5 per cent; Austrians, 20.2 per cent; and Norwegians, 20.4 per cent.

The Swiss pay 21 per cent, the Japanese 21.5 per cent; the Italians, 29.2 per cent; the Russians, 33.7 per cent of their incomes per capita for food.

Fund Diversion Bad Idea

Following editorial is from the Grand Rapids Herald-Review:

Congress is quite properly considering legislation to establish a compensation program for victims of crime.

Few would deny the need for assistance for victims of shocking and violent crimes which are so costly in terms of money and lives. But Congressman Peter J. Rodino's plan for funding the compensation program by diverting money from the Federal Aid in Wildlife Restoration (Pittman-Robertson) Program is not a good solution.

"State wildlife conservation and hunter education programs could lose more than 30 million dollars of federal funding a year under the Rodino bill," the Izaak Walton League of America points out. The League and other major conservation and sportsmen's organizations and sporting arms manufacturers have been unanimous in opposition to the funding portion of the bill.

Proposed legislation would take the 10 per cent excise tax on handguns away from wildlife enhancement and hunter education and use it to compensate crime victims. There must be a better source of funding. That money is urgently needed to protect and improve wildlife habitat, fund wildlife research and train sportsmen to be sane and ethical hunters.

Availability of Pittman-Robertson funds has made it possible for states to protect or improve millions of acres of wildlife habitat. It has made possible a reduction in the rate of hunting accidents, with a resulting saving of lives and property.

A recent Reagan administration proposal takes a far more sensible look at the problem. Sen. Strom Thurmond and Rep. Hamilton Fish have presented a bill to compensate crime victims without diverting handgun tax money. They recognize the need for compensation but understand that Pittman-Robertson funds should not be diverted from their important work.

At a time when Minnesota is striving to maintain and improve its wildlife habitat program, the Rodino bill would cut the state's income from Pittman-Robertson by $803,000 a year. That would be a loss of $421,500 in wildlife restoration funds and $381,500 in hunter education.

It should be emphasized that Pittman-Robertson programs benefit all of us who enjoy wildlife or other outdoor recreation, not just the hunters. National surveys reveal that about 100 million men, women and children engage in some wildlife-related recreation each year. Diverting Pittman-Robertson funds will adversely affect opportunities for that recreation.

People who love the outdoors and wish to maintain it should write to their senators and congressmen to express opposition to the Rodino bill and to favor legislation authored by Sen. Thurmond and Rep. Fish. Demands for outdoor recreation are growing steadily. This is no time to curtail the funding which is vital to that development.

Borrowed Nonsense:

The Amish farmer was quietly milking his cow when the animal lifted its foot and placed it squarely in a half-full pail of milk. The farmer rose from his stool, turned to the animal and said quietly, "Thou knowest that I can not curse thee." He resumed his milking when the cantankerous animal caught him across the face with a vigorous swat from her wet, messy tail. "Thou knowest," he addressed the animal, "that I can not smite thee." He had nearly finished milking when the cow gave a vicious kick which sent the pail flying and toppled the farmer off his stool and into the gutter. "What thou dost now know," the farmer muttered, "is that tomorrow I will sell thee to an atheist."

An Internal Revenue service office received this letter: "Gentlemen: I have not been able to sleep nights on account of worrying about not having reported on a good deal of income, so I'm enclosing my check for $1,000. If I find I still can't sleep, I'll send some of the rest of it."

The city youngster was visiting a farm for the first time and seemed awed with a fat sow in one of the pens. "Big, isn't she?" the farmer asked. "She should be," the city kid snapped. "Just before you came in there were eight little pigs blowing her up."

REPORT

From The Minnesota
House of Representatives

by Rep. Wallace Sparby
District 1B

Project LEAD — Learning, Excellence, Assessment and Development — this year's legislative plan to boost excellence in Minnesota's public schools took shape over the past three weeks and is now incorporated as the 1984 Omnibus education finance bill.

The plan moves to reaffirm the state's commitment to quality education as it sets three major goals for our schools—to (1) increase accountability and evaluation; (2) implement greater measures for research and development; and (3) strengthen and increase the number and range of opportunities for excellence among students and education providers.

Highlights of the bill include measures to upgrade curriculum programs. The PER law (planning, evaluation and reporting) is strengthened by directing school districts to adopt written policies establishing instructional goals and measurable learner objectives.

School districts will conduct curriculum assessments each year in at least one subject area across three grade levels. And at least one every two years districts will review the adequacy of testing programs. Where weaknesses are discovered, districts are required to implement necessary changes for improvement.

As school districts work to upgrade their actual course offerings, they will also work to improve teacher effectiveness through enhanced in-service training opportunities. The commissioner of education will recommend subject areas needing attention and up to 20 grants will fund proposals for staff education geared toward increasing academic knowledge.

A program introduced last year for instructional effectiveness in our schools is continued in this year's legislation. Using data from the pilot projects, the commissioner will develop a long-term evaluation instrument for other districts to measure instructional effectiveness with special emphasis on a method for measuring student achievement.

As we are looking to measure student achievement, we are also looking at ways to provide advanced educational opportunities for students who have excelled above the norm. These students require increased learning time, which may be possible through a new summer school program.

Summer school funding is reinstated in the 1984 omnibus education bill, with a stipulation that the programs be academic in nature, rather than recreational. To qualify for state aid, summer school programs must meet two or more academic criteria including academic enrichment or teaching advanced skills in certain subjects like math, science or foreign languages.

The new summer school aid may also cover costs for curriculum development, staff development, parent or community involvement in schools, or experimental educational delivery systems.

The cultural arts are given special attention in the school aids bill, following a cue from Governor Perpich. The governor is hoping Minnesota will become the fifth state to support a special "school for the arts" catering to gifted students.

This legislation carries funding for studying an arts school, as well as a needs assessment of art programs in elementary and secondary schools statewide.

In the continuing search for excellence in our schools, this bill includes measures to designate "schools of excellence" which could serve as models for other schools. Schools which feel they are meeting the highest of standards in any area from curriculum and student ability to discipline and administrative leadership, could apply for special recognition as a school of excellence.

More school districts will explore the use of techology through additional funding for technology demonstration sites. The 1983 legislature funded 10 such sites throughout the state, but because of the great demand and quality programs in operation, more sites will receive state assistance.

And finally, the 1984 omnibus education finance bill increases the per pupil unit spending allowance from the current $1,475 to $1,550 in the 1985-86 school year. Welcome news for Minnesota citizens is that the education committee worked to reduce the local effort by one mill (to 23) which should save taxpayers an estimated $60 million over the next biennium.

The omnibus education bill is one of the more massive pieces of legislation we vote on each year. This year's package is especially appealing to those of us concerned about the quality of our schools and their ability to prepare students for a more modern, technological world.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

I was appalled and angered when I personally witnessed and then saw the picture that appeared in the Thief River Falls Times last Wednesday of the three deer that were not properly dressed and preserved. These deer were killed during deer season last fall, gutted and hung, but were allowed to spoil. The deer appeared to be of the quality that a sportsman would be proud to claim as his.

But the action of the wasting of the meat is not the action of a true sportsman. Sportsman respect the wildlife that they hunt and would not intentionally allow a kill just to spoil. This is killing for the sake of killing and is against the basic instincts of the American hunter. Historically the American hunter has frequently survived because of the game he has hunted.

There are many anti hunting groups and individuals who see actions such as this as representative of the American hunter. They are anxious to point out these types of action to show just cause to stop hunting.

When action such as this is seen, unfortunately the public may blame all sportsmen. It is the responsibility of the sportsman to report all acts of unsportsmanlike activity such as this to the proper authorities. Only then can we be proud of the American sportsman and the heritage we have inherited.

Sincerely,
Hardy Hodge

Right To Own Real Property Is Proclaimed

Private property week in Thief River Falls has been proclaimed for April 8-14 by Mayor Bob Carlson who urges local citizens to join in the nationwide observance.

Theme for the second consecutive year is "The Strength of a Nation Lies in the Homes of its People." Thief River Falls area board of realtors will sponsor a week of community-oriented programs and activities designed to call attention to Americans' right to own real property.

One of the most precious rights Americans enjoy is the right to own, use or transfer real property, Mayor Carlson pointed out in the proclamation.

"Above all," he stated, "we must guard against taking for granted the rights that come with home ownership. Owning one's home and preserving these rights disperses individual decision-making that contributes to the well-being of our community." He called on local residents to reaffirm the freedom of such ownership by taking part in the private property week observance.

Isaacson Joins UND Fraternity Delta Upsilon

Delta Upsilon fraternity at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks recently held elections and initiated 30 men to pledge and active membership. Initiated into pledge membership was Mark Isaacson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vern Isaacson, of Thief River Falls.

The North Dakota chapter was founded at UND in 1959. For 44 consecutive semesters, the chapter has maintained the highest grade point among the 13 fraternities on campus. The North Dakota chapter of Delta Upsilon, an international fraternity, was also voted most outstanding fraternity three of the last four years by the inter-fraternity council.

CAPITOL COMMENTARY

by LeRoy Stumpf

State Senator — District 1

A number of state tax relief plans have been offered during the 1984 session, with legislators picking and choosing among the various taxes they would like to see cut and by how much. The latest proposals by the governor and the DFL legislative leadership for upwards of $357 million in total tax cuts is, I believe, a fair and balanced offering, and I hope it will serve as the basis for a cooperative tax agreement in the closing days of the session.

Basically, the plan as outlined on April 2 would provide $323 million in immediate income tax relief by repealing the 10 per cent income tax surcharge placed on Minnesota's income two years ago to help solve existing budget deficits. Under the current plan, the agreement would repeal this retroactive to Jan. 1, 1984.

I believe that the most important part of this plan is the provision calling for an annual, $15 million tax break for property owners — farmers, homeowners and small businesses — all of whom have been hit hard by the recent recession's effects.

We find ourselves in the enviable position of seeing the state's budget status turn completely around from a $1 billion deficit barely 16 months ago to the current situation where the state finance officials anticipate a $900 million reserve in the state's treasury by June 30, 1985, the end of the current biennium.

The announcement by the leadership of this key tax-cut package followed closely on the heels of the previous announcement by the state's economists that the state will gain an additional $650 million in revenues by the end of this biennium, added to the $250 million already budgeted for the state's reserve fund.

In summary, the plan would call for direct and indirect tax relief through the January repeal of the surcharge ($323 million), and through the transfer of motor vehicle excise taxes from July 1, 1985 to July 1, 1986, ($50 million).

Another $15 million would be earmarked this year for agricultural property tax relief for farmers, small businesses and homeowners, ($30 million over the next two years) and the sales tax rate for new industrial equipment purchases would be dropped from six to four per cent.

Miscellaneous tax deductions of $5 million, including various tax simplification items, would be added later to the package after agreement is reached in the respective legislative tax committees.

Another key element in this tax-cut package would be increasing the state's reserve fund by $125 million, from the current $250 million to $375 million, which will guard against future economic recessions and maintain the current fiscal stability of state government.

A "reverse shift" of $28 million to aid school districts' cash flow pictures would be added, and would undo one of the budget crisis moves of past sessions.

The plan also calls for another $30 million to be spent toward finding additional jobs for a portion of Minnesota's estimated 110,000 jobless workers. Over 10,000 unemployed residents found jobs over the past year thanks to the $70 million emergency employment development program we implemented last session.

We are all cautiously-optimistic over the new projections, and over this seeming windfall of revenues. We expect to send most of it back to the people of Minnesota where it belongs, and we will keep a healthy reserve fund on hand as a hedge against any unexpected problems in 1985-1986.

I personally am concerned about the massive, $200 billion-plus deficit of the federal government, and that all of this red ink could lead to further economic problems in the years ahead. The facts that "real interest rates" (interest rates minus inflation rates) are higher than 1980, and the recession on our farms is growing worse, tell me that we have a great deal of economic mending and catching-up to do.

Hike Planned To Help Fight Birth Defects

Walkers are being sought by the members of the sales and marketing department at Thief River Falls area vocational technical institute, to participate in a campaign for the March of Dimes on April 28.

Walk America for the March of Dimes campaign will seek to raise funds by having walkers get sponsors to pledge money for each mile traveled in an 18-mile hike planned for 9 a.m. Saturday, April 28, at the AVTI. Walkers who bring in the most pledges will be eligible for prizes. Only equipment necessary to join the hike will be a pair of comfortable walking shoes and a spirit of fun.

Money raised will be used to support March of Dimes programs in research, medical services and education, all aimed at fighting birth defects, which affect more than 250 children in this country every year.

Last year, 1.5 million people took part in 1,100 Walk America events held coast to coast, and raised more than $22 million to fight birth defects.

For further information contact the sales and marketing department at the AVTI by calling 681-5424.

Ag Statistics Service Airs Farm Program

Because the cost of farm programs has surged in the past year, there is widespread public interest in how government farm programs are financed, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service.

One of the most common misconceptions by the general public is that farmers receive a "handout" from the government in a sort of agricultural "welfare system", the statistics service notes. That idea is far from accurate. While welfare recipients do not have to repay assistance received, government farm programs generally operate on a loan basis under which the farmer repays with interest.

The agricultural statistics service explained the situation as follows:

The Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) is used to carry out programs that support farm income and prices.

There's two ways of measuring CCC activity: net outlays and losses. "Outlay" is the cash changing hands. When farm producers get commodity loans, the checks they get count as outlays.

When they repay the loan, the repayments are counted as receipts. The receipts offset the outlays. Other CCC programs finance export and farm storage facilities. CCC also buys dairy products to support prices; direct payments, storage, transportation, and interest paid on borrowed funds also are part of CCC expenses.

At the end of the fiscal year, net outlays show what's left after cash disbursements over receipts are recovered. If outlays aren't recovered, they're declared losses.

CCC outlays for any fiscal year relate to the crop of the previous year. In fiscal 1983, outlays climbed to a record $18.9 billion, reflecting market pressures that were building for several years. Record grain crops in 1981 and 1982 built up massive supplies at the same time that the world recession, the strong dollar, and the heavy world debt put the brakes on demand.

As farm prices tumbled to the loan rate levels, CCC lending rose, commodities were held off the market as collateral for these loans, and the incentive to repay the loans and redeem the collateral shrank. Net outlays for commodity loans hit a record $8.4 billion that season.

Direct payments (deficiency and diversion payments) also escalated. Deficiency payments are based on the difference between mandated "target" prices and farm prices. These payments jumped in 1983 because target prices rose for '82 crops and market prices were low.

CCC net purchases go almost entirely for the dairy program. In fiscal 1983, it brought more than 12 per cent of all milk produced.

CCC producer storage payments relate to the farmer-owned reserved. In 1983, large volumes of grain were stored under this program.

CCC pays interest on the funds it borrows and in 1983 interest was very high because of the amount of CCC program activity and because CCC carried over some of the interest due in 1982 into 1983 because it was short of funds.

PIK affected fiscal '83 outlays very little, by using commodities already under loan or in CCC inventory. Most of the funds to pay for these commodities had been disbursed before 1983 or would have been paid out as crop loans in 1983 even without PIK.

Because of PIK and last summer's drought, farm prices are higher and commodity loan repayments should exceed new loans by nearly $900 million.

This, coupled with lower deficiency payment outlays, no paid acreage diversion for '84 crops, and lower CCC activity in general, means that all CCC outlays will drop from $18.9 billion in fiscal 1983 to a projected $6.8 billion in fiscal 1984.

Bergland Sixth Northland Coach

In naming Scott Bergland as the new Northland community college hockey coach, school officials continued a pattern of selecting someone from within the community to coach the Northmen.

Bergland becomes the sixth man to direct the Northmen, who will begin their 15th hockey season in 1984-85.

Swede Lund, Curt Geatz, Bob Lundbohm, Tom Goddard and Tony Dorn, Jr. preceded Bergland as Northland hockey coach. None of them were associated with the school, but all worked in the community when hired to coach the Northmen.

Lund, Goddard, Dorn and Bergland all graduated from Lincoln high school. Lundbohm and Bergland played college hockey at Northland. Lund, a Roseau native who has since moved back to that community, shares the Northland single season scoring record of 65 points with Leo Marshall, a figure both players reached during the 1971-72 season — Northland's second year of hockey.

Lund coached the Northmen five years; Geatz one; Lumdbohm four; Goddard two; and Dorn two.

First order of business for Bergland will be to find some hockey players. There were only five freshmen who played regularly this winter: forwards Bob Martin, East Grand Forks; Chris Jorde, Thief River Falls; and Tony Holcomb, Fairbault; defenseman Rod Harder, Thief River Falls; and goalie Jay Bomgaarden, Baudette.

This area obviously has hockey talent available, and Bergland will try to convince a number of them that Northland would be a good place to continue their schooling and extend their athletic careers.

Tough Northwest Division Race

Northland community college baseball team will be a big underdog this spring in the Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) Northwest Division race this spring.

A year ago the Northmen were contenders. But this time around the others appear to have a definite edge. Perennially strong Brainerd added prestige by opening the seassn with a doubleheader in the Hubert H. Humphrey Metrodome in Minneapolis; Fergus Falls gained instant recognition by hiring former Minnesota Twins and Los Angeles Dodgers major league pitcher Dave Goltz as its new head coach; and the University of Minnesota-Crookston expects to field one of its best teams this season.

Northland opens its 1984 Northwest Division schedule with a doubleheader at UMC Wednesday.

Don Cavalier, who begins his third full season as UMC coach, told the Crookston Times, "This is by far the most talent and depth we've had since I've been here. The talent and skills are there, they just have to perform and will have that chance as the season progresses. With determination and cooperation from Mother Nature, we could have one of our better seasons."

UMC was 11-9 a year ago. Eight lettermen are back, including pitchers Todd Peterson, Boseman, Mont.; Mark Majeres, Red Lake Falls; and Paul Kalbrener, Grafton. "We should have a pretty good pitching staff," said Cavalier, who feels his crop of freshmen is excellent.

Northland doesn't have a very favorable schedule, facing UMC, Brainerd and Fergus Falls in successive Northwest Division road doubleheaders before getting in a home game.

Spartans Will Not Have Hockey

Fergus Falls community college will not have a hockey team in 1984-85, it has been announced by Hal Collins, vice-provost at the school.

Vermilion in Ely has announced that it will field its first hockey team next winter, and Fergus Falls was considering adding the sport.

"We won't have hockey in 1984-85, but will give serious consideration to having it the following year," Collins told the Fergus Falls Journal.

Collins explained that the college faculty association opposes starting hockey in 1984-85 on the basis that there is not enough time to hire a coach and to recruit players.

Current Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) hockey-playing members are Northland, Hibbing, University of Minnesota-Crookston, Rainy River, Rochester and Mesabi.

Miscellaneous

+ Three players who faced Thief River Falls last fall have been named to the Outstate Team for the annual Minnesota high school all-star football game, scheduled to be played July 28 at Parade Stadium in Minneapolis. Area players selected were Charlie Stock of Mahnomen, Dave Hamlin of Moorhead and Len Kretchman of Fergus Falls. Also named to the team were Scott Christianson of Norman County West and Tom Demars of Walker.

+ If Fergus Falls community college basketball coach Dave Retzlaff is successful in his recruiting efforts, the Spartans, who won divisional, state and regional titles this past winter en route to national NJCAA playoff competition, will be hard to displace as Northwest Division champions in 1984-85. Pat Westby, the 6-4 senior who led Pelican Rapids to the 1984 Minnesota Class A state high school basketball tournament title, is leaning toward attending a two-year school and may be headed to Fergus Falls, according to Gary McVey, sports editor of the Fergus Falls Journal. McVey adds that Retzlaff is also seeking to recruit three additional area standouts: Tim Swenson of Fergus Falls, Peter Larson of Pelican Rapids and Kim Martinson of Breckenridge.

+ Jim Chmielewski, head girls basketball coach at Park Rapids high school is upset by those who pick the Minnesota high school girls all-star basketball teams because they completely overlooked Orla Hohnstadt, a 6-2 senior center for the Panthers, who was very impressive against Thief River Falls this winter. "Orla was the best center in the state this past season," Chmielewski told Ralph Anderson of Detroit Lakes. "She got double and triple coverage all year and still was the leading scorer in the Mid-State Conference. Nationally-ranked St. Cloud State and North Dakota State are waging a hot recruiting battle in an effort to land Hohnstad.

Prowlers' Hockey Season Review . . .

TRF Features Balanced Scoring

Balanced scoring attack was featured this winter by the 1983-84 Lincoln high school hockey team, with five players scoring between 26-to-16 points for the 12-8-1 Prowlers.

Ryan Bakke, who was recently named the team's most valuable player award winner, enjoyed an outstanding senior season and led the team in scoring with 26 points on 14 goals and 12 assists.

Fellow-seniors Mitch Semanko and Steve Wiskow also broke the 20-point mark. Semanko had 11 goals and 11 assists for 22 points while Wiskow had 8 goals and 12 assists for 20 points.

Tim Bottem, who missed a portion of the season with a shoulder injury, finished his senior year with 17 points, getting 8 goals and 9 assists.

Finishing fifth on the Prowlers' scoring charts by Scott Novak, who had a memorable freshman season on the varsity with 4 goals, 12 assists and 16 points.

In going 12-8-81 this winter the Prowlers overcame a slow start to become one of the top teams in Section 8 down the stretch. They lost their first three games and were just 1-4 after their first five games.

But through their next 14 games the Prowlers were 11-2-1 and completed a season-long climb through the Section 8 standings that earned them a fourth place finish behind Roseau, Bemidji and Fergus Falls.

That success, however, didn't continue at the end. Thief River Falls lost a one-sided 8-2 regular season finale to Fergus Falls and it was a short playoff campaign for the Prowlers, who lost a 3-0 opening round Section 8 tournament quarterfinal decision to Crookston. That final score was deceiving, with Crookston scoring twice in the final minute — including an open net goal at the end — to break open a tight 1-0 game. But it was still a loss, ending the Prowlers' 1983-84 season.

It was a season that included three one-goal losses — Fergus 3-2, Bemidji 2-1 and East Grand Forks 4-3 — but also featured four one-goal wins — Warroad 2-1, East Grand Forks 2-1, Crookston 3-2 and Roseau 3-2. There was also a 2-2 overtime tie with Detroit Lakes and a 1-0 forfeit victory over Moorhead because of the teacher's strike.

Other wins came against Fargo South 7-2, Grand Forks Red River 6-0, Lake of the Woods 5-3, Crookston 6-3, Moorhead 7-4, Hallock 6-0 and Warroad 5-2.

Losses, in addition to those end-of-the-year setbacks at the hands of Fergus Falls and Crookston, came against Grand Forks Central 9-4, Roseau 5-1 and Bemidji 6-2.

And with injuries sidelining four key seniors at various times and for various lengths during the season, the 12-8-1 finish was figured to be a fine accomplishment. Wiskow, Bottem, Brian Johnston and Rick Spong were all lost at times to injuries, forcing a number of line-up alterations by head coach Wendell Grand.

Graduation losses will take a big bite out of the Prowlers' line-up. Novak will head the returning lettermen, along with Bob Huot, Bill Desrocher, Joe Blankenfeld, Bob Breiland, Dan Imgrund, Chad Bottem and Steve Solheim, who handled most of the goaltending chores this winter as a junior.

Opener Rained Out Wednesday

Season-opening non-conference Northland community college baseball doubleheader against the University of North Dakota junior varsity, scheduled to be held Wednesday in Grand Forks, was rained out.

Coach Chet Engelman's Northmen will begin their 1984 Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) schedule Wednesday with a 12-noon Northwest Division doubleheader at the University of Minnesota-Crookston.

Scott Bergland Is Named Northland Hockey Coach

Scott Bergland has been named as the new Northland community college hockey coach, it was announced Thursday by school officials.

Bergland is a 1977 Lincoln high school graduate, who attended Northland and went on to earn a degree in business management from the College of St. Thomas in St. Paul.

He played hockey for the Prowlers, Northmen and Tommies. Bergland ranks fourth on the single season Northland scoring list with a 54-point campaign in 1979-80 (19 goals, 35 assists), and ranks fifth in the Northland career scoring charts with 75 points during the 1978-79 and 1979-80 seasons (24 goals, 51 assists).

After graduating from St. Thomas, Bergland returned to Thief River Falls and for the past three years has been employed as office manager at Farmer's Union Oil Co.

He coached the Bantam B team in the Thief River Falls Amateur Hockey Association (TRFAHA) the past two years and has also coached in the Thief River Falls summer youth baseball program, working with the Babe Ruth 13-year-olds.

Bergland will succeed Tony Dorn, Jr. as Northland hockey coach. Dorn resigned from the position at the end of the 1983-84 season, completing a two-year stint.

Bergland was one of the candidates for the job two years ago when Tom Goddard stepped down at the end of the 1981-82 season.

"It's something I've wanted to do," he explained. "I think the program has a bright future if it's done right."

Bergland admits he's behind schedule in recruiting, but he is already at work trying to remedy the situation and thinks he can make up for lost time. "I'm going to be pretty busy for a while," he admits. Bergland hopes to contact every senior in Section 8. There were 50-to-60 of them among the eight Section 8 tournament qualifiers alone, he figures.

"We need numbers," noted Bergland, "and we're looking for more community support for the program."

Northland ran short of numbers this winter, a problem that forced the Northmen to forfeit a final season-ending series at Rochester when injuries and illness took their toll on an already small squad.

Snowmobile Race Team Needs Little More Luck

by Mike Lundgren
Times Sports Editor

With a little luck, Dave and Durmont Wahl wouldn't have had to work nearly as hard this summer in their snowmobile sled-building business.

With a little luck on the winter-long snowmobile racing circuit, Dave figures the driver-mechanic-brother combination might have pocketed about $25,000 in winnings during the 1983-84 racing season.

But a variety of problems kept them from being consistently in the winner's circle and necessitates the need for summer revenue.

Twenty-four-year-old Dave started racing snowmobiles in 1978. This was the third year older brother Durmont served as his mechanic as the Thief River Falld duo entered Sno Pro, Formula I and Formula II races throughout Canada and the Upper Midwest. The 1983-84 season started the first weekend in December and carried through the month of March.

Dave said they pretty much broke even in the money department. "We haven't made much money, but we always seem to win enough to pay for our trip," he said in a recent interview.

But even without the winner's big bucks, Dave says, "It's good advertising." During the off-season they produce sleds here in Thief River Falls — making 25 of them last year.

"At the start of the year we had a lot of bad luck," he explained. "The sled just wouldn't handle."

A change in the suspension system helped, but the luck still didn't change. Dave was a leader in the prestigious — and profitable — Formula I World's Championship race at Eagle River, Wis. — worth about $10,000 — before a radiator problem sidelined him. And he had the same type of luck in the lesser-status Formula II competition that same weekend, leading until the final lap in a field of 35 before finishing second.

In all, the Wahl's figure they lost out on a possible $14,000 in winnings that one weekend alone.

But that marked the turning point for the local team as their luck finally changed the following weekend at Delavan, Wis. where they beat many of the "big name" factory-sponsored drivers.

Things were going good, too at Valcourt, Que. when Dave led a 30-sled Formula II race until clutch problems developed. He was a leader that weekend, too, for a portion of the feature Formula I race.

Things then really clicked at Eganville, Ont. where Dave won a 38-sled Formula I race against the highly-touted twin-track sleds, and cleaned out the Formula II competition. Formula racing is pretty much dominated with twin-track machines, so his victories on the single-track Wahl Bros. Special was especially sweet.

Most productive weekend in terms of winning came at Meadow Lake, Sask. where Dave took five firsts in various classes of oval and drag racing. But those winnings amounted to only about $1,500 — again, enough to pay for the trip.

Dave and Durmont Wahl finance themselves, but are quick to thank the smaller sponsors that do help them out, including Arctic Wear of Thief River Falls, Certified Parts Corp. of Janesville, Wis. and even Detroit Tigers baseball pitcher Jack Morris, a St. Paul native who just recently threw a no-hitter at the Chicago White Sox.

"I love racing," says Dave. "This is really it for me. I plan to be around for a few more years."

Russ Henegar . . .

Prowlers Name Football Coach

Russ Henegar, whose Webster team won the 1983 South Dakota Class B state championship, has been named new head football coach at Lincoln high school, succeeding John Schmitz, who resigned at the end of the 1983 season.

He will serve as guidance counselor at Lincoln and will be the drug program coordinator for grades K-12 in School District 564.

Hengar is a graduate of Bismarck high school, where he was an all-conference, North Dakota all-state and Sunkist All-American runningback. He attended Bismarck junior college for two years, where he was named the team's most valuable freshman and in his sophomore season was the team captain, most valuable player and best back.

Transferring to Moorhead State University, Henegar earned additional football honors when he was named an all-conference selection in the NIC, was named to the all-district team, was a first-team NAIA All-American, served as team captain and was named the Fragons' best back.

In addition to football, Henegar competed in track at all three schools, winning a North Dakota state high school title in the long jump.

Hengar served as head football coach at LaMoure, N.D. high school, where his 1975 team was conference champion and state runner-up, and his 1976 team was conference runner-up.

He served as offensive coordinator at Bismarck Century high school in 1978 and was offensive coordinator at Bismarck junior college in 1979.

His Webster team was one of the larger Class B school in South Dakota's two-class football system.

Hengar also has head coaching experience in track and assistant coaching experience in basketball.

He is married and has two children. His family has relatives in Thief River Falls and he is very familiar with the community.

Prowlers Split In Tennis Triangular

Thief River Falls rebounded from a 5-0 loss at the hands of East Grand Forks to edge Moorhead 3-2 Wednesday in high school tennis competition split between indoor sites in East Grand Forks and Grand Forks.

East Grand Forks, in turn, beat Moorhead 4-1 to win the triangular-scoring meet with 9 points while Thief River Falls and Moorhead finished with 3 apiece.

Thief River Falls swept all three singles matches against Moorhead as Al Erickson outlasted Randy Wenalstad 4-6, 6-2, 6-1 at No. 1; Dan Imgrund handled Eric Meyer 6-0, 6-4 at No. 2; and Jeff Vanyo beat Mark Bergan 10-7 at No. 3 in a match shortened to a 10-game pro-set scoring system because of a time factor.

Prowlers coach Whitey Olson expressed satisfaction with the play of Vanyo, and also said Scott Heinze and Chad Konickson played well even though they lost twice at No. 1 doubles.

Originally scheduled to be held Thursday, the match was moved ahead because of a scheduling conflict at East Grand Forks.

Thief River Falls will be involved in its third straight season-opening triangular Tuesday at Bemidji, where the Prowlers and Lumberjacks will be joined by Grand Rapids for a 2 p.m. meet.

LHS Track Teams . . .

Prowlers Run At Crookston

Lincoln high school boys and girls track teams both participated in a four-team invitational indoor meet at the Winter Shows Building in Crookston Friday.

It was the 1984 season opener for the Lincoln boys. It was the second outing of the year for the girls, who opened their schedule the week before at the same site.

In both portions of the meet the Prowlers trailed the field. Bemidji won the boys' portion of the meet with 75 points, followed by Crookston with 71, East Grand Forks 54 and Thief River Falls 34. Crookston won the girls' portion of the meet with 76 points, followed by Bemidji and East Grand Forks with 40 each and Thief River Falls 31.

"We had some good performances," said Thief River Falls coach Tim Olson, who wasn't overly concerned with the Prowlers' low team point total. It was the Prowlers' opener, he noted, while many of the other teams have had a number of outings already.

Thief River Falls boys came up with two first place finishes. Randy Swenson won the 60-meter high hurdles in 8.9 seconds and the sprint medley relay team of Paul Brandt, Swenson, Jeff Langan and Kevin Kezar emerged a winner in 3:24.49.

Lone win for the Thief River Falls girls came in the 2800-meter relay, where Paula Wilkens, Edna Johnson, Peggy Cruz and Georgia Howard set a new building record was a 9:10.42 clothing.

Lincoln girls were scheduled to compete in a 4 p.m. meet at Grafton today (Monday). They'll be at Grand Forks Red River for an 11 a.m. meet Saturday.

Huskies' Basketball Statistics Announced

Scott Groven was the leading scorer and Ross Parnow was the leading rebounder for the 1983-84 Goodridge high school basketball team, according to figures released recently by Huskies' head coach Dan Brinkman.

Groven scored 331 points to lead the Huskies in that department, with Tony Wiseth and Parnow contributing 241 and 200 points, respectively.

Parnow grabbed 205 rebounds this past winter, with Groven collecting 190 and Tim Wayne 139.

Goodridge finished with a 9-13 overall record under Brinkman, who served as head coach for the first time after working with the Huskies previously as an assistant coach. Goodridge was 8-12 during the regular season, then in District 31 tournament play the Huskies beat Fisher 47-39 but lost to eventual Region 8A champion Warren 53-44 in the quarterfinals.

Averaging 54.3 points per game, the Huskies shot 40 per cent from the field as a team and 59 per cent from the free throw line.

Northwomen Lose 2 Softball Games

Northland community college women's fast pitch softball team opened its 1984 season Saturday at the Inver Hills invitational tournament.

It was not a successful debut for the Northwomen, who lost to the host Giants 27-0 in the opening game of the eight-team event and then fell to Hibbing 26-5 in the consolation semifinals.

Experienced fast pitch pitchers accounted for the one-sided scores, explained Northland coach Deb Jacobson. "We have some skills (throwing and fielding)," she explained, "but that (pitching) is a different game entirely."

Two Inver Hills pitchers combined on a five-inning no-hitter in the opener. Twelve of the 15 Northland batters were strike-out victims. The Northwomen had two base runners, via a walk and an interference call against the catcher. Iver Hills collected 11 hits and benefited from six Northland errors and nine walks.

In their second start the Northwomen were out-hit by Hibbing 19-2. Northland was charged with just one error, but 11 walks were sandwiched around the 19 Hibbing hits.

Northland scored twice in the first inning off Hibbing, with Kari Skoglund getting an RBI single. A passed ball scored the second run.

First Northwest Division game for the Northwomen will be played Wednesday when Northland will be in Brainerd for a 3 p.m. doubleheader.

Smokey Bear's Birthday

Forestry officials at the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources note that Smokey Bear will be observing his 40th birthday this year.

Created during the early days of World War II in response to fears that the Japanese would set fire to western forests, Smokey is considered one of the most successful symbols ever used in the promotion of a public service message.

Albert Staehle, a professional artist, painted the first poster featuring Smokey and named him after "Smokey Joe" Martin, the assistant chief of the New York Fire Department from 1919 to 1930.

The message "Only You Can Prevent Forest Fires" was created in 1947. Foresters say the effectiveness of the continuing Smokey Bear campaign has contributed to a reduction in burned forest and grass lands in the U.S. from 10 million acres in 1942 to only 3 million in 1981.

A live Smokey was obtained in 1950 after a wildfire swept through the Lincoln National Forest in New Mexico. Fire fighters, who had nearly lost their own lives in the blaze, found a badly burned bear cub clinging to a blackened tree and took it to a ranger station.

It's burns were treated and the bear survived to live at the National Zoo in Washington D.C. where it became and living symbol of Smokey and forest fire prevention.

Forest Campgrounds

Two popular state forest campgrounds in northeastern Minnesota have been scheduled for major improvement and reconstruction this summer by the Department of Natural Resources.

Finland and Eckbeck campgrounds located on Highway 1 in Lake county near the town of Finland "will be operated as normally as possible during reconstruction," said a forestry official.

He said that if improvement work being done at one of the campgrounds prevents use of the campsites, visitors will be directed to the other campground.

Both of the campgrounds are located a short distance from the North Shore Drive (Highway 61).

Improvements will include graveling and grading of the campground roads and parking spurs, better toilet facilities, planting of vegetation to screen campsites, respacing of campsites, and some minor rehabilitation projects. The number of campsites will not be increased.

Funds to pay for the improvements were provided through the Legislative Commission on Minesota Resources, which finances projects with monies derived from a tax on cigarettes.

Flood Insurance

A standard homeowner's property insurance policy does not provide coverage against flood loss, the Department of Natural Resources said, and urged Minnesota residents to "assess their exposure to flood loss and weigh the benefits of purchasing flood insurance in a timely fashion."

Officials pointed out that there is a five day waiting period for a flood insurance policy to take effect. They also noted that the snow melt has already started and the thunderstorm season is yet to come.

Flood insurance can be purchased for a structure or its contents through the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP), provided the property to be insured is located in a community participating in the NFIP. Community eligibility in the NFIP is established by municipal government for incorporated areas and county government for unincorporated areas. (Hassen Township in Hennepin county and White Bear Township in Ramsey county are the only townships in Minnesota enrolled in the NFIP separately from county eligibility.)

An individual (including renters) can purchase flood insurance from the NFIP through any property agent or broker licensed to sell property insurance in Minnesota. Those interested in purchasing flood insurance should contact a local insurance agent or broker, or call the NFIP toll-free at 1-800-638-6620.

Following informational materials are available from the DNR free of charge: "Questions and Answers on the National Flood Insurance Program"; "Preparing for Floods"; "Preparing to Evacuate"; and "It's Time To Clean Up".

All requests and general questions concerning flooding can be directed to the DNR, Division of Waters at Box 32, Centennial Office Building, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155, or by calling toll-free 1-800-652-9747 and requesting the state operator to connect the call to 296-9226.

Water Level At Hayes Lake Is At Past Depth

Hayes Lake, located in Hayes Lake State Park south of Roseau has filled to its normal depth, report park officials.

A project to improve oxygen levels this past winter had forced the lowering of the lake by ten feet. According to Dan Fischer, park manager, once the spring thaw came, the lake refilled within a few days.

Water is now going over Hayes Dam at a good rate. As snow disappears from the woods, the water will slow.

Hayes Lake level is controlled by opening and closing a three foot culvert type gate. Readings taken this past week indicated that oxygen levels are now increasing. A fish stocking program will begin this summer, insuring continued good fishing.

A project to construct a boat and canoe ramp in the area of the dam, is to begin this spring. The new ramp will make the lake more easily accessible for rowboats and canoes. As in past years, motors will not be allowed on the lake.

For information on the lake or on the park and it's facilities, contact park headquarters at 425-7504.

Colonial Waterbird Inventory Updated

An inventory of colonial waterbird nesting sites in Minnesota has been compiled and up-dated by the nongame wildlife program in the Department of Natural Resources. Colonial waterbirds are species that nest in high concentrations in trees, over water and on land. Herons, egrets and cormorants are all included.

New figures include 161 active colonies throughout all but the extreme northeast and southwest corners of the state. Great Blue Herons nest at 127 locations, making it the most common colonial waterbird in Minnesota. These and other sites also support nesting populations of Great Egrets, Black-crowned Night Herons and Double-crested Cormorants.

While many colonies have remained relatively stable in size and species composition over the past several years, others have undergone major changes. Perhaps the most dramatic change has been a nearly 100-fold increase in the number of double-crested cormorants nesting at a site in central Minnesota. This parallels the steady increase in cormorants that has been observed recently throughout the Great Lakes. Counteracting such increases, several large colonies sustained heavy damage last summer when high winds knocked down numerous nesting trees.

Data on these colonies is collected periodically by private citizens and state and federal wildlife biologists. The data is compiled by the nongame wildlife program where it is mapped, entered into a computer and summarized as part of its wildlife data storage system.

This data enables the nongame wildlife program to provide better protection for these beautiful waterbirds than has ever been possible before. This project has been funded by donations to the nongame wildlife checkoff on Minnesota's tax forms.

Legal Notices

April 16, 1984
Notice of Request for Location & Design Approval

Notice is hereby given that the District Headquarters of the Minnesota Department of Transportation is requesting approval from the Commissioner of Transportation for the location and design features for the reconstruction of Trunk Highway 59 between Atlantic Ave. and First Street in Thief River Falls and improvements to Bridge No. 5327 over the Red Lake River consistent with changes to the roadway.

The project will involve complete reconstruction of the roadway with the same basic design as the existing roadway. Changes to the existing design will be as follows:

1. Two lanes for eastbound traffic will be carried from Atlantic Avenue to First Street. Two lanes for westbound traffic will be carried from First Street to Davis Avenue. The outside lane will be carried through to provide a right turn lane onto Atlantic Avenue.

2. The Red Lake Avenue access to T.H. 59 will be closed and a cul-de-sac will be constructed at its terminus. Davis Avenue will remain as the intersecting avenue with T.H. 59.

3. The Pine Avenue and Mussey Street accesses to T.H. 59 will be closed and a cul-de-sac will be constructed at the terminus of Pine Avenue north of T.H. 59. A right angle crossing will be developed just east of Spruce Avenue to connect with Spruce Avenue to the south and Pine Avenue to the north.

4. Traffic lanes along the entire section will be 12 feet wide.

5. Sidewalks will be replaced on both sides from Atlantic Avenue to Kendall Avenue. New sidewalks will be constructed from Birch Lane Drive to First St. north of the roadway and from Crocker Avenue to Merriam Avenue south of the roadway. All other existing sidewalks will remain.

Improvements to Bridge No. 5327 will involve widening the bridge on the existing piers to provide a 52 foot driving surface and two 6 foot sidewalks. The widening will take place half at a time so traffic can be maintained during construction.

Traffic will be maintained on Trunk Highway 59 during construction to provide for an emergency vehicle crossing of the Red Lake River during the construction period.

Approximately 0.61 acres of additional right of way will be required for this project, mostly in the area of the new intersection in the Spruce and Pine Avenue area.

The storm sewer system beneath the roadway will be replaced as part of this project.

Cost participation from the City will be required in the construction of the storm sewer system, outside curb and gutter, sidewalks, driveways and approaches.

The project report, along with other pertinent data, is available for public review at the District Headquarters in Bemidji. The proposed letting date for this project is February 22, 1985.

The following Board members were present: Arnt Aune, Paul Bortnem, Archie Cameron, Myrle Carlson, Hank Hallstrom, Greg Pribula, and Harry Sjulson. Also present was Robert Block, Superintendent.

Chairman Harry Sjulson called the meeting to order at 6:30 p.m. and Clerk Arnt Aune established that a quorum was present.

There being no corrections or additions, the Minutes of the February 27, 1984 Regular Board Meeting were approved as presented.

A motion was made by G. Pribula and seconded by A. Cameron to approve the bills as submitted. Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by H. Hallstrom and seconded by M. Carlson to approve the financial report for the period ending 2-29-84 as presented. Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by G. Pribula and seconded by M. Carlson to approve the facility use request from the Pennington County DFL Party to use the Lincoln Cafeteria for a political caucus on March 20, 1984 at a cost of $35 plus custodial overtime, if any. Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by A. Cameron and seconded by H. Hallstrom to approve the facility use request from the Pennington County DFL Party to use the Lincoln Cafeteria for a DFL meeting on April 8, 1984 at a cost of $35 plus $13.11-hour for custodial overtime. Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by P. Bortnem and seconded by M. Carlson to approve a subcommittee consisting of Harry Sjulson, Hank Hallstrom, and Myrle Carlson with Dr. Ruberto as Advisor and Spokesman and Arnt Aune as alternate to negotiate with the six Teamster and Bus Drivers units. Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by A. Cameron and seconded by H. Hallstrom to approve a subcommittee consisting of Greg Pribula, Paul Bortnem, and Archie Cameron with Superintendent Block as Advisor and Spokesman and Arnt Aune as alternate to negotiate with the Supervisors and Managers. Motion carried unanimously.

Superintendent Block discussed with the Board recommendations that the Facilities Advisory Committee have made concerning Lincoln. Their recommendations include keeping the high school at its present location and adding on to and remodeling the facility; the Center School to remain where it is; a bond issue of $5.5 to $6 million; class organization of K-5, 6-8 and 9-12 to remain as is; and the suggestion of an overpass over Highway 32 for Center School students as being too expensive. The Facilities Committee asked the Board for their direction in the possibility of acquiring additional property around Lincoln.

The Regular Meeting was recessed at 7:05 p.m. to hold a Meet and Confer Session and reconvened at 7:10 p.m.

A motion was made by H. Hallstrom and seconded by M. Carlson to approve the 1984-85 K-12 calendar as presented. Motion carried unanimously.

The Board continued their discussion on the Facilities Committee recommendations. Board members agreed to the recommendation to keep the high school at its present location; however, concern was expressed in keeping the Center School where it is at. Board consensus was that the committee further study the costs of moving the Center School to the Lincoln location. The Board felt the $5.5 to $6 million figure was reasonable and that, class organization should stay the same. They were not in favor of an overpass. A Board subcommittee consisting of Archie Cameron, Hank Hallstrom, and Arnt Aune was established to consider the possibility of acquiring property around Lincoln.

Funded by a grant from the Blandin Foundation, Grand Rapids, the fellowship is open to principals employed in the north central, northeastern and northwestern regions of Minnesota.

More than 400 principals in these regions are eligible for the fellowship. Soine and Novak were among 20 principals selected as fellows of the program during the 1984-85 program cycle. Selection to the fellowship is considered an honor and a unique opportunity for professional education.

The fellowship program is premised on the belief that the principal is the key factor in the effectiveness of the school, and that the principal can be an important community leader. The program developers believe it is a good investment in education and in the community to build the leadership abilities of the principal.

Novak and Soine have attended the program orientation meeting and completed a workshop held in April. They will complete other intensive workshops in July, December and February and design and carry out individual study projects which will be of benefit to their schools. Fellowship members and staff will be available to assist with the projects and fellowship grants will be available to assist with the projects and fellowship grants will be available to facilitate the projects. Both will complete the fellowship program in September of 1985.

Speakers and trainers will work with the program fellows during 20 days of intensive workshops spread over the coming year. The program fellows will also spend many hours working on independent study and developing and completing their school projects. The program staff states that accepting the invitation to the Principals Fellowship program shows a great deal of dedication to education and to one's schools.

Stumpf Joins Tax Bill Vote

Citing the need to "balance significant tax relief with fiscal stability," State Senator LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer Thursday evening cast his vote in favor of the 1984 omnibus tax bill. He said the bill includes major property tax relief for small business, homeowners and farmers statewide, as well as the January 1 repeal of the income surtax.

"This is a good bill, a fair bill, and a bill that recognizes both the need for major tax relief and responsible state spending," Stumpf said. The tax bill was approved by all members of the Senate late Thursday evening on a 67-0 vote, following some intensive debate on the "business climate" issue.

"While there has been a lot of bad-mouthing of the state's business climate over the past few weeks," Stumpf said, "we all believe that this bill will speak for itself in what it does to improve the business climate of Minnesota over the next few years."

Senator Stumpf noted that a recent series of Minneapolis Tribune articles concerning the state's economic picture, published following a seven-month study, indicated that Minnesota's economy has continued to improve much faster than the rest of the nation and is among the leaders in the 24 northern tier states.

"The conclusions of this study point out that Minnesota's economic outlook is especially good, and that the unfair criticism that's been leveled at our state, mostly for political purposes, is unjustified, unwarranted and simply not supported by the facts," Stumpf said.

The tax bill approved by the Senate Thursday would repeal the 10 per cent income tax surcharge, effective Jan. 1, 1984 ($325 million); provide $17.5 million in property tax

Pre-Schoolers Visitation To Be Scheduled

On Wednesday, April 25, and Thursday, April 26, Thief River Falls public schools will be hosting kindergarten visitation days, to allow prospective kindergarten students for the 1984-85 school year, and their parents, a chance to meet their teacher.

At that pre-scheduled visit, records relating to pre-school screening and kindergarten roundup will be shared with the parents and plans made for the following school year.

While these future students are visiting classrooms, the current kindergarten children will be attending a movie at the Galaxie Twin theater, arranged with the cooperation of Jerry Hickerson, owner.

School officials express hope that allowing children to see their classroom prior to fall will make them more comfortable when entering school and more at ease with the surroundings.

Parents who have not been contacted concerning kindergarten visitation day should call 681-2700, extension 301.

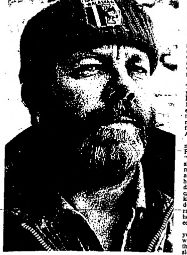
Paulsen Trains For 1,000 Mile Dog Sled Race



by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

"You look back over your shoulder and there's a team of nine black dogs quietly closing the gap between you. The Eskimo driver's only command is a squeek through pursed lips that means 'Go around that white man up there'. Then 'whoosh' and they glide on past, the driver waves and they disappear in the distance and you're once again all alone in the whiteness of the Alaska tundra."

Gary Paulsen, who lived in Thief River Falls for about six years and graduated from Lincoln high school here in 1957, was telling of one of his experiences on the Iditarod trail, a 1,000 mile dog team race across the wilderness from Anchorage to Nome, Alaska.

"That Eskimo driver passed me three times on the race," Paulsen emphasized, "grinning and wearing a T-shirt while I was freezing in my parka. But the Eskimoes are subsistence people and not highly competitive. The next day I would catch up to him in camp where he had stopped to kill a few ptarmigan or a deer. He could have won the race with the team he had, but he didn't have the competitive edge to win."

What was Paulsen, a 43-year-old struggling author with a wife and son, doing in the longest, most grueling dog sled race ever devised? He was learning — about the country he traversed, about the limits of his physical and mental endurance, and more about dogs than most people could ever learn in a lifetime.

"I know a lot about dogs," he says, not boastingly but as a matter of undisputed fact. "I can look at them and tell if they're happy or unhappy, if they've got a cold, if they're hurting, where they hurt, even what they're going to do. I live with them. I'm a part of them. There is no other way, absolutely none, that you can learn more about dogs than by running the Iditarod."

When Paulsen says he lives with the dogs it isn't merely a figure of speech. This fall and winter he will do just that, sleeping in the area where the dogs are staked out, sharing with them the rain storms, blizzards, training runs and other experiences which makes him a part of the pack.

"I'm the Alpha male," he says of his role. "I'm the dominant member of the pack. It has to be that way. When I get new dogs and introduce them to the team I establish that role by bending my head over theirs and biting them on the ear. It sounds weird, but it is pack behavior they understad. I have a commitment to them and they have a commitment to me."

Familiarity with his dogs is more than just a fondness for them. It can well be a matter of life and death. When you are hundreds of miles from civilization in the whiteness of the Alaska tundra, winds are blowing 60 miles per hour and the temperature is 40 degrees below zero, survival depends on response from the team. The dogs must have confidence in their leaders.

Furthermore, the bond between Paulsen and his team's individual dogs is an important factor in the race. Rules of the Iditarod are strict and are rigidly enforced to protect the dogs. Veterinarians are at every checkpoint to check the dogs' condition. Dogs judged incapable of continuing must be left at the checkpoint and they are flown back to Anchorage. A driver must reach the checkpoint with all of the dogs he had at the previous checkpoint.

"If a dog gets loose and you can't catch it, you're out of the race," Paulsen said. "I have to know that I can catch all of my dogs. When you are out on the trail, your very life depends on that piece of rope no bigger than your little finger that connects your dogs to your sled. And when you near the latter stages of the race your mind is reduced to primitive reactions and you have to react fast or you can die. The more you can interact with your dogs, the better chance all have to survive, much less to win."

Paulsen is an author, having published 57 books, primarily for children. His most recent ALERT AND ACTIVE, these sled dogs from Gary Paulsen's pack are happiest when running in harness. In the foreground is "Cookie", the nine-year-old female which Paulsen used as a lead dog in his first Iditarod trail race in Alaska. The dog in the background will be one of the lead dogs on Paulson's second assault on the trail in 1985. A 1957 graduate of Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls and a resident of this community for about six years prior to his graduation, Paulsen (pictured at left) now lives with his wife Ruth and 14-year-old son Jim about 20 miles northeast of Clearbrook. He has about 23 dogs at his place now and will select 12 or 14 from among them for the 1,000 mile Iditarod race cross-country from Anchorage to Nome, Alaska. "Cookie" will not run the race this year but three of her pups are likely candidates for the team.

John Greenwalds Are At Home At Maplewood

Mr. and Mrs. John Nicholas Greenwald are at home at Maplewood, near The Cities, following an exchange of marriage vows at the Immanuel Lutheran church at Plummer, and a two week ski trip to Aspen, Colo.

The bride, the former Melanie Joan Skjerven, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Skjerven of Plummer. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Howard Greenwald, also of Plummer.

Rev. Tim Miller and Rev. Laurn Vernig officiated at the ecumenical five-o'clock, candlelight ceremony. At the organ was Linda Hesse, a friend of the couple. Selections rendered by the vocalists Deb Koskela and Dee Ann Houtari, were "For Baby, For Bobbie", "The Wedding Song", "My Endless Love", and "Up Where You Belong". Acolytes were Jerry Skjerven, brother of the bride, and Shannon Fisher, a neighbor of the bride's family. Wedding programs were distributed by Eric Petersen, New York, a cousin of the bride.

Forming the chancel setting were candelabra with ivory boughs accented with a red rose. Matching bows graced the hurricane globes, marking the pews. On the altar were two bouquets of blue carnations, gifts from the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. James Peterson of New York.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, was attired in the Chantilly lace and satin floor-length gown worn by her mother 24 years ago. The gown was styled with a fitted bodice with a scalloped neckline and long lace sleeves which came to a point over her wrists. A wreath of ivory roses and babies' breath held her veil, made by the bride. She carried a bouquet of red roses, white snowflake carnations and blue babies' breath. Her bouquet, like all the bouquets, corsages, boutonnieres and centerpieces were made by the bride's sister, Kathy Helmbrecht of Grand Rapids.

Kathy Helmbrecht also served as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Jodi Pahlen, Thief River Falls, Diane Anderson, Twin Valley, friends of the couple; and Karen Skjerven, Plummer, sister of the bride. They wore blue taffeta floor-length gowns featuring ruffled skirts. At the neckline were gold and pearl necklaces, gifts from the bride. Their headpieces were wreaths of blue and ivory roses and babies' breath, accented in back by blue and white ribbon streamers which flowed to the waistline. They carried three long-stemmed blue roses with babies' breath and blue ribbon.

Tricia Willett, Plummer, a friend of the couple, was flower girl. She wore a long-sleeved, ankle-length, ivory colored gown, complemented by a headpiece, similar to those worn by the bridesmaids. Her gold bracelet was a gift from the bride.

Ringbearer was Chancey Greenwald, Stacey, a nephew of the groom. Like the groom, he wore a silver tuxedo, with tails, and a red rose boutonniere.

Serving as best man was Jerry Fisher, Santa Ana, Calif., a friend of the couple. Groomsmen were Tim Pahlen, Plummer, a friend; Mike Skjerven, Plummer, a brother of the bride; and Randy Helmbrecht, Grand Rapids, brother-in-law of the bride. The ushers were Ron Fischer, Grand Rapids, and Craig Pahlen and Randy Konickson of Plummer, friends of the couple. All wore silver tuxedos with blue roses pinned on their lapels.

The mother of the bride wore a blue street-length dress with a pleated skirt. The groom's mother was attired in a light brown street-length dress topped by a matching jacket. Both carried a long-stemmed red rose, gifts from the bride and groom. Their corsages were of blue roses and babies' breath.

Honor guests were LeRoy Skjerven, Plummer, Jean McCrary, Thief River Falls, Irvin and Loretta Flatgard, Oklee, godparents of the bride; Sherry Wayne and Jerry Gerardy, godparents of the groom; and Lynae Johnson, Thief River Falls; and Rebecca Willett, Plummer, the bride's personal attendants.

Mike and Sandy Greenwald, brother and sister-in-law of the groom, were host and hostess at the reception which followed in the church parlors. Cathy Hagerty, Santa Ana, Calif., a friend, was at the guest book. Ladling punch were Lisa Johnson and Missy Martin, Moorhead, friends of the bride.

The four-tiered pedestal wedding cake was decorated in blue and topped with a "Precious Moments" bride and groom. Between the tall Grecian pillars which supported the cake was a flowing fountain. At the base were two double tiered cakes connected to the main cake by stairways which also descended to heart shaped cakes, inscribed with the names of the couple. On the steps were miniature members of the bridal party. The cake was cut and served by Jolayne Simpson and Sherry Wayne, sisters of the groom. The bride's aunts, Elaine Mattison, Fairview, Mont., and Gayle Peterson, New York, poured the coffee. Waitresses were Kelly Jesme, Nancy Jo Hesse, Betty Heden and Ericka Trietline, all of Plummer. P.J. Peterson, New York, cousin of the bride, and Cheryl Greenwald, a niece of the groom, arranged the gifts.

The bride is a graduate of Plummer high school, Northland Community college and Moorhead State University; and the groom is a graduate of Plummer high school and the Thief River Falls AVTI, carpentry course. He is employed as service technician by Sears Roebuck, company. Photo, Alice Hofstad, Plummer

WCTU Prepares For YTE Week April 22-28

At the meeting of the Alice Mae Stuart Thief River Falls Women's Christian Temperance union held Friday afternoon at the Riverside Terrace community room, members discussed the observance of Youth Temperance Education (YTE) week.

It was noted that in a recent proclamation by Minnesota Governor Rudy Perpich, the observance is scheduled for April 22 through April 28. In preparation for the event, the local unit packaged literature to be distributed to the local churches and schools.

Packets included the pamphlets "One in three American drinkers become alcoholic", "Social drinking, debit or credit", "The Church member confronts the alcohol problem", "Prohibition, the way it was", "Ten reasons why I abstain", "75 Bible references on drinking", "Prohibition success", and a copy of the YTE week proclamation signed by Governor Perpich.

Also in reference to youth, the posters made in Don Lerud's art class were judged. Selected as first, second and third place winners, respectively, were Brett Olson, Jennifer Davidson and Kelly Mack.

The theme of the program was "Challenge of Youth", with Mrs. Olga Larson giving the devotional meditation. She read Matt. 16:21-28, stressing verse 26, "For what is a man profited if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul?"—In explaining God's plan of salvation, she said that all the wonders of heaven and earth are wrapped up in the word, "Come". Jesus used that word when he raised Lazarus from the dead, and it is used in II Corin. 6:17 "Wherefor come out from among them and be ye separate". She said that when Christians separate themselves from unbelievers and the works of the devil it must be done in a spirit of humility and love. She concluded by saying that although the youth face many trials and temptations in life today, it is possible with the help of the Lord to live in a sinful world and yet not be of the world.

Stumpf Joins In Unanimous Tax Bill Vote

relief to farmers, homeowners and small businesses; and would increase the state's budget reserve to $375 million to guard against future economic downturns, Stumpf said.

A special "tax amnesty" program plan not included in the House version of the bill was also rolled into the Senate's tax bill, Stumpf said. This provision would forgive delinquent taxpayers 80 per cent, up to $1,000, of their penalties for filing state income taxes, and they would be given three months to make restitution.

The tax package, which Stumpf says was developed by DFL legislative leaders in the Senate and House and by Governor Perpich, includes about $53 million for economic development and $28 million in shifts to help ease school district cash flow problems.

Another $15 million is earmarked for agricultural property tax relief aimed at farmers, small businesses and homeowners, and the sales tax rate would be reduced from six to four per cent on new industrial equipment ($12 million).

Miscellaneous tax reductions of $5 million, including various tax simplification items, would be added to the package after they are agreed to by the respective tax committees, Stumpf added.

"A compelling case has been made, with the announcement of this surplus, along with other economic information, for this one-time major tax relief initiative," Stumpf continued.

Additionally, the plan calls for another $30 million to be added to the MEED (emergency jobs) program to provide more private and public jobs to unemployed Minnesotans, with another $60 million proposed by the governor to clear up miscellaneous spending obligations.

"I should reemphasize that this one-time tax cut plan is based on some uncertainties over the impact of the federal deficit and what some experts are predicting will be problems in 1986 and beyond," Stumpf said.

"What this plan does not do is mortgage the future of this state and the next budget, as some of our legislative critics would have us do. It provides immediate, across-the-board tax relief and aid. In sum, it is a balanced package directed at improving all segments of our state," Stumpf said.

In a special session of district court before Judge Warren A. Saetre on April 16, three more criminal cases were heard which resulted in conviction and sentencing.

Steven Ray Carlson, Star Route, Karlstad, pleaded guilty to aggravated driving while intoxicated. Gross DWI charges were dismissed. He was sentenced to one year in jail with release authorized for long-term alcohol treatment.

James Lee Stallmo, East Grand Forks, pleaded guilty to furnishing alcoholic beverages to a minor. Sentence was set at $100 or 10 days in jail.

LIZ WIGAND, Thief River Falls, master designer at The Barbers, received this trophy for serving as a judge for the 36th annual Upper Midwest Hairshow, sponsored by the American Master Barbers and Beauticians Association (AMBBA) recently in Brooklyn Park. Students and professionals from a five-state area were judged on men's and women's hairstyling skills, with an additional class for professionals on children's hairstyles.

Paulsen Trains For 1,000 Mile Dog Sled Race

book, "Dancing Carl", is now being produced for regional television presentation. He has also supplemented his writing with carpentry, truck driving, farming, teaching at the University of Colorado and whatever else was available to earn a living. He has finally advanced to the point financially where, as his wife Ruth explains it, "when we meet a friend downtown we can occasionally offer to buy the coffee".

As a result of having been able to evade affluence, Paulsen has sought and is receiving strong support for his second attempt at the Iditarod. The city of Bemidji has adopted the project with the Jaycees spearheading the effort to obtain approximately $10,000 in cash or supplies and equipment. Nick Klaers of Nick's Red Owl in Bemidji has been a sponsor for two and one-half years, providing 400 pounds of meat scraps a week to feed Paulsen's dogs.

Last year when Paulsen ran the Iditarod, he had almost no dogs of his own. He went to dog owners and asked for dogs to use and generally received their culls. These dogs were sold in Alaska after he completed the race and the money given to the owners. He arrived in Nome after the 1,000 mile run with $8 in his pocket and no way to get home. He sold one of his dogs for $700 to get plane fare.

This year Paulsen has a number of his own dogs, including three pups from "Cookie," the nine-year-old female which was his lead dog on his first race. But a mainstay of his team will also be Alaskan and Canadian dogs which he has borrowed and which become valuable by their very ability to complete the race.

"This time I asked the owners for their best dogs," Paulsen said. "Now I have a much better team than a year ago. There are some great dogs here. I think we're going to be a machine that can challenge for the top spot. I would be a fool to say I'll win, but I think I have a chance."

The Iditarod has become a legend in only 11 years of existence. It is run along an old dog team freight trail from Anchorage to Nome where sleds with 1,500 pounds of freight were pulled 20 miles a day and dogs were dropped off and new dogs picked up in relays, similarly to what was done with horses on western stagecoach lines.

The race commemorates a mercy mission which was run to bring smallpox serum to Nome which was threatened with an epidemic that could have wiped out the city. The only way to get the serum through was by dog team.

Paulsen isn't a weekend racer like many dogsledders are. Aside from the 1983 Iditarod, the only race he has entered was a 200-miler that he needed to qualify for the Iditarod.

He got his first dogs five years ago when he became incensed at the rise in petroleum prices, decided he could do without a motor vehicle, and swapped his car for a rifle. He was living near Solway at that time and used the four cull dogs he was given whenever he wanted to go to Bemidji or to a neighbor's house to play cards. The family used dogs exclusively for two winters as their only means of transportation.

His idea to run the Iditarod began taking shape, he became more and more committed to it, and finally he had gone so far there was no turning back. His dogs were tuned for the race, he said, and he owed it to them and to others to make the effort.

He went to Alaska early to train for the race and learned that in Alaska the word "tough" has an entirely different meaning. He went out on an 80-mile loop accompanying a snow machine on one training run with his race advisor operating the snow machine. Upon the return, the advisor said, "Now, right now, take those same dogs and go out there and run it again. Then you'll know how you have a chance of being in the condition you're going to need."

"There is one point in the race," Paulsen said, "where you come off the Bering Sea and go straight up over the top of a mountain. It's seven miles from where you leave the sea until you get to the top. When I got there I said to the other driver who was making the climb with me that I was scared. I wasn't breathing hard and my legs didn't hurt. Something must be wrong. But it was just that you can condition yourself physically to take the wear and tear to an unbelievable degree."

The first year the Iditarod was run, there were 26 racers entered and the winner reached Nome in 26 days. Last year there were 73 entries and the winner ran it in 12 days. Paulsen finished in 17 days and 14 hours in his first try, but slowed down toward the end when he knew he couldn't finish in the top 20. Only the top 20 racers share in the $100,000 prize money. The slow down cost him about 10 places in the finishing order.

John Greenwalds Are At Home At Maplewood

Mr. and Mrs. John Nicholas Greenwald are at home at Maplewood, near The Cities, following an exchange of marriage vows at the Immanuel Lutheran church at Plummer, and a two week ski trip to Aspen, Colo.

The bride, the former Melanie Joan Skjerven, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Skjerven of Plummer. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Howard Greenwald, also of Plummer.

Rev. Tim Miller and Rev. Laurn Vernig officiated at the ecumenical five-o'clock, candlelight ceremony. At the organ was Linda Hesse, a friend of the couple. Selections rendered by the vocalists Deb Koskela and Dee Ann Houtari, were "For Baby, For Bobbie", "The Wedding Song", "My Endless Love", and "Up Where You Belong". Acolytes were Jerry Skjerven, brother of the bride, and Shannon Fisher, a neighbor of the bride's family. Wedding programs were distributed by Eric Petersen, New York, a cousin of the bride.

Forming the chancel setting were candelabra with ivory boughs accented with a red rose. Matching bows graced the hurricane globes, marking the pews. On the altar were two bouquets of blue carnations, gifts from the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. James Peterson of New York.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, was attired in the Chantilly lace and satin floor-length gown worn by her mother 24 years ago. The gown was styled with a fitted bodice with a scalloped neckline and long lace sleeves which came to a point over her wrists. A wreath of ivory roses and babies' breath held her veil, made by the bride. She carried a bouquet of red roses, white snowflake carnations and blue babies' breath. Her bouquet, like all the bouquets, corsages, boutonnieres and centerpieces were made by the bride's sister, Kathy Helmbrecht of Grand Rapids.

Kathy Helmbrecht also served as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Jodi Pahlen, Thief River Falls, Diane Anderson, Twin Valley, friends of the couple; and Karen Skjerven, Plummer, sister of the bride. They wore blue taffeta floor-length gowns featuring ruffled skirts. At the neckline were gold and pearl necklaces, gifts from the bride. Their headpieces were wreaths of blue and ivory roses and babies' breath, accented in back by blue and white ribbon streamers which flowed to the waistline. They carried three long-stemmed blue roses with babies' breath and blue ribbon.

Tricia Willett, Plummer, a friend of the couple, was flower girl. She wore a long-sleeved, ankle-length, ivory colored gown, complemented by a headpiece, similar to those worn by the bridesmaids. Her gold bracelet was a gift from the bride.

Ringbearer was Chancey Greenwald, Stacey, a nephew of the groom. Like the groom, he wore a silver tuxedo, with tails, and a red rose boutonniere.

Serving as best man was Jerry Fisher, Santa Ana, Calif., a friend of the couple. Groomsmen were Tim Pahlen, Plummer, a friend; Mike Skjerven, Plummer, a brother of the bride; and Randy Helmbrecht, Grand Rapids, brother-in-law of the bride. The ushers were Ron Fischer, Grand Rapids, and Craig Pahlen and Randy Konickson of Plummer, friends of the couple. All wore silver tuxedos with blue roses pinned on their lapels.

The mother of the bride wore a blue street-length dress with a pleated skirt. The groom's mother was attired in a light brown street-length dress topped by a matching jacket. Both carried a long-stemmed red rose, gifts from the bride and groom. Their corsages were of blue roses and babies' breath.

Honor guests were LeRoy Skjerven, Plummer, Jean McCrary, Thief River Falls, Irvin and Loretta Flatgard, Oklee, godparents of the bride; Sherry Wayne and Jerry Gerardy, godparents of the groom; and Lynae Johnson, Thief River Falls; and Rebecca Willett, Plummer, the bride's personal attendants.

Mike and Sandy Greenwald, brother and sister-in-law of the groom, were host and hostess at the reception which followed in the church parlors. Cathy Hagerty, Santa Ana, Calif., a friend, was at the guest book. Ladling punch were Lisa Johnson and Missy Martin, Moorhead, friends of the bride.

The four-tiered pedestal wedding cake was decorated in blue and topped with a "Precious Moments" bride and groom. Between the tall Grecian pillars which supported the cake was a flowing fountain. At the base were two double tiered cakes connected to the main cake by stairways which also descended to heart shaped cakes, inscribed with the names of the couple. On the steps were miniature members of the bridal party. The cake was cut and served by Jolayne Simpson and Sherry Wayne, sisters of the groom. The bride's aunts, Elaine Mattison, Fairview, Mont., and Gayle Peterson, New York, poured the coffee.

Waitresses were Kelly Jesme, Nancy Jo Hesse, Betty Heden and Ericka Trietline, all of Plummer. P.J. Peterson, New York, cousin of the bride, and Cheryl Greenwald, a niece of the groom, arranged the gifts.

The bride is a graduate of Plummer high school, Northland Community college and Moorhead State University; and the groom is a graduate of Plummer high school and the Thief River Falls AVTI, carpentry course. He is employed as service technician by Sears Roebuck, company. Photo, Alice Hofstad, Plummer

WCTU Prepares For YTE Week April 22-28

At the meeting of the Alice Mae Stuart Thief River Falls Women's Christian Temperance union held Friday afternoon at the Riverside Terrace community room, members discussed the observance of Youth Temperance Education (YTE) week.

It was noted that in a recent proclamation by Minnesota Governor Rudy Perpich, the observance is scheduled for April 22 through April 28. In preparation for the event, the local unit packaged literature to be distributed to the local churches and schools.

Packets included the pamphlets "One in three American drinkers become alcoholic", "Social drinking, debit or credit", "The Church member confronts the alcohol problem", "Prohibition, the way it was", "Ten reasons why I abstain", "75 Bible references on drinking", "Prohibition success", and a copy of the YTE week proclamation signed by Governor Perpich.

Also in reference to youth, the posters made in Don Lerud's art class were judged. Selected as first, second and third place winners, respectively, were Brett Olson, Jennifer Davidson and Kelly Mack.

The theme of the program was "Challenge of Youth", with Mrs. Olga Larson giving the devotional meditation. She read Matt. 16:21-28, stressing verse 26, "For what is a man profited if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" In explaining God's plan of salvation, she said that all the wonders of heaven and earth are wrapped up in the word, "Come". Jesus used that word when he raised Lazarus from the dead, and it is used in II Corin. 6:17 "Wherefor come out from among them and be ye separate". She said that when Christians separate themselves from unbelievers and the works of the devil it must be done in a spirit of humility and love. She concluded by saying that although the youth face many trials and temptations in life today, it is possible with the help of the Lord to live in a sinful world and yet not be of the world.

Stumpf Joins In Unanimous Tax Bill Vote

relief to farmers, homeowners and small businesses; and would increase the state's budget reserve to $375 million to guard against future economic downturns, Stumpf said.

A special "tax amnesty" program plan not included in the House version of the bill was also rolled into the Senate's tax bill, Stumpf said. This provision would forgive delinquent taxpayers 80 per cent, up to $1,000, of their penalties for filing state income taxes, and they would be given three months to make restitution.

The tax package, which Stumpf says was developed by DFL legislative leaders in the Senate and House and by Governor Perpich, includes about $53 million for economic development and $28 million in shifts to help ease school district cash flow problems.

Another $15 million is earmarked for agricultural property tax relief aimed at farmers, small businesses and homeowners, and the sales tax rate would be reduced from six to four per cent on new industrial equipment ($12 million).

Miscellaneous tax reductions of $5 million, including various tax simplification items, would be added to the package after they are agreed to by the respective tax committees, Stumpf added.

"A compelling case has been made, with the announcement of this surplus, along with other economic information, for this one-time major tax relief initiative," Stumpf continued.

Additionally, the plan calls for another $30 million to be added to the MEED (emergency jobs) program to provide more private and public jobs to unemployed Minnesotans, with another $60 million proposed by the governor to clear up miscellaneous spending obligations.

"I should reemphasize that this one-time tax cut plan is based on some uncertainties over the impact of the federal deficit and what some experts are predicting will be problems in 1986 and beyond," Stumpf said.

"What this plan does not do is mortgage the future of this state and the next budget, as some of our legislative critics would have us do. It provides immediate, across-the-board tax relief and aid. In sum, it is a balanced package directed at improving all segments of our state," Stumpf said.

In a special session of district court before Judge Warren A. Saetre on April 16, three more criminal cases were heard which resulted in conviction and sentencing.

LIZ WIGAND, Thief River Falls, master designed at The Barbers, received this trophy for serving as a judge for the 36th annual Upper Midwest Hairshow, sponsored by the American Master Barbers and Beauticians Association (AMBBA) recently in Brooklyn Park. Students and professionals from a five-state area were judged on men's and women's hairstyling skills, with an additional class for professionals on children's hairstyles.

book, "Dancing Carl", is now being produced for regional television presentation. He has also supplemented his writing with carpentry, truck driving, farming, teaching at the University of Colorado and whatever else was available to earn a living. He has finally advanced to the point financially where, as his wife Ruth explains it, "when we meet a friend downtown we can occasionally offer to buy the coffee".

As a result of having been able to evade affluence, Paulsen has sought and is receiving strong support for his second attempt at the Iditarod. The city of Bemidji has adopted the project with the Jaycees spearheading the effort to obtain approximately $10,000 in cash or supplies and equipment. Nick Klaers of Nick's Red Owl in Bemidji has been a sponsor for two and one-half years, providing 400 pounds of meat scraps a week to feed Paulsen's dogs.

Last year when Paulsen ran the Iditarod, he had almost no dogs of his own. He went to dog owners and asked for dogs to use and generally received their culls. These dogs were sold in Alaska after he completed the race and the money given to the owners. He arrived in Nome after the 1,000 mile run with $8 in his pocket and no way to get home. He sold one of his dogs for $700 to get plane fare.

This year Paulsen has a number of his own dogs, including three pups from "Cookie," the nine-year-old female which was his lead dog on his first race. But a mainstay of his team will also be Alaskan and Canadian dogs which he has borrowed and which become valuable by their very ability to complete the race.

"This time I asked the owners for their best dogs," Paulsen said. "Now I have a much better team than a year ago. There are some great dogs here. I think we're going to be a machine that can challenge for the top spot. I would be a fool to say I'll win, but I think I have a chance."

The Iditarod has become a legend in only 11 years of existence. It is run along an old dog team freight trail from Anchorage to Nome where sleds with 1,500 pounds of freight were pulled 20 miles a day and dogs were dropped off and new dogs picked up in relays, similarly to what was done with horses on western stagecoach lines.

The race commemorates a mercy mission which was run to bring smallpox serum to ~~Nome~~ which was threatened with an epidemic that could have wiped out the city. The only way to get the serum through was by dog team.

Paulsen isn't a weekend racer like many dogsledders are. Aside from the 1983 Iditarod, the only race he has entered was a 200-miler that he needed to qualify for the Iditarod.

He got his first dogs five years ago when he became incensed at the rise in petroleum prices, decided he could do without a motor vehicle, and swapped his car for a rifle. He was living near Solway at that time and used the four cull dogs he was given whenever he wanted to go to Bemidji or to a neighbor's house to play cards. The family used dogs exclusively for two winters as their only means of transportation.

His idea to run the Iditarod began taking shape, he became more and more committed to it, and finally he had gone so far there was no turning back. His dogs were tuned for the race, he said, and he owed it to them and to others to make the effort.

He went to Alaska early to train for the race and learned that in Alaska the word "tough" has an entirely different meaning. He went out on an 80-mile loop accompanying a snow machine on one training run with his race advisor operating the snow machine. Upon the return, the advisor said, "Now, right now, take those same dogs and go out there and run it again. Then you'll know how you have a chance of being in the condition you're going to need."

"There is one point in the race," Paulsen said, "where you come off the Bering Sea and go straight up over the top of a mountain. It's seven miles from where you leave the sea until you get to the top. When I got there I said to the other driver who was making the climb with me that I was scared. I wasn't breathing hard and my legs didn't hurt. Something must be wrong. But it was just that you can condition yourself physically to take the wear and tear to an unbelievable degree."

The first year the Iditarod was run, there were 26 racers entered and the winner reached Nome in 28 days. Last year there were 73 entries and the winner ran it in 12 days. Paulsen finished in 17 days and 14 hours in his first try, but slowed down toward the end when he knew he couldn't finish in the top 20. Only the top 20 racers share in the $100,000 prize money. The slow down cost him about 10 places in the finishing order.

DOT Explains Right Of Way Guidelines

The Minnesota department of transportation would like to remind the public that all activities on highway rights of way are regulated by the department.

According to Ron Studer, Mn-DOT land management engineer, highway right of way widths can vary from a minimum of 40 feet on each side of centerline to 200 feet or more in some areas. It is necessary that the department maintains ownership of this property so they can properly maintain existing highways and preserve room for future construction.

Within this right of way, many activities are prohibited by law; including the operation of any motor vehicle off the highway shoulder, cultivation of land for agricultural purposes, cutting of timber, and placement of "for sale" signs and advertising signs. The erection of any fences or structures is also prohibited.

According to Studer, people who illegally use highway right of way or destroy or remove the triangular right of way markets are guilty of a misdemeanor. These activities also cause a considerable expense for the department of transportation as they try to monitor and maintain nearly two thousand miles of property lines in northwest Minnesota alone.

Persons planning improvements to their properties bordering a highway should make sure that they know where the highway boundary is. If the location of the boundary is in doubt, or if a person has any questions about possible uses of right of way property, he should contact the Mn-DOT permit offices in Crookston (218) 281-3502, or Bemidji (218) 755-2942.

State Medical Ass'n. Board Favors Freeze

Minnesota Medical association board of trustees has endorsed the concept of the AMA's request that physicians voluntarily freeze their fees for one year. The MMA house of delegates will also have an opportunity to consider this at its meeting in early May.

In commenting on today's action by the MMA board, MMA president Donald C. Bell, M.D. cautioned, "It will be unfortunate if a physicians' fee freeze raises false hopes. Physician fees account for only 17.2 per cent of all health care expenses in Minnesota".

Hospital costs account for 42 per cent of the nation's health care bill, he said. In recent years, the cost of hospitalization has increased at a significantly faster rate than physician fees. Moreover, other personal health care expenses (including dental, drugs, vision care and other professional services) account for 20 per cent of health care expenditures in the state.

"The problem of health care costs is shared by all providers and consumers of health care to cooperatively consider ways to utilize health care more efficiently and cost-effectively", Dr. Bell added.

In the past year, over 2,000 physicians throughout the state have actively been involved in the association's program "Medical Care for the Unemployed", providing care to individuals who are unable to afford medical care. Dr. Bell noted, "This program is another indication of physicians' commitment to providing quality medical care regardless of the patients' ability to pay".

Dr. Bell added, "This is not a new issue. The MMA has been concerned about health care costs for many years. In 1978 the MMA established the Minnesota commission on health care costs. This commission issued its report in 1979. One of its major recommendations called for the establishment of the Minnesota coalition on health care costs. The MMA actively participates in this coalition of business, labor, consumers, payers and providers of health care in an effort to shape a cost-effective health care system for our state".

Farmer's Union Appoints Eken As President

Members of the Minnesota Farmers Union board of directors named Cambridge farmer Dennis Sjodin acting president, and named Minnesota House of Representatives majority Leader Willis Eken, Twin Valley, to become chief of the family farm organization August 1. Sjodin formerly served as MFU assistant to the president.

The position became available after former Minnesota Farmers Union president Cy Carpenter was elected to head the national Farmers Union. Carpenter resigned his state post in order to devote full-time attention to the national position. He had served as state president since 1972, and is the first Minnesotan to be elected NFU president.

NFU is organized in 24 states with 250,000 farming families as members. The organization represents its members and their policy statement in Congress and in other activities to promote agriculture and the rural community.

In Minnesota, the state Farmers Union has been an outspoken advocate of family agriculture, pushing for legislation to help young beginning farmers and to limit corporate ownership of farmland. In addition, the MFU has an extensive education service and works to promote coopreatives.

Minnesota is the location for several cooperatives that were started and are still strongly supported by Farmers Union members. Among them are the Farmers Union Central Exchange (CENEX), Harvest States Cooperatives, Farmers Union marketing and processing association, and the Farmers Union milk marketing cooperative.

Effective immediately, Sjodin will serve as acting MFU president through the summer months. MFU has more than 22,000 farm families as members.

"One of the very important issues that MFU will continue to stress this summer will be to put food and farm issues at the forefront of the Presidential and Congressional campaigns. The national elections are on everyone's minds, and we just feel it is very important to put the issues of food and farm into the discussion," Sjodin said.

Eken's selection as MFU president will become effective August 1. His involvement in the organization dates back to his youth, when he participated in the organization's educational classes and received the torchbearer's award. He has served as Fossum local Farmers Union president, and served on several MFU committees.

"I hope my 14 years of service as a member of the Minnesota legislature will produce similar increased visibility for the state's farmers at our state capitol. I strongly believe in the Farmers Union principles of education, legislation and cooperation and will continue to hold them as the hallmark of our efforts," Eken said.

Eken will serve from August 1 through the end of Carpenter's unexpired term, in November 1965.

CRUCIFIXION SCENE is among the Biblical events to be presented by Goodridge area churches in their Easter musical "Proclaim Him Lord". The musical will be presented Sunday at 8 p.m. in the Goodridge school gymnasium. Kent Kainz is cast in the role of Jesus and Rodney Haugen is one of the Roman soldiers. Public attendance at the musical is invited and there is no admission charge.

'U'M Alumni Reunions Are Set For May

The University of Minnesota classes of 1944 and 1934 — and all classes before 1934 — will hold reunions May 17 to 19.

Activities for all alumni include bus tours of the campus, a reception at the home of President C. Peter and Diane Skomars Magrath, a carnival on Northrop mall, open houses at the various colleges, visits to college classes and a reunion luncheon featuring slides showing the university campus in the 1930s and '40s.

The class of 1944 will hold a dinner in the Minneapolis club May 18. General college dean Jeanne Lupton, a member of the class of '44, will give a speech called "Then and Now at the U of M." Music from the 1940s will be provided by Jerry Mayeron and his band.

The class of 1934 will hold its dinner at the Minikahda club in Minneapolis May 18. William Sears, president of the class, will speak, as will the university's vice president for institutional relations, Stanley Kegler. Music will be provided by the University of Minnesota jazz ensemble.

The emeriti reunion dinner, which is open to alumni from all classes before 1934, will be held at the Town and Country club, St. Paul, on May 19. Master of ceremonies will be class of '27 institute of technology graduate Gordon Volkenant; alumni association director Steve Roszell and theater professor Robert Moulton will speak. University students will present musical selections from this summer's showboat play, "The Count of Monte Cristo."

For more information or to make reservations for any of these reunions, call Linda Jacobs at the Alumni Association at (612) 373-2466.

Bike Safety Week Is Set For May 6-12

In an attempt to keep the number of bicycle accidents down in 1984, Minnesota Governor Rudy Perpich has proclaimed May 6-12 as bike safety week.

Focusing special attention on bike safety early in the season is important because most bike accidents in Minnesota occur during late spring, summer and early fall months. Last year in Minnesota there were 14 bicycle fatalities and 1,193 bicycle crash injuries. Bicycle fatalities totaled 12 in 1982 and 10 in 1981. As of April 1 there were already three bicycle deaths while on the same date on 1983 no fatalities were yet recorded.

Young bike drivers continue to be involved in the most crashes. Bike drivers under 14 were involved in approximately 50 per cent of both death and injury producing crashes. 93 per cent of those killed in bike crashes and 68 per cent of those injured were under age 29.

Perhaps the most important safety advice for bicyclists is to be aware that bicycle accident reports reveal car and truck drivers have an apparent "blind spot" when it comes to observing bikes. That problem is enhanced by the fact that the most frequent bicycle law violations involve running stop signs, riding on the wrong side of the road and turn signal violations.

Commissioner of public safety Paul Tschida reminds bicyclists that while the same basic rules of the road and responsibilities apply to bicycle and other vehicle drivers on Minnesota streets, there are special rules just for bicycling. "At night the law requires that a bicycle have a white front light that can be seen 500 feet away. A red rear reflector is required as well. At least 20 inches of reflective material must be on each side of the bike or rider. The message in these regulations is that for bicyclists to be truly safe, they must be as visible as possible in all types of road and weather conditions," said Tschida.

Clean Air Week Set For May 7 To 13

Clean air and bicycle week which is dedicated to improving the air we breathe, will be obseved nationally May 7 to 13 this year.

Sponsored locally by the American Lung association of Minnesota, the continuing objective of clean air week is to reduce industrial and transportation - related pollution. Local bicycle groups such as the Minnesota coalition of bicyclists (MCB) are joining in by promoting bicycling as a non-polluting transportation alternative. MCB plans to culminate the week by staging a mass bicycle ride between Minneapolis and St. Paul on "cycle Sunday," May 13. (For bicycling information call MCB, 612-824-1363. American Youth Hostels, 612-375-1904, also sponsors recreational bicycle rides.)

American Lung association of Minnesota is emphasizing the health hazards of fuel switching and tampering with pollution control devices on automobiles. Fuel switching, also called misfueling, involves the introduction of leaded fuel into a vehicle originally equipped with a catalytic converter. Car tampering concerns the disablement of any component of an emission control system, whether the disablement happened deliberately, inadvertently, or through neglect.

Both practices are violations of federal law. Repair garages, service stations, fleet operators, muffler shops, and fuel distributors engaging in these activities are subject to heavy fines. And, according to a recent survey by the U.S. Environmental Protection agency, one out of every five cars with emission control systems did not meet minimum EPA standards.

Motorists who indulge in tampering and fuel switching often mistakenly believe that by using cheaper leaded gas they are saving money and also getting better car performance. Actually, neither is true. Leaded gas will cost them more in the long run. It dirties the oil, reduces spark plug life, corrodes the exhaust system, and destroys the car's pollution control device, the catalytic converter.

Noxious gasses emitted by autos — including hydrocarbons, carbon monoxide and nitrogen oxides — are harmful to all of us, but particularly affect children, the elderly, pregnant women and persons suffering from heart disease and serious lung diseases such as emphysema, chronic bronchitis and asthma. Some of the hydrocarbons are also known to cause cancer. It is estimated that unleaded gas used in cars with emission control systems reduce pollution by more than 90 per cent. Even so, this is not enough.

Besides using unleaded fuel and not tampering with modern pollution control systems, we must consider alternative, non-polluting forms of travel. Think of how many times you really could have walked or ridden a bicycle instead of running your car. For information on fuel switching-tampering and alternative forms of transportation, contact the American Lung Association of Minnesota, 614 Portland Avenue, St. Paul, or call 1-800-642-LUNG.

Property Tax Refund Help Is Available

Assistance in filing for 1983 Minnesota homeowner and renter property tax refunds will be available to East Marshall county residents at the following times and locations:

Wednesday, April 25, 10 to 11:30 a.m. at the Gatzke senior citizen center; and 1 to 3 p.m. at the Grygla community center; Thursday, April 26, 1 to 3 p.m. at the Strandquist community center; and Friday, April 27, 10 a.m. to noon at the Holt senior citizen center; and 1 to 3 p.m. at the Middle River community center.

Minnesota homeowners and renters may be entitled to property tax refunds even if they do not file an income tax return. Homeowners must have owned and lived in their home in January 2, 1984 to be eligible. Renters must have lived in units on which their landlords paid property taxes or payments in place of property taxes. Amoung of refunds will depend on amount of income and amount of property tax paid.

Information required to complete the return includes the following: amount of all household income, social security numbers, and a copy of the statement of property tax payable in 1984.

If property tax bills increased by more than 20 per cent from last year, owners may be eligible for a special property tax refund, and will also need copies of their statement of property tax payable in 1983, and 1982 property tax refund form M1PR (if they received a refund last year).

Renters should obtain a copy of form CRP from their landlord, which shows the share of property tax paid on the rental unit for 1983.

Mobile home owners who rent the land on which they are located should not file form M1PR until their receive their 1984 mobile home tax statement.

August 31 is the deadline for filing 1983 property tax refund returns without a penalty.

For further information call Karen Skadsem, outreach aide, at 222-3309.

BSU Conference On Canadian Studies Slated

The Canadian studies conference at Bemidji state university, "Manitoba's mosaic and Minnesota's melting pot," April 26-28, will feature three Canadian speakers.

The conference is designed to acquaint people with the multiculturalism of Manitoba and how it differs from the melting pot of immigrants in Minnesota.

Uma Parameswaran, cultual specialist from the University of Winnipeg, Kristjana Gunnars, writer and professor of English from the University of Manitoba and John Bumsted, historian from St. John's college in Manitoba, will participate in panel discussions at the conference.

The East Indian tiles on the mosaic of the Canadian people will be addressed by Parameswaran at 8 p.m. on April 26.

Gunnars will participate in the panel discussion at 3:50 p.m. April 26 detailing the subject of unique immigrants and mosaics versus melting pots. At 9:30 p.m. that evening she will read a selection of her poetry as will several other Manitoba writers.

The philosophy of the mosaic versus the melting pot will be addressed by Bumsted at 2:40 p.m. April 26. At 3:50 p.m. on April 27 he will speak on ethnocentrism and the global perspective.

Conference begins at 1 p.m. April 26 and continues until noon on April 28 in Hagg-Sauer hall, on the BSU campus. All events are open to the public and participants may register for one undergraduate or graduate credit.

INTENTIONAL DUPLICATE EXPOSURE

ON THE TRAINING TRAIL, Gary Paulsen gets a fast ride from four of his sled dogs. The wheeled cart is used when there is no snow for sleds, but is a poor substitute, Paulsen said. "I hate carts," he noted. "Riding a sled is a completely different feeling. Paulsen, a 1957 Lincoln high school graduate, has his home and does his training in the woods about 20 miles northeast of Clearbrook.

WATERING HIS DOGS after a brisk morning workout, Gary Paulsen is already in full-time training for the 1985 Iditarod sled-dog race, a 1,000-mile marathon from Anchorage to Nome, Alaska. The 1957 Lincoln high school graduate began working with sled dogs only five years ago, ran and finished the grueling race in 1983, and found the emotional high too much to resist trying again. He now has about 23 dogs at his residence in the woods about 20 miles northeast of Clearbrook where the rolling countryside permits him to work with the dogs on uphill climbs, building muscle and endurance for the Iditarod race. The dogs are constantly tethered and during the fall and winter Gary will sleep in the yard with the pack, building confidence in himself among the dogs as the "Alpha male", the dominant leader who fulfills his role as commander, protector, disciplinarian and partner. Since sled dogs from Alaska prefer to eat snow for moisture, they must be taught to drink water or they will become dehydrated on the longer races.

THIS IS THE VIEW a rider has when being pulled by sled dogs. One racer in the 1,000-mile Iditarod race from Anchorage to Nome, Alaska, told fellow races Gary Paulsen his opinion of the scenery on the spectacular run. "All I saw was dogs' rear ends (not his exact words) for a thousand miles," he said. To some extent Paulsen agrees, noting that a driver's mind is reduced to almost primitive instincts and he is so tuned to the welfare of his dogs that he has little comprehension of his surroundings.

OVERTURNED CART serves as an anchor while these dogs take a breather during a morning run. The four dogs pulled the cart and two men up and down hill with apparent ease during a run Tuesday morning. A lead dog which does a good job of "tightening up", or keeping the rope attached to the cart or sled stretched out, is a great help, according to racer Gary Paulsen. If the rope is tight, he notes, it is much easier to work with the remaining dogs and maintain order in the string.

WHEN A MUSHER has the luxury of riding a sled instead of running with it, he rides on the back of the runners as Gary Paulsen shows here. Paulsen builds his own sleds, using white ash from a friend's mill, and will use four sleds in his 1985 participation in the Iditarod 1,000-mile sled dog race from Anchorage to Nome, Alaska. Most of the sled's construction involves joints being tied with nylon rope rather than fastened with screws. Objective is to have a unit that will flex without breaking as it travels over rough terrain.

THIS IS "COOKIE", the nine-year-old female which was Gary Paulsen's lead dog on his 1983 Iditarod adventure. Three of "Cookie's" pups will be in the 12 to 14-dog team which Paulsen will use to run the race again in 1985. "We've been trying to make a house dog out of her," Paulsen says of the dog which is still kenneled outside with the remainder of the pack. "But she doesn't know the rules. . . she keeps trying to eat the cat!"

TAKING A BREATHER after a morning run, these two sled dogs rest on command as part of their training. The wheel in the background is on a cart which the dogs pull during their snowless training. It is tipped on its side as the dogs rest to provide an anchor against their leaving with it. The dogs are run in teams of four or five for conditioning during the spring and summer and will be hitched in larger teams with heavier weight to pull into the fall and winter.

Heat Shut-Offs May Be Halted By DES Funding

Minnesota department of economic security is immediately making $2 million available to help low-income Minnesotans avoid heat shut-offs, which most utilities delay until April 15 when the Public Utilities Commission's cold weather rule expires.

To qualify for this energy crisis assistance, low-income households must have had their utilities turned off, received notice of a pending shut-off or been refused delivery of fuel.

To apply for funds, persons should contact local agencies operating energy assistance program, such as, Inter-County Community Council, Oklee. Application deadline is May 31.

Local energy assistance programs will help households negotiate payment schedules with utilities or fuel companies. The agency then will make direct payments to the utility or fuel provider.

Funds are being allocated throughout Minnesota to 52 agencies, including 27 community action agencies, 13 county social service agencies, 11 Indian reservations and the Minnesota migrant council.

More information regarding the use and distribution of these funds can be obtained locally from Inter-County Community Council, Inc., Oklee; telephone 796-5144.

State Auditor Issues Report On Counties

State Auditor Arne Carlson has released his annual report detailing revenues, expenditures and debt of counties in Minnesota for 1982.

"In 1982, state and federal funds to counties decreased for the first time in seven years," Carlson said. He noted that revenues from state and federal government remain the single largest source of county funds. Intergovernmental revenues totaled $768.2 million, 51.7 per cent of county revenues in 1982, compared to 56.1 per cent in 1981.

"Property taxes totaled $485.2 million, an increase of 15.6 per cent over 1981. Charges for services of $72 million, increased 12.5 per cent over 1981. Interest earnings totaled $70.6 million, up 7.7 per cent over 1981.

Carlson noted that county expenditures increased 2.6 per cent from 1981 to 1982 and 42 per cent since 1978. Minnesota counties spent a total of $1.43 billion during calendar year 1982.

"County expenditures in 1982 rose by $35.5 million over 1981," Carlson said. General government expenditures show the largest increase, going from $177.2 million in 1981 to $201.4 million in 1982, which is a 13.7 per cent increase.

Carlson said the three largest county expenses by function are welfare, streets and highways, and general government.

"Welfare payments totaling $629.8 million are the largest single expense, accounting for 44.1 per cent of total expenditures in 1982. County welfare expenditures declined $21 million from 1981."

"Streets and highways are second with $261.2 million, which is 18.3 per cent of total expenditures. General government is third."

The report also includes the counties' total bonded indebtedness, which was $183.6 million as of Dec. 31, 1982. This is an increase of 0.5 per cent over 1981.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

In an editorial by Ted Storck, president of the KTRF-KSNR Radio Corporation, recently aired on that station, Mr. Storck made certain comments that I'd like to clarify concerning the Department of Natural Resources' recent denial of a permit application from the city of Thief River Falls for excavation of the channel near Finsbury park.

As the area hydrologist for the Department of Natural Resources, Division of Waters, I was directly involved in the review of the city's permit application and made recommendations for its denial.

Briefly describing the proposed project, the city applied for a permit to excavate approximately 385 feet of an existing channel on the southeast side of Finsbury park and replace the culvert at the park entrance, measures which were to improve the flow of water through the channel from the Red Lake river in an attempt to eliminate mosquitoes.

The permit application explained that the city health official has determined the area to be a health hazard because it is a prime breeding area for insects, primarily the mosquito, Culex tarsalis, a carrier of Equine Encephalitis.

Finsbury park is situated on an inside river bend and is therefore subject to the natural buildup of sediments deposited from the Red Lake river. Aquatic vegetation growing in these areas is common because of the sediment and its nutrients.

At my recommendation, the park and recreation board asked the city's consulting engineers to perform a survey to determine if the channel cleanout work would eliminate the mosquitoes.

The engineers did the survey and concluded that the channel slope "for all practical purposes is flat"; that "velocity in a ditch of any cross-section will be less than desirable", that "this condition will require constant cleaning of debris and aquatic growth" and that "any obstructions in the ditch reduce the velocity even further to the point where you have standing stagnant water."

In addition, information obtained on the mosquito, Culex Tarsalis, indicated that it is the only mosquito known to be a vector of the western Equine Encephalitis disease and does not prefer to breed in these wetter (standing water) areas. The mosquito that breeds in these wetter areas is not known to be a vector of this disease.

Based on the information and comments I reviewed, it was my position and recommendation that the permit application be denied pursuant to the D.N.R.'s Minnesota Code of Agency Rules, 6 MCAR S 1.5022, Subdivision B.2., which states: "Excavation shall not be permitted where the excavation would not provide an effective solution to the problem because of recurrent sedimentation and there are feasible and practical alternative solutions which do not require excavation."

Sincerely,

-s- Donald R. Grasser

Two Mailbox Support Plans Are Available

The Minnesota department of transportation has developed two standard mailbox installations which are recommended for use along rural roads.

Use of either of these designs can speed up mail delivery, minimize damage from flying snow and allow plowing equipment to do a better job of clearing snow. This can result in a cost savings in mail delivery as well as in road maintenance.

The two installation designs utilize a wood post or steel pipe and are simple, durable and inexpensive. Persons planning to replace their present mailbox or install a new box are urged to write for information to the Department of Transportation, Box 727, Bemidji, 56601.

Seminar On Defense Sales At Moorhead

Owners of small businesses in northwestern Minnesota will have a chance to hear from top government experts about opportunities to secure procurement contracts from the department of defense at a seminar sponsored by Congressman Arlan Stangeland.

The seminar will be held from 9 a.m. to 3:15 p.m. Thursday at the city hall in Moorhead.

"Minnesota's workers are well-trained and productive and our small businesses are efficient," Congressman Stangeland said. "We could save tax dollars if more defense contracts were given to these productive small firms.

"Government officials and business experts will give six presentations to small business owners, then individuals can seek advice from these experts after the seminar," the four-term House veteran said.

Among the featured presentations will be a talk about air force procurement methods from officials of the Grand Forks air force base, a workshop on securing defense contracts in areas with labor surpluses, and presentations by the small business administration, the general services administration, the Minnesota small business development center and the Moorhead state university small business development center.

"Minnesota's small businesses and workers can compete with anyone else in America when it comes to a quality product," Congressman Stangeland said. "Hopefully, the seminar will get our small firms in the running to nail down those contracts and create jobs in our area."

America's armed forces buy billions of dollars of uniforms, food, tools and small equipment.

"There is no reason that those purchases shouldn't have a "Made in Minnesota" label on them when they are delivered to the Pentagon," Congressman Stangeland said.

CAPITOL COMMENTARY

by LeRoy Stumpf

State Senator — District I

Since this is the final scheduled week of the 1984 State Legislative Session, we are concluding our work with a flourish, meeting in late evening and weekend sessions in a frantic attempt to conclude the 73rd Session of the Legislature by the April 20 tentative deadline, which could be extended one more week if necessary.

Almost 200 bills have been or are now being processed on the floor of the Senate, and it is likely that only a minority of these will be approved by session's end. In addition to this bill backlog on the Senate's "Special Orders Calendar," a number of major tax and spending bills are being determined in various conference committees held between House and Senate members to iron out their major differences.

This has been a very brief, hectic but productive session in terms of the consideration of major issues of importance to our state. Just last week, Governor Perpich signed the first bill into law (S.F. 1476), which would make changes in school board elections rules for school board elections. He will go on to sign many more in the weeks and months to come following our final adjournment.

I have personally been working toward the passage of a number of issues which I feel are important to our own area of the state, including bills that would: provide funding for railroad rehabilitation efforts statewide; provide additional state property tax relief to farmers, homeowners and small businesses; provide local related education loans to students or workers in medical institutions; study the expansion of Amtrack passenger service between Minnesota and Winnipeg, Manitoba; urge an accord between the DNR and the counties regarding public land acquisitions; and various bills that would improve the affordable loan opportunities for farmers to continue funding their family farm operations.

As Vice-Chairman of the Senate Education Committee, I have been closely involved with a bill that would restore lost aids and tax relief to local school districts, and increase the per-pupil allotment to school districts. As a member of the Local and Urban Government Committee, I have been involved with legislation to restore lost supplemental aid to local governments ($3.3 million) and have worked in my Transportation and Agriculture committee assignments to work toward the many goals I have previously stated.

In terms of major bills, we will be passing over $357 million in tax relief that will aid farmers, homeowners and small businesses, and we will be adequately funding our schools and approving other spending items that fall well-within the tight fiscal budgeting constraints we have previously established.

If you have any questions or concerns regarding this or any other legislative matter, please feel free to contact my office at: 306 Capitol Building, St. Paul, MN 55155, or call (612) 296-8660.

"PROCLAIM HIM LORD" is the Easter musical to be presented by Goodridge area churches in a combined effort Sunday at 8 p.m. in the Goodridge school gymnasium. Pictured above are members of the community choir and members of the cast which will portray events from Jesus' last week on earth. Public attendance is invited for the musical and there is no admission charge. Soloists will be Kent Kainz, Dan Brinkman, Tim Lundeen, Sheila Stenseth and Kay Hodgson. Director of the production is Susan Hoffman.

As provided by Part 652 of the Wagner-Peyser Act, 29 USC, 49 et. seq., the Minnesota Department of Economic Security wishes to announce the following substate allocations of funds received pursuant to the Act. Such allocations are for the period July 1, 1984, through June 30, 1985, and are made subject to the proper and efficient administration of the public employment service within the State and to the availability of funding resources.

Wagner-Peyser funds are received by the State in keeping with the State's proportionate share of the Nation's civilian labor force (weight ⅔) and unemployed (weight ⅓). Ninety per cent of the funds allocated within the State are based in turn upon the substate district's relative share of the State's civilian labor force and unemployed using the same weights. District is an organizational component of the Department of Economic Security.

Ten per cent of the funds are allocated within the State at the discretion of the Governor. Such sub-State allocations were made by Job Training, Partnership Act Service Delivery Area (SDA) and based upon the quotient resulting when the SDA's share of the State's unemployed is divided by the SDA's share of the State's civilian labor force.

Rudy Boschwitz

reports to Minnesota

Sometimes I think that if everyone ran their businesses like the Department of Defense runs its, we'd have absolutely no worries — and probably no business.

Maybe the way the Department of Defense (DOD) does business makes some kind of bureaucratic sense. But I've been a businessman a lot longer than I've been a Senator. Common sense tells me that when you've paid $440 for a plastic knob that cost $5 at the local hardware store, you've been had.

Here are a few other recently publicized samples of spare parts horror stories: $400 for an ordinary claw hammer; $94 for a $6 rubber door gasket; $153 for a $6 piece of bent sheet metal with three holes drilled in it. And the list goes on.

How can this happen? The answer lies in how DOD purchases spare parts. Or, more correctly, how it does not purchase them.

Last year, DOD awarded 13 million contracts worth about $140 billion. It spends $13 billion annually on spare parts alone. That's real money! But I can't decide which is more mind-boggling — the sheer magnitude of these numbers or the fact that 80 per cent of spare parts contracts are awarded without the inherent oversight of competitive bidding.

DOD's own Inspector General's studies show that competition would save 25 per cent. So you'd think they'd look for competition whenever possible.

This is the backdrop to a bill I've introduced with Senator Ted Kennedy and others that seeks to save government money in DOD spare parts procurement by increasing opportunities for small business.

My bill will stir up competition on spare parts contracts by assigning Small Business Adminstration (SBA) personnel to each DOD procurement center that spent at least $150 million on spare parts last year. They will identify possibilities for competition in spare parts contracts.

Each of these procurement center representatives (CR) will be assigned four technical advisors, one of whom must be an engineer. PCRs will look at contracts for all government agencies, not just DOD. However, the largest savings is expected to be on DOD contracts.

My bill offers cash incentives up to $5,000 to at least one PCR from each of the top two procurement centers with the highest percentage of cost savings in spare parts contracts.

By assigning personnel whose top priority goal is to "break out" contracts, we're ensuring that the purchasing codes will be thoroughly reviewed and competitive bidding will become important. By taking the PCRs from the SBAs we ensure that money will be saved because small business has been more competitive.

This idea has been used successfully in a test program at four Air Force Air Logistics Centers since 1979. The General Accounting Office (GAO) studied the programs and reached some compelling conclusions. It found that of some 328,000 spare parts assigned procurement method codes, 75 per cent were coded for purchase without competitive bidding.

The SBA personnel saved about $7.3 million by "breaking out" only 294 transactions. In a separate study, the SBA showed savings of $6.7 million — 38 per cent — when only 181 parts were broken out for small business competition. On top of that, the GAO believes that because of the limited nature of the SBA's study, the savings were probably even greater than the SBA reported.

On the basis of these studies and the GAO reports, my bill, when used nationwide could save $4 billion — each year!

While David Stockman warns us of $200 billion deficits "as far as the eye can see," it is critical that we spend defense dollars wisely.

Consequently, I am pushing hard for this legislation. We are planning hearings in April and hope to have it before the full Senate before summer.

CORRECTION

According to Mike Bauer, Fosston, a nephew of Rickey Hanson of Thief River Falls, incorrect information was published in an article in Monday's edition of the Times, regarding a motorcycle accident involving Hanson. Bauer notes that Hanson has transferred to St. Luke's hospital in Fargo, ND, rather than United hospital in Grand Forks, and claims that damage to the motorcycle was minor, rather than a total loss, as estimated by sheriff's officers.

MN Leads In Number Of New Incorporations

Secretary of State Joan Growe reported that new Minnesota business incorporations in the first quarter of 1984 were running 26 per cent ahead of 1983 and 51 per cent ahead of 1982.

Growe said, "At the current rate there will be a record 10,000 new corporations formed in the state this year compared to 8,202 in 1983 which was, itself, an all time record."

In addition, Growe pointed out that her office had granted authority to do business in Minnesota to 341 new out of state corporations in the first quarter. "This figure was up 37 per cent over the record pace of last year."

In a letter to Governor Perpich, the Minnesota legislature, and business and labor organizations, Growe questioned the validity of the charges that Minnesota has a poor business climate. "The hard evidence that so many new corporations have chosen to do business in Minnesota clearly does not support the charge that we have a poor business climate," she said.

Growe urged the business community and legislators to work with governor Perpich to promote the things that are good about the Minnesota business climate "instead of sending a continuous negative message to businesses in other states who might otherwise want to move here. Frankly, the charge of having a poor business climate might very well be a self-fulfilling prophecy."

Growe also released figures showing that Minnesota leads all other states in the region in the number of new incorporations during 1983.

Economic Farm Loan Program Funds Raised

Minnesota's allocation of funds for direct loans in the economic emergency farm loan program has been increased from $145,000 to $11,678,000, state director Russ Bjorhus of the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) announced recently.

The increase will be distributed through state offices of the FmHA, the U.S. department of agriculture's farm credit agency. Nationally, the direct loan portion of the $600 million economic emergency program was raised to a $310 million share.

Interest rates for direct loans obtained from FmHA county offices are 10.25 per cent on loans made for operating purposes and 10.75 per cent on loans made for real estate purposes.

Economic emergency loans are authorized for bona fide farmers and ranchers who are directly and primarily engaged in, and expect to continue in, agricultural production, are unable to get sufficient credit from their regular lenders, and need credit to maintain viable farming operations. FmHA can loan up to $400,000 to any one borrower under the economic emergency program.

Permitted use of loan funds include financing of 1984 crop production, purchasing essential livestock, feed and equipment, and paying delinquent installments on farm and real estate debts if a lender is demanding payment.

Energy Crisis Assistance Is Now Available

Minnesota department of economic security is immediately making available $2 million to help low-income Minnesotans avoid heat shut-offs, Gov. Rudy Perpich announced recently.

Most of the state's utilities delay heat shut-offs until April 15 when the public utilities commission's cold weather rule expires, states Ruth Ann Wefald, assistant commissioner in the department of economic security.

To qualify for this energy crisis assistance, low-income households must have had their utilities turned off or received notice of a pending shut-off or been refused delivery of fuel.

To apply for funds, persons should contact local agencies operating energy assistance programs. Application deadline is May 31.

Local energy assistance programs will help households negotiate payment schedules with utilities or fuel companies. The agency then will make direct payments to the utility or fuel provider.

Prowlers Begin Baseball Season

Lincoln high school baseball program begins its 32nd year Thursday when the Prowlers play a 4:30 p.m. season opener at Red Lake Falls.

Throughout the history of baseball at the school, which was recognized as a letter-winning sport for the first time in 1953, the Prowlers have had just two head coaches.

Ralph Skay coached the Prowlers 22 years, from 1953 through the 1974 season, and Charlie Cornell is beginning his tenth season as head coach in 1984. Cornell also served as an assistant coach under Skay for five years before succeeding him as head coach, making this his 15th season with the program.

Thief River Falls has had just three losing seasons in 31 years of high school baseball. The Prowlers dropped to 5-7 in 1970, were 4-10 in 1978 and slipped to 7-10 in 1981. The other 28 years they finished at .500 or better.

Among the better finishes for the Prowlers was a 16-2 Region 8 championship season in 1955 that also included a state consolation championship; a 17-3-1 Region 8 championship season in 1959; and a 16-2 champaign in 1966 that ended with a 4-2 loss to Roseau in the Region 8 tournament finals. Under Cornell, the Prowlers had a 13-5 season in 1977 that included a sub-region title that was followed by a 9-6 loss to St. Cloud Apollo in the Region 8AA tournament semifinals.

A year ago the Prowlers finished 10-6. A major goal in 1984 will be to extend their season in post-season play. The past three years the Prowlers have been eliminated in the first round of the North Sub-Region 8AA tournament, losing to Fergus Falls 8-7 in 1981 and by a one-sided 10-0 margin to the Otter in 1982, then falling to Crookston 4-0 a year ago.

Crookston is no longer a Region 8AA member. The Prowlers will be grouped with Moorhead, Fergus Falls, Detroit Lakes, Bemidji and Park Rapids in post-season tournament play.

Rustad Has Impressive Record

Thief River Falls' Mitch Rustad continues to enjoy a banner senior season with the University of North Dakota tennis team.

Rustad, playing No. 2 singles for the Sioux, carries an impressive 20-1 record this spring. His only loss was to Antonio Campana of Southeast Missouri State earlier this season by a 6-4, 5-3 margin. He was the only UND player to win three matches last weekend as the Sioux lost to nationally-ranked University of Tennessee-Martin 7-2, then beat Bradley University 9-0 and Northeast Missouri State 5-2.

Hopes of a team bid to the NCAA Division II national tournament apparently fell by the wayside with the loss to Tennessee-Martin, reported UND coach Arvid Skogerboe, but he said there is still an excellent chance that Rustad and Dean Rudrud of Grand Forks, the No. 1 singles player for the Sioux, who teams with Rustad to form UND's No. 1 doubles team, will be chosen for both singles and doubles play. Both were chosen last year. That decision will be made by a selection committee sometime in early May.

Rustad and Rudrud are 13-5 in doubles competition this year. Phil Burke of East Grand Forks, last year's Region 8AA singles champion, is 17-3 at No. 5 singles for the Sioux this spring.

In midseason Midwest Division II rankings announced this week, North Dakota is currently ranked fourth; Rudrud is ranked fourth in singles; Rustad is ranked 13th in singles; and the Rustad-Rudrud doubles combination is ranked fifth.

Miscellaneous

+ With the 1984 National Football League regular season schedale announced this week, a match-up of Vikings' schedule with that of the already-announced Minnesota Gophers 1984 schedule shows two corresponding weekend dates in the Metrodome when fans, particularly those arriving from a distance like from northwestern Minnesota, can catch a football doubleheader weekend in Minneapolis. Those Saturday-Sunday dates include a Sept. 29 Gophers game vs. Ohio State and a Sept. 30 Vikings game vs. Seattle; plus an Oct. 20 Gophers game vs. Northwestern and an Oct. 21 Vikings game vs. Detroit. Those Gopher games have 7 p.m. kickoffs. Both teams, of course, will be under the direction of new head coaches this fall — Lou Holtz of the Gophers and Les Steckel of the Vikings.

+ Just two 1983-84 Section 8 hockey high school seniors were signed to Division I national letters-of-intent when the signing date arrived last week, with Roseau's Paul Broten going to the University of Minnesota and Detroit Lakes' Bob Caulfield going to Miami of Ohio. "I feel Bob is a determined enough young man to play at Miami," Detroit Lakes hockey coach Duane Earnest told Ralph Anderson of the Becker County Record. "He has the potential to do well, although I do feel he needs more upper body strength. I'm certain he can develop that by lifting weights. He has the skating and puck-handling skills necessary to play at that level." Caulfield was selected by the New York Islanders in the NHL draft last summer.

TRF Opens Baseball Season At RLF Thursday

Guarded optimism will precede the Lincoln high school baseball team as the Prowlers open their 1984 season Thursday with a 4:30 p.m. game at Red Lake Falls.

"We've got some kids who have played a lot of ball, kids with a lot of experience," reported Thief River Falls coach Charlie Cornell. "Potentially we should be a pretty good ball club."

A 28-player Thief River Falls varsity-junior varsity roster includes eight seniors, six juniors, five sophomores, six freshmen and three eighth graders.

Senior Al Ness is serving as team captain. The other seniors are Ryan Bakke, Bill Benedict, Tim Bottem, Gary Cornell, Brian (Scott) Johnston, Todd Ortloff and Rick Spong.

As many as 15 of them are expected to get into Thursday's opener. The starting line-up will feature Johnston on the mound, Bakke behind the plate, Cornell at first base, Benedict at second base, Blankenfeld at third base, Bottem at shortstop, Drees in left field, Spong in center field and Ortloff in right field.

Drees, Ortloff, Huot, Nyland and Bottem are all available as pitchers behind Johnston, who has been impressive in early practice drills, according to Cornell.

Ness is currently sidelined with a sore shoulder and Nyland is bothered by a sore arm.

"The weather has been helpful," he noted. "We've had lots of opportunities to do things outdoors."

That included a Monday scrimmage against Northland community college, and Cornell was most impressed with the control shown by the Prowlers' pitchers. While satisfied with the pitching and the defense, he expresses concern over the constant uncertainity of the Prowlers' offense.

"Hitting is always the big question mark," acknowledged Cornell. "It makes a big difference if you hit the ball. If you hit, you score runs and you win games, it's that simple."

After opening at Red Lake Falls, the Prowlers will visit Ada next Tuesday. Then comes a string of six consecutive home games, beginning with a Thursday, April 26, home opener vs. Middle River, a 4:30 p.m. game at the fairgrounds diamond.

Thief River Falls can be expected to fare well during the course of the regular season with a schedule that includes mostly area Class A schools. The Prowlers' only North Sub-Region 8AA competition on the schedule includes a home game against Moorhead, plus a home-and-away series with Bemidji. They will also be involved in a four-team invitational tournament at Moorhead May 12.

How well the Prowlers fare against the likes of the Spuds and the Lumberjacks will determine how successful their 1984 season will be.

Duck Stamp Programs Save Waterfowl Habitat

By Madeleine Jacobs
Smithsonian News Service

People who knew Jay N. "Ding" Darling all agreed about one thing: He was for the birds — the ducks, geese and swans, that is.

In the 1930s, Darling — political cartoonist for the Des Moines Register, Pulitzer Prize winner and avid duck hunter — led the crusade to save the nation's dwindling flocks of waterfowl. Along with many conservationists, the native Iowan had become alarmed by the rapid decrease in wild ducks and geese, a result of indiscriminate hunting and the drainage of millions of acres of prime marshes to provide land for agricultural and urban development.

These wetlands had served as crucial nesting sites for migratory waterfowl in the north, as resting areas in the mid-Atlantic and as wintering areas in the south. A serious drought in the 1930s — the Dust Bowl years — further compounded the drainage problem, drying up many breeding areas in the north-central region of the United States and bringing waterfowl populations to the brink of disaster.

Congress had begun to react to the problem as early as 1929, when it passed the Migratory Bird Conservation Act. The law authorized a program of land acquisition for waterfowl refuges. But because of the Depression, money was never provided.

It was Darling who suggested the idea of a federal revenue stamp, to be required by all waterfowl hunters over the age of 16, to generate money for the land purchases. On March 16, 1934, Congress passed the Migratory Bird Hunting Stamp Act, and the "Duck Stamp" was born.

Soon after, President Franklin D. Roosevelt appointed Darling Chief of the U.S. Bureau of Biological Survey, the forerunner of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service of the Department of Interior. Though he held the post only 20 months, Darling launched an all-out effort to secure and develop wetlands. His very first contribution was the design for the inaugural Duck Stamp — a pair of alighting mallards, the most common duck in North America.

Duck stamp was an instant success. Some 635,000 of the first issue were sold, at $1 each. Those were the days when prime wetland habitat could be bought for as little as a dollar an acre in some areas. During the late 1930s and the 1940s, the Migratory Bird Conservation Commission, established by the 1929 act, approved the purchase or lease of vast tracts of such wetlands, focusing on the waterfowl production areas in the upper Midwest.

Until 1949, one of the nation's top wildlife illustrators was commissioned to prepare the duck stamp design. In that year, however, the duck stamp contest began. It is the federal government's only continuing art competition.

Number of entries has increased from a handful in 1949 to an astonishing 1,582 in 1983, when the 50th anniversary stamp design was chosen. The 1984-85 duck stamp, which sells for $7.50, will be issued on July 1, 1984.

From the beginning, the stamps pictured waterfowl in their natural surroundings. In 51 designs, 34 species of waterfowl — and one dog — have been featured. The dog, a Labrador retriever carrying a mallard in its mouth, appeared on the 1959-60 stamp. It was created by artist Maynard Reece, the only artist to win the competition five times.

Duck stamp contest has become something of a legend among wildlife artists. Although the winner receives only a sheet of stamps, in recent years sales of prints of the winning design to collectors have earned small fortunes for some artists.

Every year around contest time, July to October, there is a small flurry of activity at the Smithsonian's National Museum of American History, which has a complete set of duck stamp die proofs in its National Philatelic Collection. "Aspiring artists make appointments to see our collection," museum specialist Lowell Newman explains. "Often, they have never drawn anything in their lives. We always wish them the best of luck!"

Over the years, more than 89 million duck stamps (available at post offices and many wildlife refuges) have been sold to hunters and, increasingly, to non-hunters and stamp collectors, providing more than $285 million in revenue and contributing to the purchase of nearly 3.6 million acres of critical waterfowl habitat. The lands are part of the 90-million-acre National Wildlife Refuge System administered by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. Millions of Americans visit these refuges each year, awed by the sight of tens of thousands of colorful waterfowl and other wildlife. Ding Darling would be pleased.

FOR FIFTY years, sales of duck stamps to hunters, conservationists and collectors have provided money to purchase nearly 3.6 million acres of critical waterfowl habitat. "It was kind of disappointing," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Tim Olson. "Our times didn't improve."

"There was a lot of good competition," reported Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer. "It was a fun meet to be at. It would have been nice to have scored a few more points, but we had some really strong performances."

Schafer gave special praise to Michelle Puetz, who had a third place 1:03.7 clocking in the 400-meter dash, and to all three relay teams. Each unit — 3200, 1600 and 1600-meter medley relay — had a fourth place finish in closely-contested races.

Middle River-MCC Has Young Squad

A young Middle River-Marshall County Central cooperative high school baseball team lost a 10-0 season-opening game at Warroad Tuesday.

Winning pitcher Deon Hebel limited the visitors to just one hit — a third inning single up the middle by Jon Kragness.

Warroad collected seven hits. The Warriors jumped out to a 5-0 lead in the bottom of the first inning off starting pitcher Tom Neumann by combining three singles with three walks and two dropped fly ball errors.

Darin Rokke held Warroad scoreless through the third and fourth innings, but the Warriors struck for five more runs and a ten-run-rule decision off Kragness in the fifth.

"We're really young this year," admitted Middle River-Marshall County Central head coach Tom Neibauer of Middle River, who is working with assistant coach Sam Gebhart of Marshall County Central. The team's 13-player roster includes just one senior, one junior and three sophomores. The bulk of the roster is made up of eighth and ninth graders.

"This is definitely a rebuilding year," acknowledged Neibauer. "We're trying not to put too much emphasis on the wins and losses. We're just trying to teach fundamentals."

All home games — including a 4:30 p.m. home opener vs. Roseau Thursday — will be played at Newfolden.

Prairie Birds Are Focus of DNR Study

A major research project designed to identify problems threatening the survival of prairie birds is underway in western Minnesota.

Sandpipers, godwits, longspurs and other grassland species have declined dramatically since the turn of the century when the native tall-grass prairie was converted to farmland. Less than one-tenth of one per cent of Minnesota's original prairie habitat now remains.

Because of habitat loss, three prairie birds that formerly nested in Minnesota are no longer present. Others are now on the state's endangered species list.

Through the efforts of the Department of Natural Resources, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and The Nature Conservancy, many prairie remnants have been protected. Most sites, however, are small in acreage and are separated from each other by long distances. These and other problems impose new hazards to prairie birds. Nest predation, for example, is often considerably higher on small, isolated tracts.

Such problems may be further complicated by the need to carefully and intensively manage these remnants to maintain high quality grasslands. Fire, for example, is a frequently used management tool. A research study designed to investigate these issues is now underway. Support for the work is provided by The Nature Conservancy, private donations and the Minnesota nongame wildlife fund.

ARCHERY SKILL was one of the areas which 4-H leaders from the northwest part of the state learned about during a shooting sports seminar held recently in Thief River Falls. Leaders were trained in practical skills as well as methods of teaching young people. Pennington county leader Steve Mosloff practiced with the bow and arrow under the watchful eye of shooting sports leader Jim O'Reilly from Sherburne county.

Weight Training Draws Over 150

Over 150 athletes, coaches and parents registered at the weight training clinic held in the Lincoln high school auditorium Monday night.

Communities of Plummer, Karlstad, Fosston, Lake Bronson, Argyle, Halma and Thief River Falls were all represented.

Clinician Kurt Mattison from the Bigger - Faster - Stronger Weight Training system conducted the 3½-hour clinic. He stressed the importance of every boy and girl athlete setting personal attainable goals and working through this system to attain those goals.

He also strongly emphasized the point that weight training is for only those that want to be better than average.

If any athlete missed this clinic and wants to better themselves athletically contact one of the coaches at Lincoln and they will help them get started in the program.

Wetlands Maps Made Available Through FWS

Seen any good wetlands lately?

Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS) has spotted nearly 100 million acres of these fragile natural areas throughout the United States and has prepared the first in a series of national wetlands inventory maps to show their location.

These maps cover about 30 per cent of the Lower 48 States, or 900,000 square miles; six per cent of Alaska, an additional 30,000 square miles; and the entire state of Hawaii, 6,450 square miles. They include most of the wetland areas given the highest priority for mapping by the Interior Department — portions of the coastal zone, floodplains of major rivers, and the Midwest's "prairie pothole" region.

"These maps show many of the most sensitive and valuable natural areas in the United States," says Fish and Wildlife Service Director Robert Jantzen. "They provide the technical data about wetlands that people must have in order to make wise land management decisions."

Of the 215 million acres of wetlands that originally existed in the United States, the Fish and Wildlife Service now estimates that there are about 99 million acres left and that an additional 458,000 acres are lost to development, drainage, and agriculture each year — an area half the size of Rhode Island.

Wetlands are considered to be the most biologically productive lands on earth. They shelter and nuture fish, shellfish and migratory birds. They also provide natural flood and erosion control and help to purify water.

New wetlands maps were developed by the FWS national wetlands inventory project in St. Petersburg, Florida using stereoscopic analysis of high-altitude aerial photographs. This first series of nearly 10,000 maps covers portions of 46 states. Resembling large-scale blueprints, the maps show wetlands ranging in size from thousands of acres to less than one acre, and describe their geography, hydrology and vegetation. The primary products are maps at 1:24,000, 1:62,500, or 1:63,360 scales that display the location, shape and characteristics of wetlands on U.S. Geological Survey base maps. These maps provide useful data for site-specific projects in localized areas. Maps at a scale of 1:100,000 are also available for some areas.

Physical and biological information on these maps is based on a wetlands classification scheme developed by the Fish and Wildlife Service in 1979 that has since been adopted as a standard by many federal, state and local government agencies.

Copies of the new national wetland inventory maps may be ordered from the U.S. Geological Survey through any of the following National Cartographic Information Center offices: National Cartographic Information Center, U.S. Geological Survey, 507 National Center, Reston, Virginia 22092 (telephone: 703-860-6045); the Eastern Mapping Center in Reston, Virginia; the Mid-Continent Mapping Center in Rolla, Missouri; the Rocky Mountain Mapping Center in Denver, Colorado; the Western Mapping Center in Menlo Park, California; and the National Space Technology Laboratory in Bay St. Louis, Mississippi.

With nearly 10,000 maps currently available, persons desiring to place orders should consult the U.S. Geological Survey's map index for map names. Prices for the maps vary, and can be obtained by contacting any of the above offices.

DNR NEWS

Waterfowl Stamp Contest

Department of Natural Resources has announced that copies of the rules for the 1985 state migratory waterfowl stamp art contest are now available from the DNR Bureau of Information and Education.

Deadline for submitting entries is 4 p.m. September 17, 1984, and entries will be accepted starting Aug. 27. Officials noted that in previous years the deadline was two months later, in November, and at 12-noon.

Another change is that the use of any photographic process in the finished artwork will cause the entry to be declared ineligible.

Only Minnesota residents may enter the contest and artists receive no financial remuneration from the DNR for their work. All entries are returned to the artists following the contest. Judging will take place on Sept. 20.

Officials cautioned that no artist should enter the contest without first obtaining a copy of the printed rules from the Department of Natural Resources, Bureau of Information and Education, Box 46, Centennial Office Building, 658 Cedar Street, St. Paul, MN 55155; phone (612)-296-3336.

Tips For Boaters

Every spring, hundreds-of-thousands of boaters and fishermen take to Minnesota's lakes and rivers. For many it will be their first time as a boat owner, and they are confused as to what is required by law.

Kim Elverum, boat and water safety coordinator for the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR) noted that legal requirements vary depending upon size, type of craft, and where the boat is being used. He did note, however, that the following items are particularly important:

License — All boats must be registered with the DNR or in another state, and display the numbers and decals. Canoes, sailboats, paddleboats and sailboats have a special round decal, and non-motorized craft 9 feet or less in length are exempt.

Lifesaving devices — Every person on board a watercraft (except sailboards) must wear, or have a Coast Guard approved personal floatation (lifesaving) device readily accessible to them. The requirement in other states and federal waters differ, so check ahead.

Lights — Motorboats are required to have a red and green bow light and a white stern light. Non-motorized boats need only display a white light. Lights must be displayed from sunset to sunrise.

Fire extinguisher — Inboard and inboard-outdrive boats and those outboard craft with gasoline tanks built into the boat are required to carry a fire extinguisher. The number depends on the size of the boat.

Elverum noted that there were other requirements and urged boaters to obtain a copy of the Minnesota Boating Guide free, when they buy their boat license or at county sheriff's offices, DNR offices, by writing the DNR at Box 46, Centennial Building, St. Paul, MN 55155, or by calling 612-296-3336.

Receives Award

A Department of Natural Resources fisheries manager in southeastern Minnesota has received the highest award given by a Trout Unlimited chapter to an individual.

Mel Haugstad, Area Fisheries Supervisor, Lanesboro, was given the "Silver Trout Award" for 1984 on the 25th anniversary of Trout Unlimited (TU). The award was presented at the annual banquet of the Root River Chapter of Trout Unlimited, held in Austin on April 7.

In bestowing the award on Haugstad, state TU vice president Dave Peik said Haugstad had done an outstanding job for more than a decade protecting and improving trout streams in southeastern Minnesota.

Entry deadline for the eight-team, double-elimination tournament is May 4. Contact either Rhonda Ellefson at 253-2452 after 6 p.m. or Sandy Barbot at 253-4128.

Booster Club Will Not Meet On Thursday

There will be no Thursday noon luncheon meeting for the Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club this week because of the Easter schedule at the schools.

Weekly meetings will resume Thursday, April 26, when Northland community college baseball softball coaches Chet Engelman and Deb Jacobson will be the guest speakers.

Dog Obedience Class To Start

Last chance to enter the Agassiz Kennel Club's dog obedience classes will be at 7 p.m. Wednesday, April 25, at the warehouse behind the Big A Auto store on Highway 59 South in Thief River Falls.

This will be the first class, so participants should bring their dogs, along with a certificate proving that the animal has been vaccinated for rabies.

ND Basketball, Hockey Schools Have Openings

Openings remain in the University of North Dakota Summer Hockey and Basketball Schools, according to head coaches John Gasparini and Dave Gunther.

Gasparini said the hockey school has openings and urged parents to enroll their youths now to avoid disappointment. UND Summer Hockey School has seven one-week sessions: June 4-9, June 11-16, June 18-23, June 25-30, July 9-14, July 16-21 and July 23-28.

Information may be obtained from Gasparini by writing to Director, UND Summer Hockey School, University of North Dakota, Grand Forks, N.D. 58202, or by calling 701-777-2654. The school is open to youtns 9 years and up.

Gunther said he has openings in all four one-week sessions of the UND Summer Basketball School; June 3-8, June 10-15, June 17-22 and July 22-27.

Ants in each colony produce chemicals called pheromones (FER-uh-moans). These pheromones give each colony a special odor. When two ants meet, they touch and smell each other with their antennae. The odor tells them whether the other ant comes from the same colony or a different one, according to National Wildlife Association's Ranger Rick magazine.

Shooting Sports Training Hosted In Thief River

Two local participants, Eloise Wheeler and Steve Mosloff, joined parents and teens from throughout the northwest part of Minnesota for a 4-H shooting sports leader training session recently in Thief River Falls.

Pennington county 4-H hosted this two-day training, which covered 4-H philosophy, organizing and teaching a county shooting sports program, on-line use of air pistol and rifle, and archery training. Conservation practices and DNR firearm safety certification were also a part of this event.

Two local shooting sports resource-teachers, Dana Kloe and Bev Finke, helped give the presentations. DNR Specialist Perry Bollum of Bemidji gave the DNR certification course. Other instructors came from throughout the state, including: Marilyn Bergum, Anoka county; Jim O'Reilly, Sherburne county; wildlife biologist Keith Krail, Scott county; and state 4-H specialist Wayne Carlson, St. Paul.

Meals for participants are hosted by Sanders, Steiner, Happy Acres, Silverton, Smiley and Ridge Runners 4-H clubs.

4-H is a program of the University of Minnesota extension service open to youth ages 9-19 and all adults.

Swim-A-Thon At FMS Pool Is Set May 22

Super Swim, a Swim-A-Thon to benefit mentally retarded children and adults will be held on Tuesday, May 22 at the Franklin middle school pool.

The event will benefit the Association for Retarded Citizens (ARC) Minnesota. Swimmers are now seeking pledges for the number of widths of the pool they expect to swim.

Swimmers are eligible for prizes based on the number of sponsors pledging 1-cent or more. Prizes include Boom Box, first prize; 3-Way television, second prize; and AM-FM headphone radio, third prize.

Plus, everyone who raises $75 in pledges wins a trophy and everyone who raises $25 in pledges wins a Super Swim painters cap.

Swimmers can win more than one prize depending on how many pledges they have. Persons of all ages are welcome to participate in the Super Swim. Registration fee is free.

ARC Minnesota is an association of parents of retarded persons, professionals, and others interested in advocating for the rights of mentally retarded persons.

For pledge forms and further details, stop in at the Franklin middle school pool.

NOTICE
NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS —

Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received at the office of the Middle River Snake River Watershed District, 122 West Johnson Avenue, Warren, Minnesota until 4:00 P.M. o'clock on April 26, 1984 for the rental of fully operated excavation equipment. Proposals are being requested for dozers and crawler mounted draglines or backhoes. The draglines and backhoes may range from ¾ cubic yards and larger and must be equipped with a boom, bucket and counter weights appropriately matched for the type of machine. All equipment must be equipped with a Servis Recorder.

The works to be done consist of but is not limited to the clearing and disposal of trees and brush and the removal of sediment from drainage channels, disposal of rocks and the leveling of spoilbanks. The work required and the locations of the work will be designated by the engineer of the district.

The equipment must be modern and in good operating condition and furnished with capable and experienced operators. Deficient operations or maintenance which results in reduced production or poor workmanship will be cause for contract cancellation.

All equipment proposed will be considered and evaluated based on many factors including but not limited to the following: price, horsepower, machine rating, machine weight, track length, track width, track gauge, buckets available, boom lengths available and counterweights available.

Work will be paid by the hour and payment will be based on the time recorded on the Servis Recorder discs which must be turned over to the Engineer. Payments will be made on a monthly bases. The minimum hours per week will be 40 unless delayed by weather or equipment operating problems.

In addition to the payment for hourly work, the contractor will be eligible for a demobilization payment. The amount will be equivalent to 5 hours rental rate for each type of equipment authorized for use by the Engineer.

Demobilization payment will be included in the last payment for hourly work satisfactorily completed.

The District may cancel the contract at any time without cause by paying the demobilization payment.

The contractor may cancel the contract at any time without cause but forfeits the demobilization payment.

The type of equipment best suited for this project is dependent on the weather and other unknown job conditions. The district intends to rent equipment which in its opinion, will perform the required work at the least cost. Its evaluation factors will depend on conditions expected and the encountered which will likely change along the course of the work. The District will release and rent different equipment from time to time as it deems necessary to economically perform the required work.

The contractor, in making this proposal, promises to furnish the equipment listed for the prices shown subject to its availability. He does not promise to make or keep the equipment available to the district. He understands, however, the equipment availability may be a factor in the district's evaluation of equipment.

The contractor will be required to furnish certificates showing that he has workmans compensation insurance and liability insurance.

The Middle River-Snake River Watershed District reserves the right to reject any and all bids and to award contracts to other than the apparent low bidder.

Handling Child's Anger Can Be Puzzle To Adults

Handling children's anger can be puzzling, draining, and distressing for adults. In fact, one of the major problems in dealing with anger in children is the angry feelings that are often stirred up in us, according to personnel at the Northwestern mental health center in Crookston.

It has been said that parents, teachers, cousclors and administrators need to remind themselves that they were not always taught how to deal with anger as a fact of life during their own childhood. They were led to believe that to be angry was to be bad, and were often made to feel guilty for expressing anger.

It will be easier to deal with children's anger if we get rid of this notion, the mental health center spokesman said. The goal is not to repress or destroy angry feelings in children — or in ourselves — but rather to accept the feelings and to help channel and direct them to constructive ends. Some thoughts and suggestions follow.

Parents and teachers must allow children to feel all their feelings. Adult skills can then be directed toward showing children acceptable ways of expressing their feelings. Strong feelings cannot be denied, and angry outbursts should not always be viewed as a sign of serious problems; they should be recognized and treated with respect.

To respond effectively to overly aggressive behavior in children we need to have understanding about what may have triggered an outburst. Anger may be a defense to avoid painful feelings; it may be associated with failure, low self-esteem, and feelings of isolation; or it may be related to anxiety about situations over which the child has no control.

Angry defiance may also be associated with feelings of dependency, and anger may be associated with sadness and depression. In childhood, anger and sadness are very close to one another and it is important to remember that much of what an adult experiences as sadness is expressed by a child as anger.

Before we look at specific ways to manage aggressive and angry outbursts, several points should be highlighted:

+ We should distinguish between anger and aggression. Anger is a temporary emotional state caused by frustration; aggression is often and attempt to hurt a person or to destroy property.

+ Anger and aggression do not have to be dirty words. In other words, in looking at aggressive behavior in children, we must be carefull to distinguish between behavior that indicates emotional problems and behavior that is normal.

In dealing with angry children, our actions should be motivated by the need to protect and to teach, not by a desire to punish. Parents and teachers should show a child that they accept his or her feelings, while suggesting other ways to express the feelings. An adult might say, for example, "Let me tell you what some children would do in a situation like this. . ."

It is not enough to tell children what behaviors we find unacceptable. We must teach them acceptable ways of coping. Also, ways must be found to communicate what we expect of them. Contrary to popular opinion, punishment is not the most effective way to communicate to children what we expect of them.

Some of the following suggestions for dealing with the angry child were taken from "The Aggressive Child" by Fritz Redl and David Wineman. They should be considered helpful ideas and not be seen as a "bag of tricks."

Catch the child being good. Tell the child what behaviors please you. Respond to positive efforts and reinforce good behavior. An observing and sensitive parent will find coutless opportunities during the day to make such comments as, "I like the way you come in for dinner without being reminded" or "I appreciate your hanging up your clothes even though you were in a hurry to get out to play."

Similarly, teachers can positively reinforce good behavior with statements like, "I know it was difficult for you to wait your turn, and I'm pleased that you could do it."

Deliberately ignore inappropriate behavior that can be tolerated. This doesn't mean that you should ignore the child, just the behavior. The "ignoring" has to be planned and consistent. Even though this behavior may be tolerated, the child must recognize that it is inappropriate.

Provide physical outlets and other alternatives. It is important for children to have opportunities for physical exercise and movement, both at home and at school.

Manipulate the surroundings. Aggressive behavior can be encouraged by placing children in tough, tempting situations. We should try to plan the surroundings so that certain things are less apt to happen. Stop a "problem" activity and substitute, temporarily, a more desirable one. Sometimes rules and regulations, as well as physical space, may be too confining.

Use closeness and touching. Move physically closer to the child to curb his or her angry impulse. Young children are often calmed by having an adult nearby.

Express interest in the child's activities. Children naturally try to involve adults in what they are doing, and the adult is often annoyed at being bothered. Very young children (and children who are emotionally deprived) seem to need much more adult involvement in their interests.

A child about to use a toy or tool in a destructive way is sometimes easily stopped by an adult who expresses interest in having it shown to him. An outburst from an older child struggling with a difficult reading selection can be prevented by a caring adult who moves near the child to say, "Show me which words are giving you trouble."

Be ready to show affection. Sometimes all that is needed for any angry child to regain control is a sudden hug or other impulsive show of affection. Children with serious emotional problems, however, may have trouble accepting affection.

Ease tension through humor. Kidding the child out of a temper tantrum or outburst offers the child an opportunity to "Save face." However, it is important to distinguish between face-saving humor and sarcasm or teasing ridicule.

HEATING BILLS

With only two moving parts, Efficiency Boosters, such as those made by Carrier, capture waste heat that's normally lost up the chimney. Then it adds that heat to household air through a water transfer system.

Put your old, energy-eating gas furnace on a diet with a new furnace accessory that can make heating bills drop by over 20 percent.

What is Easter, Mommy?

"Is it the time when bunnies get born?" I looked at my little daughter, appalled.

Did she really think of Easter in terms of sugared eggs, fluffy bunnies and pretty candies? Had I given her the impression that for grownups Easter is a time for new clothes, flowered hats and fragrant corsages? Surely, at some time, I must have told her the real story of Easter. Or had I?

I was really flabbergasted at my negligence — it took my little daughter to make me realize it. I dismissed my house chores and sat down right then to tell her what hope this event brought for all of mankind — with its promise of eternal life.

I might add that the next week I enrolled my daughter in church school. And my husband and I started attending church again. We haven't missed a Sunday since.

CYCLING SUCCESS
MURRAY
FACTS FROM EXPERTS AT MURRAY . . .
OFFICIAL MANUFACTURER OF BICYCLES FOR THE 1984 OLYMPIC GAMES

Check Your Bike for Safe Operation

Inspect your bicycle tires frequently for wears and leaks.

Is your bicycle as safe as it should be? Whether you cycle in competition or just for fun, it's equally important that you check out your bike for safe operation regularly.

Here are some things that the experts say you should look out for:

Saddle—adjust frequently for comfort and growth. Tighten saddle and seat post nuts securely, leaving at least two and a half inches of seat post down in the frame.

Fenders—be sure they are undamaged and securely fastened.

Coaster brakes and hand brakes—check before your first ride. Must brake evenly every time, no slippage. You should periodically inspect and maintain brakes.

Chain—chain should be checked frequently for damage and stretch and be readjusted if necessary. It should be lubricated frequently with light oil.

Pedals—Be sure the shoulder of the pedal axle is securely tightened against the crank arm. If pedals become worn or damaged, replace them with reflectorized pedals.

Spokes—replace broken ones promptly. Keep them tight.

Handlebar and grips—Handlebar should be adjusted frequently for comfort and growth. Keep at least two and a half inches of handlebar stem down in the frame, then tighten it securely. Handlebar grips should fit snugly and worn ones should be replaced.

Tires—should be inspected frequently for wears and leaks. Remove imbedded stones, nails, glass, cinders, etc. Keep inflated to the correct pressure which is stamped on the sidewall of the tire. Wheels should rotate smoothly without wobbling from side to side. If necessary they should be realigned. Axle nuts should be kept tight.

Safety checks such as these, say champion cyclists such as the members of the Murray National Cycling team, (who hope to gain berths on the US cycling team at the 1984 Olympics) can keep you on the road to cycling safety.

Refreshments will be served and also time for fellowship.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

—by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

If you walk into a McDonald's Restaurant in New York City or Tuscon or Paris and order a Big Mac and fries, you know exactly what you will get. Advertising and the development of brand names for goods and services provide a great deal of information to consumers guaranteeing quality and consistency.

The use of trademarks or trade names works well for restaurants, designer jeans and hotels.

But what happens when we walk into the polling booth on Election Day, November 6, 1984, and see before us the names of candidates for federal, state and local office, and they are labeled Republicans and Democrats? Just what do those party labels mean?

Looking at the present Congress we can answer, "very little."

There are Republicans who support higher government spending and feel they should be the tax collectors for the liberal welfare programs, and there are some Democrats who truly believe in limited government and economic freedom and growth. The two parties may have tendencies in one direction or the other, but neither party demonstrates a consistent commitment to one principle.

Perhaps this is why the number of Americans who consider themselves Independents has been steadily increasing for years. Why belong to a party if it doesn't mean anything? That the parties have become ideologically impotent also leads to crossover voting. For instance, voters who wish to vote for low-tax, pro-growth candidates can select politicians of both parties. To vote a straight party ticket only guarantees that some rotten apples will sneak in with the good.

The inconsistencies are within each political party today and have occurred over time. In 1932 Herbert Hoover ran for president on the Republican ticket as the candidate who raised taxes, increased spending and pushed through protectionist legislation. Franklin Delano Roosevelt ran as the low-tax, anti-protectionist, cut-the-budget alternative.

During the 1930s the two parties switched sides on the economic issues.

There are in the United States, and indeed the world, two predominant competing control. Our two political parties should reflect that dichotomy.

Imagine for a moment that you patronized an ice cream shop, and whenever you ordered vanilla, the clerk handed you a chocolate ice cream cone. Well, that is what has been happening to the American people when they vote for politicians who promise one thing and deliver the opposite. It is time for fundamental reform.

In fairness to American voters, and in the spirit of truth-in-advertising laws, the two parties should decide that one of them will be the low-tax, limited government party, and the other will represent the high-tax, big-government position. The conservatives within the Democractic Party and the liberals within the Republican Party should either convert the majority faction of their respective parties or leave and join their philosophical soul mates in the other party.

Congressmen Phil Gramm of Texas and Andy Ireland of Florida decided that they could no longer remain in the Democractic Party under its present liberal leadership. They could not reform their party, so they left to become Republicans. John Lindsay, the former liberal Republican mayor of New York City, joined the Democractic Party when he felt he could no longer remain in the Republican Party.

Which party will become the low-tax party? (And I confidently predict that that party will win future elections hands-down.) The Republicans may lay claim to the title based on Ronald Reagan's leadership over the past three years and the majority of the Senate and House who share Reagan's pro-growth philosophy. Yet, there are other Republicans who may grab control in future years who would opt for the big-government party.

The Democrats, too, may go in either direction. They might follow their present leaders and become the big-government-is-good party, or they may return to the principles of Thomas Jefferson and Andrew Jackson and pre-1932 Franklin Roosevelt and support the principles of limited government and lower taxes.

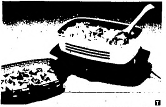
Tips To Help You

Catching On Fast: Slow Cookers



A hearty beef stew can cook while you're away from home.

In these days of working (and otherwise very busy) mothers, and one parent households, preparing nutritious, satisfying meals can be a big challenge. Many cooks are discovering helpers such as slow cookery that simmers one-pot meals while you're away from home or busy at other tasks.

Many slow cookers are large enough to hold family-size cuts of meat and vegetables. The slow cooking method helps preserve nutrients in the good food you buy and saves you money on energy bills to boot.

One new model offers several attractive features including a durable, non-stick surface that can mean easier cleanups for busy homemakers. There's a variable heat control with accurate, easy-to-read settings.

This Slow Cooker from West Bend* boasts a cover that turns over to become an oven-safe casserole/serving dish. The non-stick coated base serves as a mini-griddle for frying, grilling and warming. That's like getting three utensils in one.

Try this hearty recipe for beef stew, an ideal meal for slow cooking.

SLOW COOKER STEW

1-1/2 pounds beef stew meat
1 medium onion, chopped
4 carrots, peeled and cut into bite-sized pieces
2 ribs celery, cut into bite-sized pieces
4 medium potatoes, peeled and cut into bite-sized pieces
1 can (28-oz.) whole tomatoes, undrained
1 can (10-1/2 oz.) beef broth
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
2 tablespoons parsley flakes
1 bay leaf
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons quick cooking tapioca

Brown beef cubes in slow cooking pot on range over medium heat. Transfer cooking pot to heating base. Add remaining ingredients. Stir to blend. Cover and cook at LOW setting for eight hours. Makes six servings ready to eat when you are.

Why Don't You . . .?

We may have offended a few people at some time in the past by running this list of wiseacre answers to critical questions, and we may run the risk of offending a few more when we print it again, but we hope our readers will see the same humor in them as we did from this side of the editor's desk:

Q: Why don't you print in color, say red, once in a while?

A: Our entire supply of red ink is used in the bookkeeping department.

Q: Why don't you have funny papers?

A: We think we have the funniest paper in the state right now.

Q: Why don't you have an "Advice to the Lovelorn Column," like Abbey Lane?

A: None of our readers have any such problems (that they want to make public).

Q: Why do you have all those misprints?

A: They're the most entertaining part of the whole paper.

Q: Why do you always say "we" when referring to yourself in the paper?

A: We want our readers to think they are outnumbered.

Q: Why didn't you publish the poem I sent you?

A: It was a lousy poem.

Q: Why don't you put out a bigger paper like the Minneapolis Tribune?

A: We plan on it just as soon as the population in our town equals that of Minneapolis.

Q: What would you give me for writing a weekly column on moral home-spun philosophy?

A: A poke in the eye with a sharp stick.

Q: Why don't you write an editorial and tell those guys on the city council what they can do to improve the town.

A: Why don't you go down to the next council meeting and tell them yourself? (And then volunteer to help.)

Q: Why don't you print more letters to the editor?

A: Why don't you write one — and sign your name?

Q: Why do you devote space to such items as "Joe Smith is feeling poorly this week?"

A: Because Old Joe has a few pals who are concerned over his health, even if you are not. And, who knows, somebody might read about Old Joe and send him a bottle of sympathy.

The Old Shell Game

Following editorial is from the Morris Sun:

J. Peter Grace, chairman of the president's Private Sector Survey of Cost Control, points out that the average (median income) family in America has seen its taxes go up by 246.4 times while its income has only gone up by only 7.6 times since 1948.

This week, Congress is debating proposals to raise taxes by another $50 billion. The politicians have the gall to claim that this latest tax increase is designed to reduce the deficit.

Two years ago, proponents of the notorious Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act (TEFRA) promised three dollars in spending cuts for every dollar in tax increases. TEFRA was supposed to bring a $360 billion deficit reduction over three years.

TEFRA certainly increased the tax bite, yet the deficit continued to grow. What happened? Our law makers did not merely fail to cut spending; they overspent the increase in tax revenues.

Now Representatives Jim Wright and Dan Rostenkowski and Senator Bob Dole are back with the same old shell game. Give us another tax increase, they say, and this time we really will cut spending.

It is interesting that the establishment press is so inclined to believe Congressional promises of cutting spending in exchange for tax hikes. Fortunately the voters are not so credulous.

In this election year, Congress is making no serious effort to cut the entitlement formulas which cause federal spending to rise automatically at a rapid pace. Five-sixths of entitlement monies are handed out without regard to need. But instead of reforming the system, Congress is looking to the taxpayer for another bailout.

Campaigning for his 1981 tax cuts, Mr. Reagan maintained that the economy would respond to improved incentives. Allowing people to keep more of the dollars they earned proved to be a great source of economic growth.

In effect, Mr. Reagan simply put the brake on tax increases. Taxes as a percentage of GNP have changed little as the economy has grown. But at the same time federal spending has risen to where Uncle Sam now consumes one-fourth of the GNP.

The American taxpayer knows all too well that budget deficits are not the result of too-low taxes. Tax increases only assure that government will consume a bigger share of the economy.

As long as the faucet keeps running, the politicians will see no need to close the drain. An end to tax increases is the only way to get Congress to limit federal spending.

Rights Not Always Right

After 11 years of investigating complaints of biased or misleading reporting in the major national media, the national news council is tossing in the towel. There was not enough financial support from its members to sustain the operation and the directors decided to call it quits.

The council served a very worthwhile role. Louis D. Boccardi, executive vice president of the Associated Press, notes that the salvation of press freedom may lie in the willingness of the media to undergo the kind of critical self-examination that the national news council tried to provide.

He notes that opinion polls have shown a decline in respect accorded the news media in America. The media are so concerned about protecting their rights under the First Amendment that they are not concerned enough about the way they are exercising those rights, he said.

"Have we reached the point," he asks, "where we must recognize an obligation not to do some of the things the First Amendment gives us every right to do?"

It is a reasonable question. Since covering the news often involves reporting things that are wrong rather than things that are right, the news media frequently are subject to charges of being negative. While newspapers are certainly not blameless in these matters, we believe the competitiveness of the television networks and their merchandising of the news as an entertainment commodity has led to wide public reaction against the media.

While the media have generally been holding their own in the face of attempts to limit access to news sources and the freedom to publish and broadcast what they learn, that situation may well change if the media loses support of the public. Reporters and broadcasters insensitive to their own faults will cause the loss of public support on press freedom issues.

Minnesota has a news council which acts on complaints of news media fairness or propriety. It serves a useful purpose as an appeal panel to serve as a guide for journalistic responsibility. The national news council will be missed for doing the same thing on a nationwide basis.

Interesting Opinions:

"The society which scorns excellence in plumbing because it is a humble activity and tolerates shoddiness in philosophy because it is an exalted activity, will neither have good plumbing nor good philosophy. Neither its pipes nor its theories will hold water." —John Gardener

Borrowed Nonsense:

Equal Opportunity — A carpenter died and when he reached the pearly gates, St. Peter told him that he must complete a simple test before entering. The carpenter said, "I ain't never been too good at tests." St. Peter told him not to worry because it was a simple test. He said to the carpenter, "Spell God for me." The carpenter spelled God correctly and was allowed into heaven. That same day, a mechanic died and was asked to take the same test. He also spelled God correctly and was admitted through the pearly gates. Later that evening, a woman who had worked her way up from secretary to president of a company also died. As she attempted to enter heaven, St. Peter stopped her and told her that she must take a simple test before entering. With indignation, she replied, "I can't believe this. I've spent my entire life taking tests, proving to men and society that I can do an equal job and should receive equal pay. And now here I stand at the pearly gates and I must submit to another test to prove I'm worthy. Oh, go ahead." St. Peter looked her straight in the eye and said, "Spell Czechoslovakia."

"I wish you would let me take a bath in the morning before I go to school instead of at night before I go to bed," little Ginny Ann complained to her mother. "Every day at school Miss Taylor tells everybody who had a bath today to stand up, and I haven't been able to stand up since school started three months ago."

REPORT

From The

Minnesota House of Representatives

by Rep. Wallace Sparby
District 1B

All Minnesotans will have a share in the state's $900 million surplus under a proposal passed by the House last week.

Ayone who pays income taxes will be relieved of the burden of the 10 per cent surtax, retroactive to Jan. 1, 1984. Farmers and homeowners whose property taxes increased a lot will receive larger property tax refunds from the state. Small businesses will also get additional property tax breaks. Manufacturing companies will reap the benefits of a decrease in sales tax on new machinery purchases. And additional funds will be available for repairing our state highway system and for public transit. For schools, the speed up of state aid payments will help alleviate cash flow problems.

In addition to all this, the state's current financial stability will be protected because of an increase in the budget reserve. The legislature doesn't want to find itself in the same dilemma it faced in 1980 when state revenue began to fall far short of earlier predictions, due to the recession. There was no reserve to fall back on, and continuing financial problems resulted in program cuts, tax hikes, and deferring the payment of state bills beyond their normal date — usually referred to as payment shifts.

The governor and DFL majority in the legislature waited until the April revenue forecast was made last week before announcing a major tax cut plan.

We took time to listen to the concerns of different groups of Minnesotans who are competing for the state's resources, and in particular the surplus. Farmers, businesses, schools, homeowners — all groups had the opportunity to make their cases. Now that we know the size of the surplus, we are ready to present an immediate and realistic plan of action for distributing available funds in the most thoughtful and informed manner.

Details of the plan still need some fine tuning but in general this is the way it looks now. The tax reduction features, amounting to a total of $357 million, include repeal of the income tax surtax retroactive to Jan. 1, 1984 for a $325 million savings statewide on income taxes; $15 million in property tax relief — targeted to those whose property taxes increased by more than 20 per cent this year; and a $12 million tax reduction for businessess by lowering from six per cent to four per cent the sales tax on new factory equipment and about $5 million in miscellaneous tax decreases. Most importantly, the bill contains farm property tax relief to the tune of aboout $30 million over the next biennium.

In addition, some school payment shifts will be reversed, and the transfer of motor vehicle excise taxes from the general fund to a fund dedicated to transportation needs will begin in July of this year. That will free up money for needed highway repairs.

As the Speaker of the House said when announcing the proposal, "This is the first really good news we've been able to bring to Minnesotans in four years."

Our first and overriding concern is tax reform, and second, we have to make sure the state remains financially stable. In addition, we want to keep spending at a minimum and concentrate it on items that represent a one-time cost to the state. We are saying no to anything that will jeopardize the next biennial budget with unreasonable spending programs.

Now that the proposal was passed by the House, it will be sent to a conference committee to settle the differences between the House and Senate versions.

STRAIGHT TALK

Albert D. Hattis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

Thirty-seven years ago, after completing an air force cadet program, I experienced a miracle. One of my classmates, Jim, talked about his "girl," the most beautiful woman in the world, all during our training. He was anxious to get his commission as a second lieutenant, so that he could get his first assignment, settle in, and marrr Martha.

Graduation day arrived along with our transfer orders. Many of us were assigned to the same air base. Jim started hunting for an apartment. When he found one that he could afford, he called his fiance. Since neither had a family, his cadet classmates were invited to the wedding at the base chapel.

Jim's young lady quit her job. All of us were down at the train station to meet her, expecting a combination Farrah Fawcett-Miss America-Miss Universe. When the train stopped, we looked up and down and saw only one very fat ugly young woman get off. Jim ran to her. After a kiss and a hug, he proudly brought Martha to us and introduced his wife-to-be.

We were all shocked. Martha didn't fit any description Jim had given us. None of us, all kids in our early twenties, could understand how this hulk could be the girl of Jim's dreams, but she obviously was that girl.

After the wedding, over a period of time, we all were repeatedly invited for dinner by Martha and Jim. Martha had a job, was a wonderful homemakers, and Jim was proud and happy. Each of us enjoyed visiting the new couple. We always had a fun evening.

After a few months, when some of my fellow bachelors were sitting in our BOQ day room watching our first TV set (black and white picture with a magnifying glass in front of the tube), I remember someone asking, "Have you noticed Martha, lately?"

Someone else responded, "What's to notice?"

"She has changed. I don't know what she has been doing to herself, but she's actually becoming a very beautiful girl. I'm beginning to see what Jim talked about all of the time!"

Each of us expressed the same thought. Martha had gone from a "beast" to a "beauty" that each of us recognized. It was a miracle because we all had commented on her appearance on the day she first arrived.

I think we all learned something from this experience. Many of us, as time passes, add years, but not much understanding of human beings. Martha was no different, physically, than she had been on the day she arrived. Maybe less tired and drawn, but the basics were the same. We then got to know her, not just see her. She had a big heart, a wonderful personality, and was a real friend. She was a caring person. She was mature enough to understand others and not concentrate on "number one."

When you put all of these features together, Martha became, in the eyes of all who beheld the total Martha, a truly beautiful woman. Martha's beauty was the kind that would attract and last forever, while so many people today have only a physical beauty that deteriorates with time. That deterioration takes place in spite of skin creams, conditioners and all of the efforts of master cosmeticians and plastic surgeons.

Our land is littered with beauty shops emphasizing the physical. Out ot these edifices step women with all colors of the rainbow on nails (on both hands and feet) and lips, loaded with mascara, powder and lubricants from sources that would sicken you. There are spas that charge a few thousand dollars for a week to do "their thing."

If only we could achieve some understanding on the part of our people that real beauty is in the eye of the beholder and requires much more than cosmetics, gunkor plastic surgery. True beauty develops from a caring heart of a grown up mature enough to be concerned with more than just outer appearances and "number one."

I think there's a message here for our young people as we think about someone who was concerned about everyone. He was interested in real people, and more than just a thin external veneer. He appreciated those who were willing to give as well as receive. He understood the depths of real beauty that was much more than "skin deep."

That's Straight Talk!

Bowling Better — Tip by Tip

Bowling . . . it's a sport for everyone! It takes little physical prowess and the basics of the game can be learned easily and in a very short time. According to the Women's International Bowling Congress, every bowler can benefit from occasional tips on how to improve her game . . . her score . . . and her fun! Here are a few of the common mistakes people make while bowling . . . and what you can do about them.

- Problem: Hand finishing across and in front of the body. Remedy: Keep your elbow close to the body and keep your thumb at the 10 or 11 o'clock position to prevent overturning.
- Problem: A roundhouse or outside swing. Remedy: Tuck your elbow into your hip and swing your arm close to the hip for a straight swing.
- Problem: Holding the ball too low. Remedy: Experiment to find the correct height to alleviate stiff knees, a poor pushaway or off-balance approach.
- Problem: Off-balance at the foul line and pulling the ball. Remedy: Bend your knees slightly and your arm will automatically follow through straight toward the target.
- Problem: Sliding foot pointed away from the target. Remedy: Slow down your approach. Rushing the foul line causes an off-balance release and pushes your foot either left or right.

"Everybody is Somebody in Thief River Falls"

Published Twice A Week

THIEF RIVER FALLS TIMES

Volume 73 (USPS 627-360) Thief River Falls, Pennington County, Minnesota Monday, April 23, 1984 Number 33

RICE PADDIES along the Clearwater river provided feeding and resting spots for migratory waterfowl as well as nesting habitat during the spring and summer months. This photo was taken last week on a paddy owned by John Gunvalson and Paul Imle in southeastern Pennington county. Ducks and swans were in greatest evidence although Canadian geese are regularly seen and a number of pairs nest in the wild rice paddy areas. Gunvalson and Imle say the waterfowl are not competitive with wild rice production and they have even created nesting and resting areas within the paddies. Additional photos will be published from the paddy area in Wednesday's edition of the Times.

CLOGGED ENTRANCE of a ditch on the north bank of the Red Lake River near Finsbury Park has prompted some residents in the area to request that it be dredged out to increase water flow to a boat channel on the north side of the park. Permit for the excavation has been denied by the department of natural resources division of waters, on the basis that excavation would not provide an effective solution to the problem because of recurrent sedimentation due to its location on an inside bend of the river. Ted Storck, a resident along the channel has requested that a hearing be held on the matter. A special meeting of the park board will be held at 7:30 p.m. tonight in council chambers at city auditorium, to discuss the problem. It is also on the agenda for Tuesday night's city council meeting.

City Council Meets Tuesday On Ditch Issue

City council will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, in council chambers at city auditorium.

Topics on the agenda include the status of a ditch in Finsbury Park, which area residents have requested a hearing on due to Minnesota department of natural resources denial of a dredging permit. If the hearing is held as requested, the city could be responsible for costs up to $750 if the DNR decision is not altered. Council members have also questioned who would be responsible for costs of the excavation.

Other topics include: status of the 1984 street improvement project; ditch cleanup along Dewey Avenue; Curling club repairs; hiring of park maintenance personnel; five year economic development plan for the city; annexation of the former test track area of Arctic Enterprises; rural fire contract extensions for five townships; support for a senior citizens center; option agreement with the AVTI for purchase of the 100 by 100 foot hangar building at the airport; and approval of a special use permit for Tim Shea's Nursery, to be located next to Hardware Hank store.

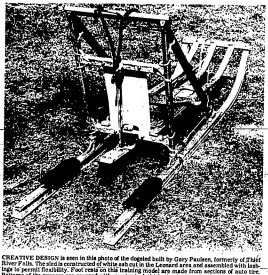
Paulsen Trains Self And Dog Team For Iditarod



CREATIVE DESIGN is seen in this photo of the dogsled built by Gary Paulsen, formerly of Thief River Falls. The sled is constructed of white ash cut in the Leonard area and assembled with lashings to permit flexibility. Foot rests on this training model are made from sections of auto tire. Bottoms of the runners are covered with quarter inch thick plastic. Hanging from the top of the sled is an iron hook used as an anchor to hold the sled while dogs are being harnessed or at rest. The board between the two rear runners is a foot brake which the driver uses to control the sled on down grades or on ice. Shifting of weight from one side to another helps control direction. In racing the Iditarod, Paulsen expects to run at least 200 miles, helping the dogs as they pull up inclines.

(This is the second installment of a two-part story regarding former Thief River Falls resident Gary Paulsen and his training for a second dogsled run on the Iditarod trail in Alaska. Paulsen ran the race from Anchorage to Nome — a distance of nearly 1,200 miles — finishing 41st in 17 days and 14 hours in 1983. He will run the race again in early March of 1985 with an entirely new dog team and the intent to not only finish but to place as high among the finishers as he can.)

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

"When you train dogs to run the Iditarod, what you want is a canine machine that is so ready to go that you have almost no control over it," states sled dog racer Gary Paulsen. "And training to win — or with the hope that you will be competitive enough so that you could win — is a whole different game than just training to run."

Paulsen gave an example. About three and one-half months ago he was running three dogs across an ice-coated highway when the sled began to catch up to the dogs. He put a foot down to slow the sled's progress and then the ice turned to bare asphalt. The result was a leg broken in four places between the knee and the ankle.

With the leg in a cast he couldn't put weight on it, so he used a Datsun car body instead of the sled for his dogs to pull him on training runs. After six weeks or so he had the first cast replaced with a fiberglass walking cast. And about a month ago he and his wife Ruth took a sled and gear for an outing, hitched up five dogs and left the Paulsen yard for a 34-mile round trip.

"The dogs were just crazy," Paulsen explains. "They just took off and the first time I got control was 17 miles later. We tipped the sled several times, Ruth got some cuts and bruises, I got some cuts and the sled was a shambles from bouncing through the woods."

At one point on a downgrade the dogs were running at high speed in the wooded area and Paulsen was fearful for Ruth's safety on the sled. Unable to put much weight on his broken leg, he instead stuck the leg out and used the cast to hook trees in an attempt to slow the momentum. The cast was severely damaged and fragments were driven into his leg but, x-rays later revealed the fractures were not re-damaged.

The doctor reminded him, however, that a walking cast is intended to get the patient from the couch to the bathroom, not on 34-mile dogsled runs. The leg is now quite well mended and Gary doesn't expect it to cause any more problems.

To understand the training regimen, one must also know something of the nature of the Iditarod race. It is run across wilderness from Anchorage to Nome for about 1,180 miles. The terrain includes tundra, mountains, forested area, rivers and lakes. Winds often rise to 50 or 60 miles per hour and temperatures plummet to 40 or 50 degrees below zero, or colder.

There are 20 check points along the route where racers must stop, plus two others which are optional. The checkpoints may be a trapper's cabin or an Indian village and they are spaced from 30 to 100 miles apart. At each checkpoint is a checker to verify the racers' compliance with the rules, and a veterinarian to check the condition of the dogs and a two-way radio operator to relay messages. Racers are not allowed to accept assistance except in life-threatening circumstances.

In advance of the race, dog food and gear is flown ahead to each of the checkpoints to be picked up by the racers when they arrive. They must carry one day's supplies with them on the sled as well as survival equipment including an axe, saw and other basic items. If any of the items are lost or left on the trail, the racer must go back for them. If he can't find them, he is disqualified.

A racer changes socks and gloves at each checkpoint, leaving the previously used items behind. And because of the possibility of having to lay over a day due to blizzards, double amounts of supplies such as dog food are shipped to each checkpoint. Supplies left behind become the property of the trapper or the village which provide the use of facilities.

On the trail, Gary plans to run a schedule of six hours running, four hours off, another six hours running and then eight hours off. Much of the running is in the dark and miner's type headlamps are used. While the dogs rest at each stop, there is little rest for the racers who must care for the dogs, replenish supplies, make repairs and otherwise prepare for the next six hours of running.

In 1983 Paulsen started the race with 15 dogs and finished with nine. The others were dropped at checkpoints due to several reasons which Gary characterizes as "Paulsen learning about dogs". One of the main problems was sugar snow, a coursely granular snow which works its way into the webbing between the dogs' toes and causes irritation. Paulson said he didn't recognize the condition early enough to put cloth booties on the dogs and several developed sore feet in the middle part of the race. Dogs dropped at checkpoints are treated and then flown out to await pickup by the racer later.

Last year Paulsen had 1,200 cloth booties ready for use and the dogs wore out 700 of them.

BETTER QUALITY in the dogs he is training for the 1985 Iditarod race leads Gary Paulsen to believe he has a chance to be among the top finishers in the 1,000 mile trek. One of his lead dogs will be this Alaskan husky which Paulsen says has excellent strength and leadership qualities and is proving to be an intelligent and quick learner.

Karin Hanson - Peter Lee Marriage Vows Spoken

Following an exchange of marriage vows at the Evangelical Free church in this city, and a wedding trip to the Detroit Lakes area, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Dale Lee are at home at Marshall.

The bride, the former Karin Denine Hanson, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Hanson of this city. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Harland Lee, also of this city.

Rev. Curtis Anderson officiated at the double ring ceremony witnessed by approximately 350 relatives and friends. Ida Nordvall, a friend of the groom, was the organist, and Rick Trontvet, friend of the bride, served as pianist. "Trumpet Voluntare" was played as the bride was escorted to the altar by her father. During the service, the bride's brother-in-law and sister sang "Two Trusting Jesus," "Gentle, Quiet Spirit," and "On and On."

Forming the chancel setting were lighted candelabra with sprays of pink roses, daisies, and babies' breath, accented with blue ribbon and greenery.

For her wedding, the bride wore a white eyelet gown styled with a fitted bodice, cap sleeves, and a sheer yoke edged with a lace ruffle. The yoke, styled with stand-up lace collar, was trimmed with a lace motif, bordered by two rows of lace trim. A self cummerbund complemented the double tiered skirt featuring a chapel-length train edged with lace. Her headpiece was a halo of babies' breath, fresh pink tea roses and miniature light blue blossoms, accented in back with a cascade of waist-length white satin ribbon. She carried a bouquet of fresh pink roses, daisies, babies' breath and greenery with ribbon accents.

Karen Fredeen, a friend of the bride, was maid of honor. Other attendants were Mrs. Kristi Lindstrom, Minneapolis, and Andrea Hanson, sisters of the bride; Mrs. Marita Williamson, Greenbush, a cousn of the bride; and Renelle Twistol, city, and Desi Wessman, Grand Forks, N.D., friends of the bride.

All wore light blue gowns with coordinating eyelet ryffles at the neckline, on the sleeves and at the hemline. Their headpieces were halos of babies' breath with light blue satin ribbon steamers in the back. Each carried a bouquet of white gardenias, pink roses, diasies and blue flowers with flocked light blue ribbon streamers.

Mrs. Laurie Peterson was her sister's personal attendant.

David Lee, a brother of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen were Dale Lewis, Ontario, Calif.; Bryan Anderson and Wayne Kreuger, friends of the groom; Loren Hed, Gaylord, a brother-in-law of the groom; and Wade Johnson, a cousin. Serving as ushers were David Peterson, Pine City, Dale Novacek, Greenbush, Steve Hanson, Roseau, and Eldon Gormsen, Grand Forks, N.D. All wore gray tuxedos with white winged-collar shirts and gray bow ties.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Hanson wore a royal blue, polyester knit, floor-length gown with a tiered bodice and chiffon cap sleeves. The groom's mother wore a light blue polyester floor-length gown topped by an overblouse of matching lace. Their silk corsages were of pink roses, daisies and white gardenias.

Honor guests were Mrs. Clara Hanson, Mrs. Alice McMahon, grandmothers of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Harland Lee, Sr., grandparents of the groom, and Mrs. Cerise Knutson, his great-aunt.

Hosts and hostesses at the reception which followed in the church parlors were Mr. and Mrs. Ted Hamness, uncle and aunt of the bride, and Capt. and Mrs. Dillmond Lewis, friends of the couple. Gift bearers were Londa and LaDawn Hanson. Laurel Hed, sister of the groom, registered the guests as Andy Cameron and Dwayne Lewis served the punch.

Centering the serving table was a three-tiered wedding cake, ice and decorated in white, and topped by a miniature bouquet of pink roses, daisies and light blue flowers. On either side were two smaller cakes, connected to the main cake by ribbon streamers.

The cake was cut and served by Annethea Novacek, aunt of the bride, and Alma Johnson, aunt of the groom. Pouring coffee were Dorothy Gormsen, cousin of the bride; and Diane Lee, sister-in-law of the groom. Janelle Hamness served the Kransekake, the traditional Norwegian wedding cake.

Waitresses were Diane Sabol, Ann Odegaard, Wendy Erickson, Brenda Blazek, Raelyn Twistol and Lynelle Kotrba. Julie Johnson presidend at the gift table.

The bride is a graduate of Lincoln high school and is attending Southwest State university at Marshall. The groom, a graduate of Lincoln and Moorhead State university, is employed at Marshall as computer programmer for Schwann's. Photo, James Solsten, Thief River Falls.

Campanula Club 36th Anniversary Observed April 11

Thirty-sixth anniversary of the Campanula garden club was observed April 11 at a 12:00 o'clock chicken dinner at Lon's. Centering the table was a miniature vase of scillas brought by Mrs. Victor Franson. President Mrs. Ruth Holmes provided the anniversary cake, which was served as dessert.

In addition to the anniversary observance, the dinner was in honor of Geneva Overum, a charter member of the club.

To add interest to the observance, the eight members attending the dinner answered roll call by telling the number of years they had been members.

During the business session, held in the Red room, members responded to roll call by answering nature's calendar, noting the arrival of robins and crows. The gardeners' creed and the April poem by Flora Mercil were read in unison. Reports were given by secretary Eleanor Tornes, treasurer Olga Johnson and Good Cheer chairman Bernice Knutson.

To continue with the year's study of a plant mentioned in the Bible, Edythe Franson reported on the hyssop. It was noted that the hyssop is a fragrant, blue flowered plant of the mint family, used in folk medicine as a tonic or stimulant. In certain Jewish rites, the twings are used for sprinkling. To correspond with the Lenten season, Eleanor Tornes showed pictures of the Passion flower and Resurrection plant.

Members displayed their program booklets, but due to the absence of three members, the booklets weren't judged.

As a memento of their tour to the Orient, Olga Johnson and Geneva Overum presented each member with a Japanese book marker.

Wilde Comedy Is Spring Play At NCC Theatre

Northland community college theatre will open its' spring quarter production of Oscar Wilde's comedy, "The Importance of Being Earnest", at 8 p.m. Thursday, May 3, with additional performances on May 4 and 5.

Subtitled "a trivial comedy for serious people," the play is generally acknowledged to be Wilde's masterpiece and among the finest of English comedies. Wilde described the play as "a delicate bubble of fancy", and suggested "We should treat all the trivial things of life seriously, and all the serious things of life with sincere and studied triviality."

Story concerns the amorous misadventures of two carefree young gentlemen: John Worthing, inventory of a fictitious brother, "Earnest", whose wicked ways afford John an excuse to leave his country home from time to time and journey to London; and Algernon Moncrieff, his bosom friend and confidant, with whose cousin, Gwendolyn Fairfax, John is deeply in love.

During his London sojourns, John, under the name "Earnest", has won Gwendolyn's love; for she strongly desires to marry some one with that confidence-inspiring name. But when he asks her hand in marriage from her mother, the formidable Lady Bracknell, John finds that he must reveal that he is a foundling who was left in a handbag at Victoria Station. Lady Bracknell insists that he must produce at least one parent before she can consent to the marriage.

Returning to the country home where he lives with his ward Cecily Cardew and her governess, Miss Prism, John finds that Algernon has also arrived under the identity of the nonexistent brother "Earnest". Algernon falls madly in love with the imaginative Cecily, who has long been enamored of the mysterious, fascinating "Earnest". With the arrival of Lady Bracknell and Gwendolyn, chaos erupts.

Production is under the direction of Christopher Kays and Roger Vaughan of the Northland Theatre staff. Cast includes: Steve McGregor, Warren, as Jack; Steve Dalager, Thief River Falls, as Algernon; Alan Melvie, Viking, as Rev. Chasuble; Alan Lull, Thief River Falls, as Merriman; John Helms, Thief River Falls, as Lane; Elwyne Sutherland, Fosston, as Lady Bracknell; Wendy Easton, Thief River Falls, as Gwendolyn; Laura Johnson, Karlstad, as Cecily; and Lynn Van Emmerick, Red Lake Falls; as Miss Prism.

Admission will be $2 for adults, $1 for students, and free for senior citizens and Northland students and faculty with their activity tickets. Tickets will be on sale at the theatre box office one hour prior to performance each evening.

Senate Okays Stumpf Bill On Farm Loans

Minnesota Senate Wednesday night approved a bill authoried by State Senator LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer that would authorize the state department of energy and economic development (EED) to finance up to $30 million in industrial revenue bond loans to farmers in the state, to be used only for the purchase of machinery and other capital expenditures, it was announced today.

"The passage of this bill, which would make farmers eligible for loans of up to $100,000 apiece," Stumpf said, "will help our farmers deal with what is a terribly tight credit situation that is threatening many farmers this year and will give them another chance through a low-interest program to buy what they need for their operations."

The bill (S.F. 1457), which passed in the Senate on a nearly unanimous vote, would allow the EED to issue loans, through public or private sale, with interest rates expected to range between eight and 10 per cent, Stumpf explained. Local lending institutions would be used to process and administer the loans.

Under current federal and state regulations, the state legislature may issue agricultural revenue bonds for equipment purchases and capital projects, but the structuring of IRB bonds into $1 million lots has made them difficult to administer by smaller, local institutions.

"Investment firms in Minnesota have successfully sold IRB bond loans in small quantities to farmers in North Dakota," Stumpf said, "and they recently made out over 400 loans valued at $18 million, through 40 separate lending institutions. We think such a program could be even more successful in Minnesota, based on the same needs and available capital."

Similar programs have also been successful in Alabama, Colorado, Louisiana, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Virginia, and Minnesota agriculture commissioner Jim Nichols has thrown his own support behind the proposal, Stumpf added.

"Under this plan," Stumpf said, "land purchases could not be made with these loans, which would be used strictly for capital projects, equipment purchases and other depreciable property, including livestock. The taxing power and full faith and credit of the state would not be pledged or placed in jeopardy for the repayment of these loans."

Further details on the program and the availability of funds will be released later.

Paulsen Trains Dog Team For Iditarod Race

Finding the trail can be a problem, although a legitimate effort is made to have it marked in advance. Last year the trail was considered well marked, he said, but he got lost three times. Most often the racer has to have extreme confidence in his lead dogs to hold to the trail. He can recall his lead dog "Cookie" feeling for the edge of the trail with her feet as she ran.

Experiences can range from the sublime — such as a clear night in the quiet solitude of the wilderness — to the almost unbearable — such as a place called "The Burn".

" 'The Burn' is an 80-mile stretch where a forest fire has gone through," Paulsen explains. "There are trees toppled every which way. The dogs find an opening to get through but the sled won't follow and it gets edged in. Then you have to dig out the saw or axe and cut it free and a little while later do it all over again."

In other areas the trail runs along a shelf of ice on the river with a sheer cliff on one side and white water on the other. Moose also can be a very serious problem, attacking dogs and drivers.

Paulsen doesn't like Alaskan moose very much. He will go to Alaska late in December to spend January and February training in the Alaskan range of mountains about 140 miles north of Anchorage. He will stay with a friend, Joe May, and run 80-mile loops with half of the dogs every day.

"You can count on seeing 20 moose in an 80-mile loop," he said, "and at least two of those will be eager to take you on."

He explained that there are few trails in Alaska and that the moose use them because they provide easy travel routes. When a team of dogs at full run turns a corner and suddenly comes upon a moose using the trail, something usually happens and most of the time it's bad.

"The moose thinks it's his trail, and he doesn't like dogs, sleds, or people, or even other moose most of the time," Paulsen said. "A lot of dogs have been severely hurt or killed by moose and some drivers have also been injured. Moose are a very legitimate reason for having more than one dog capable of being lead dog on the team. You never know when you might lose one."

On the training trail, Paulsen will be assisted by his handler Robin Jacobs. While Paulsen runs half the team on the 80-mile training loops, Jacobs will care for the other half of the team, rubbing their shoulders, treating their feet and providing them with food and water. Prior to leaving for Alaska, Jacobs will assist in dog care at the Paulsen residence 20 miles northeast of Clearbrook and even drive dog teams on training runs.

When Paulsen ran the race in 1983 he lost 17 pounds despite being in top condition when the race started. One of his dogs refused to eat the food he had prepared for the dogs, so he gave the dog his food and subsisted primarily on quarter-pound sticks of butter which he ate like candy bars. The butter was available at each of the checkpoints along with other food supplies.

Paulsen said one of his closest calls in the 1983 race was when he contracted hypothermia, a lowering of the body temperature. Temperatures had dropped to 56 degrees below zero when he went through "The Burn", he said, and he didn't put on enough clothing quick enough to avoid severe loss of body heat.

He was in the Indian village of Nicholai when an Indian girl came out of a house and told him her father said he should come inside. "I have to feed my dogs," Gary protested. "You have already fed them three times," the girl responded.

Inside the house Paulsen sat on the couch and stared at the opposite wall for six hours before his senses returned to him. "I was probably a couple of hours away from death," he recalls. "But when I got warmed up I went out and hitched up the team and started out on the trail again."

While racing the Iditarod, Paulsen feeds his dogs five warm meals a day. He carries warm food for them in an insulated chest and heats food as well during stops. He also carries water for the dogs and uses food high in water content to prevent dehydration in the dogs. On the trail an individual dog can eat up to 20 pounds of food a day.

This year Paulsen is training dogs which are continuing to impress him as each day passes. One of his lead dogs will be "Spitz", one of 12 dogs being purchased from Don Leary of Rose Isle, Canada. Leary purchased Coppermine Village dogs in the Northwest Territories and has kept the strain pure. About six of the 12 dogs will make the Iditarod run.

Also in the team will be three pups from "Cookie", Paulsen's lead dog on the 1983 race. Completing the team will be dogs borrowed from Dave Brian of Puposky — Alaskan huskies which are the very best from Brian's own team. Five dogs have been loaned by Brian to run the race. None of the dogs which Paulsen ran in the Iditarod in 1983 will be on the 1985 team.

Other Minnesotans have attempted the Iditarod. Mark Nordman of Grand Marais finished somewhere behind Paulsen in 1983. Gary Hokkanen of Cook placed about 10th in his assault on the trail several years ago and Tim White of Grand Marais has also run the race. None but Paulsen plan to run it again.

Paulsen learned much in his first race, about dogs, about Alaskan trail conditions, about himself. He has devised his own mixture of meat for dog food. He makes his own mukluks (footwear) from canvas and leather and builds his own sleds. He plans to have four sleds available for use in the 1985 race.

"There is an over-riding fear before the race," he admitted. "You have devoted so much time and effort and tuned your dogs into a fine machine but you know that every year there are many racers who don't finish. There are many things that can happen on the trail; things that can't be foreseen and avoided. You have to simply react to them as they happen."

Yet he will once again pay the $1,049 entry fee and make the demanding run on the Iditarod trail.

"There is a feeling from the race that can't be explained to someone who hasn't run it," Paulsen said. "It is as if you are elevated out of yourself by the race and there is an extreme elation when the race is over. But more than that, Alaska is an unbelievably beautiful place and the race gives you an excuse to be a part of it, to share its wilderness solitude and gain experiences available nowhere else."

And beyond that, in 1985 Gary Paulsen wants to prove he and his dogs are good enough to finish among the top racers in the world, and maybe, with a little luck, even to win.

SLED DESIGN of the dogsleds built by Gary Paulson utilizes lashings as much as possible to permit the sled to flex as it traverses rough terrain. The broken runner (indicated by arrows in the above photo) was sustained in a dash through wooden country and has been repaired for training use only. Paulsen will will have four new sleds built for use on the 1,180-mile Iditarod trail race next March.

REFLECTI NS

Kindness is contagious ... it generates all kinds of good by-products ... such as big, wide smiles, warm hugs, friendly greetings and acts of courtesy. You may be muddling along, just barely making it thru your day when you meet someone who pays you a compliment or encourages you as a person. All of a sudden you feel so much better you treat the next person you meet kindly too. Kindness is indeed contagious.

BOAT CHANNEL which gives river access to residents of Robin Hood Drive lies between them and Finsbury Park. Residents along the channel, including city health officer Dr. Richard Heinrichs, claim that stagnant water in the channel and a ditch to the south of it is responsible for a mosquito problem, and have requested dredging of the ditch by the city, in hopes of increasing water flow to the channel. Permit to excavate has been denied by the Minnesota department of natural resources, on grounds that it would not provide an effective solution to the problem, due to recurring sedimentation. As requested, the excavation would not involve the boat channel, except for widening on the south end, with installation of a larger culvert under the road in the immediate foreground of the picture. In recommending the denial, area hydrologist Donald Grasser noted that the survey done by the city's consulting engineers indicated that the "velocity in a ditch of any cross-section will be less than desirable," and would "require constant cleaning of debris and aquatic growth."

BBB Handles 26 Advertising Cases In March

In four cases the advertisers substantiated their claims. The remaining 22 advertisers agreed to revise their claims to comply with the BBB code of advertising and applicable laws and regulations, or agreed to discontinue their claims.

Paul Bunyan Playhouse Begins June 13

"A Tradition to Treasure" is the theme for the 1984 season at the Paul Bunyan playhouse, located north of Bemidji at Ruttger's Birchmont Lodge. The threatre, enters its 33 season with a new artistic director, a new cast and crew, and some of theatre's richest classics.

The eight-show, 10-week season kicks off Wednesday, June 13, with the comedy "Harvey" about a six foot invisible rabbit. "Harvey" closes on Sunday, June 24, to make way for the June 27 opening of "Jacques Brel," which closes its curtain on July 1. On July 5 through 8 the playhouse introduces its children's theatre to main stage with "Reynard the Fox."

England's funniest playwright, Alan Ayckbourn, is behind the clever farce "How The Other Half Loves" July 11-15. A classic American drama comes to the playhouse July 18-22 in the form of "The Little Foxes." July 25-29 performance run will be "The Dining Room." August opener is "Sea Marks," August 1-5.

As tradition dictates, the playhouse season will close with the two-week run of "The Pirates of Penzance."

Curtain time is 8 p.m. nightly. July 7 there will also be a 6 p.m. matinee of "Reynard the Fox." Reservations may be made in advance beginning June 6; call the box office at 751-7270.

Soo Line Says First Quarter Revenues Rose

Led by a 38 per cent gain in revenue ton miles, Soo Line railroad company sharply improved its revenues and net income in the first quarter over the prior year, according to Thomas M. Beckley, chairman of the board.

First quarter net income more than tripled from $1.3 million or 17 cents per share in 1983, to $4.9 million or 65 cents per share in 1984. Revenues for the quarter were up 25 per cent from 1983 to $83.5 million.

"The strong rebound in traffic which began last summer, continued into the first quarter," Beckley said. "Total carloadings during the quarter rose 25 per cent in comparison with last year."

Carloading for most major commodity groups were up substantially from 1983. Carloads of farm products rose 54 per cent, chemicals were up 35 per cent, nonmetallic minerals were up 50 per cent, intermodal up 78 per cent, primary metals up 57 per cent and waste or scrap up 70 per cent. Pulp and paper traffic rose three per cent for the quarter but was held down due to strikes in British Columbia which reduced the movement of woodpulp into the United States. Lumber and wood products as well as food products traffic declined slightly from last year.

Movement of grain and potash in solid trainloads increased substantially this year. A total of 138 trains of grain or potash moved over the Soo compared to 48 last year. Solid trainloads or grain and potash operate from Canada, the Twin Cities or Twin Ports over Soo's lines to Chicago.

The Company anticipates an expanded track maintenance program this year. Large increases are projected for new rock ballast and tie installations including programs on branch lines in North Dakota, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

Caution Urged When Shopping By Mail-Order

Noting that Postal Consumer Protection Week is April 23 to 29, Thief River Falls Postmaster Dick McCloskey offered some advice to mail-order shoppers to reduce the risk of being swindled.

"The cardinal rule is:" he says, "If a deal sounds too good to be true, it probably is." He offered the following additional advice:

— Beware of exaggerated claims or unusually low prices.

— Don't be rushed. Avoid offers that claim to be your "last chance" to get a bargain.

— Keep a copy of the advertisement from which you ordered.

— Never send cash. Use a check, money order or credit card because, if necessary, these can be traced.

— Keep a record of the date of your order and the number of your check. Retain the canceled check when it is returned to you.

— If you have doubts about a company, check with the Better Business Bureau or a local consumer protection agency to see if there are any complaints on record against the company. It is best to do this before ordering.

A major problem this year has been C.O.D. scams. Phone solicitors are calling around the country selling merchandise or vacation packages by C.O.D. mail. The customer usually winds up with nothing of value.

"Mail-order shopping can be a real convenience for busy people and can offer discerning shoppers a chance to get goods only available through the mail. I urge mail-order shoppers to remember these few words of advice," McCloskey said.

Paulsen Trains Dog Team For Iditarod Race

Finding the trail can be a problem, although a legitimate effort is made to have it marked in advance. Last year the trail was considered well marked, he said, but he got lost three times. Most often the racer has to have extreme confidence in his lead dogs to hold to the trail. He can recall his lead dog "Cookie" feeling for the edge of the trail with her feet as she ran.

Experiences can range from the sublime — such as a clear night in the quiet solitude of the wilderness — to the almost unbearable — such as a place called "The Burn".

" 'The Burn' is an 80-mile stretch where a forest fire has gone through," Paulsen explains. "There are trees toppled every which way. The dogs find an opening to get through but the sled won't follow and it gets edged in. Then you have to dig out the saw or axe and cut it free and a little while later do it all over again."

In other areas the trail runs along a shelf of ice on the river with a sheer cliff on one side and white water on the other. Moose also can be a very serious problem, attacking dogs and drivers.

Paulsen doesn't like Alaskan moose very much. He will go to Alaska, late in December to spend January and February training in the Alaskan range of mountains about 140 miles north of Anchorage. He will stay with a friend, Joe May, and run 80-mile loops with half of the dogs every day.

"You can count on seeing 20 moose in an 80-mile loop," he said, "and at least two of those will be eager to take you on." He explained that there are few trails in Alaska and that the moose use them because they provide easy travel routes. When a team of dogs at full run turns a corner and suddenly comes upon a moose using the trail, something usually happens and most of the time it's bad.

"The moose thinks it's his trail, and he doesn't like dogs, sleds, or people, or even other moose most of the time," Paulsen said. "A lot of dogs have been severely hurt or killed by moose and some drivers have also been injured. Moose are a very legitimate reason for having more than one dog capable of being lead dog on the team. You never know when you might lose one."

On the training trail, Paulsen will be assisted by his handler Robin Jacobs. While Paulsen runs half the team on the 80-mile training loops, Jacobs will care for the other half of the team, rubbing their shoulders, treating their feet and providing them with food and water. Prior to leaving for Alaska, Jacobs will assist in dog care at the Paulsen residence 20 miles northeast of Clearbrook and even drive dog teams on training runs.

When Paulsen ran the race in 1983 he lost 17 pounds despite being in top condition when the race started. One of his dogs refused to eat the food he had prepared for the dogs, so he gave the dog his food and subsisted primarily on quarter-pound sticks of butter which he ate like candy bars. The butter was available at each of the checkpoints along with other food supplies.

Paulsen said one of his closest calls in the 1983 race was when he contracted hypothermia, a lowering of the body temperature. Temperatures had dropped to 56 degrees below zero when he went through "The Burn", he said, and he didn't put on enough clothing quick enough to avoid severe loss of body heat.

He was in the Indian village of Nicholai when an Indian girl came out of a house and told him her father said he should come inside. "I have to feed my dogs," Gary protested. "You have already fed them three times," the girl responded.

Inside the house Paulsen sat on the couch and stared at the opposite wall for six hours before his senses returned to him. "I was probably a couple of hours away from death," he recalls. "But when I got warmed up I went out and hitched up the team and started out on the trail again."

While racing the Iditarod, Paulsen feeds his dogs five warm meals a day. He carries warm food for them in an insulated chest and heats food as well during stops. He also carries water for the dogs and uses food high in water content to prevent dehydration in the dogs. On the trail an individual dog can eat up to 20 pounds of food a day.

This year Paulsen is training dogs which are continuing to impress him as each day passes. One of his lead dogs will be "Spitz", one of 12 dogs being purchased from Don Leary of Rose Isle, Canada. Leary purchased Coppermine Village dogs in the Northwest Territories and has kept the strain pure. About six of the 12 dogs will make the Iditarod run.

Also in the team will be three pups from "Cookie", Paulsen's lead dog on the 1983 race. Completing the team will be dogs borrowed from Dave Brian of Puposky — Alaskan huskies which are the very best from Brian's own team. Five dogs have been loaned by Brian to run the race. None of the dogs which Paulsen ran in the Iditarod in 1983 will be on the 1985 team.

Other Minnesotans have attempted the Iditarod. Mark Nordman of Grand Marais finished somewhere behind Paulsen in 1983. Gary Hokkanen of Cook placed about 10th in his assault on the trail several years ago and Tim White of Grand Marais has also run the race. None but Paulsen plan to run it again.

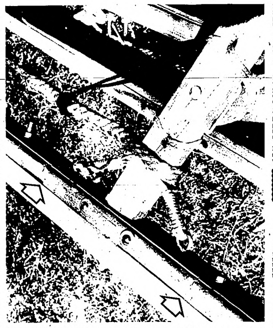
Paulsen learned much in his first race, about dogs, about Alaskan trail conditions, about himself. He has devised his own mixture of meat for dog food. He makes his own mukluks (footwear) from canvas and leather and builds his own sleds. He plans to have four sleds available for use in the 1985 race.

"There is an over-riding fear before the race," he admitted. "You have devoted so much time and effort and tuned your dogs into a fine machine but you know that every year there are many racers who don't finish. There are many things that can happen on the trail; things that can't be foreseen and avoided. You have to simply react to them as they happen."

Yet he will once again pay the $1,049 entry fee and make the demanding run on the Iditarod trail.

"There is a feeling from the race that can't be explained to someone who hasn't run it," Paulsen said. "It is as if you are elevated out of yourself by the race and there is an extreme elation when the race is over. But more than that, Alaska is an unbelievably beautiful place and the race gives you an excuse to be a part of it, to share its wilderness solitude and gain experiences available nowhere else."

And beyond that, in 1985 Gary Paulsen wants to prove he and his dogs are good enough to finish among the top racers in the world, and maybe, with a little luck, even to win.



SLED DESIGN of the dogsleds built by Gary Paulson utilizes lashings as much as possible to permit the sled to flex as it traverses rough terrain. The broken runner (indicated by arrows in the above photo) was sustained in a dash through wooden country and has been repaired for training use only. Paulsen will will have four new sleds built for use on the 1,180-mile Iditarod trail race next March.

REFLECTIONS
Kindness is contagious . . . it generates all kinds of good by-products . . . such as big, wide smiles, warm hugs, friendly greetings and acts of courtesy. You may be muddling along, just barely making it thru your day when you meet someone who pays you a compliment or encourages you as a person. All of a sudden you feel so much better you treat the next person you meet kindly too. Kindness is indeed contagious.

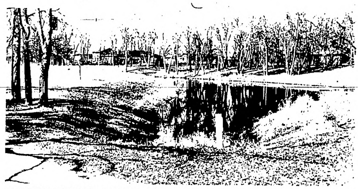
INTENTIONAL DUPLICATE EXPOSURE



BOAT CHANNEL which gives river access to residents of Robin Hood Drive lies between them and Finsbury Park. Residents along the channel, including city health officer Dr. Richard Heinrichs, claim that stagnant water in the channel and a ditch to the south of it is responsible for a mosquito problem, and have requested dredging of the ditch by the city, in hopes of increasing water flow to the channel. Permit to excavate has been denied by the Minnesota department of natural resources, on grounds that it would not provide an effective solution to the problem, due to recurring sedimentation. As requested, the excavation would not involve the boat channel, except for widening on the south end, with installation of a larger culvert under the road in the immediate foreground of the picture. In recommending the denial, area hydrologist Donald Grasser noted that the survey done by the city's consulting engineers indicated that the "velocity in a ditch of any cross-section will be less than desirable," and would "require constant cleaning of debris and aquatic growth."

Soo Line Says First Quarter Revenues Rose

Led by a 38 per cent gain in revenue ton miles, Soo Line railroad company sharply improved its revenues and net income in the first quarter over the prior year, according to Thomas M. Beckley, chairman of the board.

First quarter net income more than tripled from $1.3 million or 17 cents per share in 1983, to $4.9 million or 65 cents per share in 1984. Revenues for the quarter were up 25 per cent from 1983 to $83.5 million.

"The strong rebound in traffic which began last summer, continued into the first quarter," Beckley said. "Total carloadings during the quarter rose 25 per cent in comparison with last year."

Carloading for most major commodity groups were up substantially from 1983. Carloads of farm products rose 54 per cent, chemicals were up 35 per cent, nonmetallic minerals were up 50 per cent, intermodal up 78 per cent, primary metals up 57 per cent and waste or scrap up 70 per cent. Pulp and paper traffic rose three per cent for the quarter but was held down due to strikes in British Columbia which reduced the movement of woodpulp into the United States. Lumber and wood products as well as food products traffic declined slightly from last year.

Movement of grain and potash in solid trainloads increased substantially this year. A total of 138 trains of grain or potash moved over the Soo compared to 48 last year. Solid trainloads or grain and potash operate from Canada, the Twin Cities or Twin Ports over Soo's lines to Chicago.

The Company anticipates an expanded track maintenance program this year. Large increases are projected for new rock ballast and tie installations including programs on branch lines in North Dakota, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

Caution Urged When Shopping By Mail-Order

Noting that Postal Consumer Protection Week is April 23 to 29, Thief River Falls Postmaster Dick McCloskey offered some advice to mail-order shoppers to reduce the risk of being swindled.

"The cardinal rule is:" he says, "If a deal sounds too good to be true, it probably is." He offered the following additional advice:

— Beware of exaggerated claims or unusually low prices.

— Don't be rushed. Avoid offers that claim to be your "last chance" to get a bargain.

— Keep a copy of the advertisement from which you ordered.

— Never send cash. Use a check, money order or credit card because, if necessary, these can be traced.

— Keep a record of the date of your order and the number of your check. Retain the canceled check when it is returned to you.

— If you have doubts about a company, check with the Better Business Bureau or a local consumer protection agency to see if there are any complaints on record against the company. It is best to do this before ordering.

A major problem this year has been C.O.D. scams. Phone solicitors are calling around the country selling merchandise or vacation packages by C.O.D. mail. The customer usually winds up with nothing of value.

"Mail-order shopping can be a real convenience for busy people and can offer discerning shoppers a chance to get goods only available through the mail. I urge mail-order shoppers to remember these few words of advice," McCloskey said.

Who Owns Farmland?

About six million Americans owned farmland in 1978 — about the same number as in 1946. But there is an increasing number of farmland owners who are not operators of their holdings.

According to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service, only one out of three farmland owners in 1978 was a farm operator. In 1946 there were seven out of 10 landowners who operated the land themselves. In 1978 there were two-thirds of the landowners who were renting or leasing their land to farmers.

Nine out of 10 farmers, however, hold title to at least part of the farms that they operate and farmers in general have larger average landholdings than non-farmers. On the average, farmers own more than 60 per cent of the land they farm and about 60 per cent of the nation's total farmland acreage.

In Pennington county in 1982, 192 farmers were full owners of their land, 174 were part owners and only 38 were tenants on land owned by others. There were 576 farms in Pennington county in private ownership in 1982, with 69 farms owned in partnership and 10 in family corporations.

Farmers should well ask themselves the question: "If we own the majority of the land and control and production of the crops, why don't we have any influence on the price we get for our grain, meat and milk?"

And sooner or later the answer should become obvious: "When we refuse to sell for less than a fair price, buyers will pay a fair price."

Until that realization is translated into action, it really doesn't make a great deal of difference who owns the land. . . the buyer owns the market for what is produced on it.

University On Right Track

Following editorial is from the Grand Rapids Herald-Review:

There is a brief but quickly suppressed urge to chuckle at a recent study which reports that the complexity of life at the University of Minnesota observes the University's "extraordinary resources for providing first-class undergraduate education."

What it's really saying is that the main campus is too big and unwieldy to provide the friendly touch of smaller colleges.

President C. Peter Magrath appointed a Student Experience Task Force last fall as one of five groups to examine various aspects of the University. Students, faculty, staff and alumni were included. The first part of the report deals with specifics for making daily life outside the classroom less complicated and making the University more "user-friendly."

"For me, the most important finding in the report is that the University has extraordinary resources for providing a first-class undergraduate education," says John Wallace, head of the project and assistant vice president for academic affairs. "But some of our biggest problems seem to involve student access to these resources. We have to do a much better job of bringing together resources and undergraduates."

Not surprisingly, most students surveyed see the University as impersonal and cite specific problems such as long lines and unfriendly personnel. With 57,000 students, long lines and cold shoulders are not unexpected, although better scheduling might make more efficient use of everyone's time.

But there is no excuse for "unfriendly personnel." The University is competing for students in the same manner a business seeks shoppers. The customer must come first, and there is no reason for a university to allow any employees to treat students as anything but important customers.

We can't quite agree with Wallace when he says that "improving user-friendliness at a large, decentralized institution is not as simple as it may sound." There is nothing complicated about providing respectful and friendly service for those who purchase a product. Education needs attractive packaging just as much as any other product.

There is no question that the University of Minnesota is a great institution which offers an amazing variety of resources for its students. Its curriculum and effective teaching are the major reasons for its existence and its undeniable success. And it is wise to survey and study its problems.

"We have to learn effective new ways of communicating with undergraduates about programs, policies, services, activities and facilities," Wallace says. "We have to improve the physical environment and make day to day interactions between the University and its students as efficient and humane as possible."

There is no way for a university with 57,000 students to provide the warm, small-town atmosphere of a college of 3,000 or 4,000 students. Some young people simply can't adjust to the pressures and numbers of a major campus. But the University is on the right track when it tries to make life less complicated and more friendly for its students.

Who Should Decide Winners?

Following editorial is by Mike O'Connor in the Hastings Star-Gazette:

Hold on folks, we are nowhere near November but the media is already making great hay out of the contest.

I think something less that 20 per cent of the Democrats turned out in Iowa for the caucuses. Mondale was the winner and then they lined up after that.

The point here is that the media said Mondale must win the vote decisively to be a winner. What's decisive? The media was to decide that. Otherwise, if it wasn't up to their standards, he would be a loser. But to see the media coverage on the event, you'd think we were in the middle of an honest-to-goodness full-scale election.

Hart took New Hampshire, it isn't even much of a Democratic state. They've certainly been noted for being mavericks in their voting styles. And then we had more primaries.

My whole point in bringing this up is that the media is playing a bit too much of an active role in our election process. It is one thing to "report" who a winner is and who placed second, third and so on. It is quite another thing to declare "winners" just because they might have hit some magical percentage of votes that some TV news commentator decided was valid.

That has happened plenty of times before.

You've seen the person. He sits behind the camera and says that so and so needs more than 40 per cent to pull off this primary. If the poor slob gets 30 per cent he's declared a loser and the guy next to him is a winner.

Let's face it, these primaries are media events. There isn't much else going on. They play them to the hilt.

But the fact is, often there are so few people involved in voting that it really isn't fair to put too much emphasis on much of this.

The same happens election eve. When the voting places close in the East, most of the country is still voting. Yet, after just a ward or two is reported, here come the projections. It's not much past 8 p.m. out East and we've got the winners, and most folks out in California are just coming home from work and thinking about going to vote.

There is much to be said for the excellent, and quick, reporting that we receive in this country. But it has its drawbacks. At times, we get things just a bit too quick.

The other thing that must be curbed by the media is their editorial remarks and their role of playing kingmaker in this process we call elections.

The temptation to be first and to say that we called the winner first is great. Somehow they've got to curb that need.

I don't like the idea of pollsters or the big media folks telling me how I think or awarding "winners" without the total vote count in.

It's going to be a long political year.

Mild Weather Boosts Early Ag Fieldwork

Mild weather last week allowed spring fieldwork to get started early in a few areas, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. Progress was halted by moderate to heavy rains late in the week. Although the ground was still wet, the lack of frost has allowed snow melt to penetrate the soil so little surface runoff was seen.

The southwest quarter of the state was still very wet from heavy late winter precipitation, but most of the rest of the state will require only a short period of drying conditions before fieldwork can begin. Average date full-scale fieldwork is expected to begin is April 23. Topsoil moisture as of April 13 is rated three per cent short, 40 per cent adequate, and 57 per cent surplus, while the subsoil is rated two per cent short, 57 per cent adequate, and 41 per cent surplus.

Winter grains and hayfields are greening up quickly, aided by the showers which ended over the weekend. Condition of winter wheat and rye is rated 28 per cent poor to fair and 29 per cent good to excellent, with 43 per cent still dormant. Winter kill is expected to be minimal. Hayfields are rated 21 per cent poor to fair and 24 per cent good to excellent with 55 per cent still dormant. Pastures are rated 24 per cent poor to fair and 19 per cent good to excellent, with 57 per cent still dormant.

Seeding of small grains began during the week in scattered localities extending from the Red River valley through the central sandy areas to the southeast corner of the state. An estimated one per cent of intended spring wheat acreage now seeded compared with none for this date a year ago and nine per cent for the five-year average 1979 through 1983. Oats are one per cent seeded compared with none a year ago and eight per cent for the five-year average.

Almost no fieldwork on row crops was completed during the week. Under one per cent of corn and soybean ground is prepared. This is the same as last year for both crops and compares with five-year average of three per cent for corn and two per cent for soybeans. Some early potatoes were planted in the Big Lake area and sugarbeet planting is expected to begin soon in the Moorhead area.

House Passes Catastrophic Health Bill

Minnesota House has passed a catastrophic health program in Minnesota with a bill setting eligibility requirements and appropriating $2.5 million to implement it, according to Rep. Wally Sparby, of Thief River Falls, a co-author of the legislation.

Rep. Sparby said he was pleased by the action taken by the House.

"I'm proud to have been an author of this legislation and to have steered the bill through the legislative process. I will be very happy to see this crucial program implemented again," Rep. Sparby said.

The catastrophic health program was implemented in 1977 to provide a state fund that would help families who are financially strapped because of large medical bills resulting from a catastrophic illness.

When the program was eliminated in 1980 because budget deficits left no money for funding, Minnesota citizens protested the action. Legislators put the reinstatement of the program high on their list of legislative priorities.

"The original program was one which the entire state was proud of. It was a blow to Minnesota when the program was struck. We now have a solid piece of legislation that will help many Minnesotans who greatly need help," Sparby said.

Under this legislation, a Minnesota resident is eligible for the program if during a period of a year that person incurs expenses exceeding 25 per cent of his or her income up to $20,000; plus 40 per cent of his or her household income between $20,000 and $30,000; plus 50 per cent of his or her household income in excess of $30,000 or $3,000, whichever is greater.

An individual is also eligible if nursing home expenses for him or her self or any dependents exceed 20 per cent of his household income in a year. The graduated scale was established so that individuals who earn more money collect less from the state fund.

Eligible individuals are encouraged to seek third party coverage and to maintain such coverage, Sparby said. Insurance premiums may be included in the expenses used in determination of eligibility.

Jury Owns UMD Tennis Record

Thief River Falls' Bill Jury, a 1980 Lincoln High School graduate, has become the winningest player in University of Minnesota-Duluth (UMD) tennis history.

In four years with the Bulldogs he set a school victory record with a 60-13 mark in singles and a 60-14 showing in doubles for a combined won-loss mark of 120-27, an .816 winning percentage about three-quarters of the way through the current 1984 season.

A recent article in the Duluth News-Tribune featured Jury as he topped the school tennis record. The piece said Jury has been a model of consistency for UMD's tennis program. He is everything coach Don Roach has ever wanted in a player, wrote Kevin Pates.

"To me, you can't have any better attitude than Bill has," Roach told Pates. "He might not always win, but he's always competitive, and that's what you want more than anything else."

Jury played No. 3 singles for the Bulldogs as a freshman and won a Northern Intercollegiate Conference (NIC) title. The next two years he moved up to No. 2 singles and won two more conference crowns. He's never lost a set in the conference singles tournament, a record he will try to keep intact at No. 1 singles during the 1984 NIC tournament Thursday, Friday and Saturday at St. Cloud.

"He's the most consistent player I've ever had," said Roach.

Jury's success has also mirrored UMD's the past four years as the Bulldogs placed second in the 1981 NIC meet and have won the league championship the past two years. They won 14 of their first 17 matches this spring.

After a standout football-hockey-tennis career for the Prowlers, Jury came close to accepting a hockey scholarship to Brown University in Providence, R.I.

"I thought about playing (Division) I hockey, but I'm glad I decided to come here," Jury told Pates. "I came here because of the academics, and tennis has just worked out nicely."

Jury will graduate this spring with a criminology degree. After working the past two years as an intern with Arrowhead Regional Corrections, he hopes to get a job as a probation officer.

"Sometimes you think about what tennis might be like at Stanford or another big school," said Jury, "but this is the kind of program I like. It's low key and we just do the best we can. We have fun win or lose, and if we lose, we know it's not the end of the world."

"Bill doesn't have a power game; he is more of a finesse player," explained Roach. "He has great reactions. For every 10 shots he has to guess on (where the opponent will make a return), he will guess right nine times."

+ In area high school baseball season openers last week involving future Thief River Falls opponents, Moorhead overwhelmed Ada 20-5, Crookston came from behind to edge Blackduck 8-7 and Bemidji out-scored Wadena 18-8. All-time career scoring leader among the boys in Minnesota is Norm Grow, a 1958 graduate of Foley, with 2,852 points. # Prowlers Score In Final Inning To Edge RLF 4-3

Thief River Falls scored twice with two out in the top of the seventh inning Thursday for a 1984 season-opening 4-3 high school baseball win at Red Lake Falls.

Tim Bottem collected his third hit of the game to start Thief River Falls' final inning rally. He scored when Tim Nyland dropped a two-out bloop double down the first base line to tie the game 3-3. Brian (Scott) Johnston then came up with his second hit of the day, a game-winning RBI single, to score Nyland from second.

Thief River Falls had an early 2-0 lead, scoring single runs the first two innings. Bottem began the game with a double in the first and Johnston produced a two-out RBI single. In the second, Todd Ortloff singled, moved up on an error on a pick-off attempt and scored on the first of Bob Huot's two hits.

But Red Lake Falls, aided by six walks, chipped away at the lead, scoring once in each of the middle three innings to go ahead 3-2 in the bottom of the sixth.

Thief River Falls coach Charlie Cornell said he was satisfied with the Prowlers' first outing that featured nine base hits and just one error.

"We hit the ball hard. "We're a little disappointed, though, that we didn't score more runs. Defensively we played very well in the field. Walks hurt us — six is too many. But we were encouraged by what we saw."

Thief River Falls' second start of the year will come Tuesday at Ada, a 4:30 p.m. game. The Prowlers will then begin a six-game homestead Thursday by hosting Middle River in a 4:30 p.m. game at the fairgrounds diamond.

Lincoln Golf Teams Open 1984 Season This Week

Lincoln high school golf teams will open their 1984 schedules this week, with coach Jack Boyer's boys beginning with a 9:30 a.m. meet at Bagley Tuesday and coach Ruth Onkka's girls starting with a 1 p.m. meet at East Grand Forks Thursday.

Boyer is working with a dozen varsity hopefuls, a list headed by senior Jim Geatz. "He should be as good as anybody around here," explained Boyer, who said freshman Bob Geatz has also shown plenty of promise.

Others working for varsity status include Bob Breiland, Dan Upham, Dave Onkka, Todd Anderson, Tim Reuter, Mike Sparby, Eric Charlson, Jason Peterson, Jason Tangquist and Jim Breiland.

"We'll be respectable," promised Boyer. "We should be right in there; we may not win, but we'll scare the heck out of them — we always do."

Thief River Falls boys will also be in action Friday with a 9:30 a.m. meet at Fergus Falls.

Onkka has a squad of 28 varsity and junior varsity golfers, including seniors Julie Amundgaard, Denise Anderson, Missy Bondy, Kristen Pollick, Kathy Reuter and Karen Wennberg; juniors Paula Bergen, Delaine Johnson, Kari Jorde, Cindy Kain, Kelly Olson, Michelle Olson, Cindi Russell, Jenny Spencer, Heidi Tangquist and Lana Wagner; sophomores Anissa Anderson, Heather Bakke, Jenny Davidson, KayLynn Espe, Kristen Freeman, Marnie Johnson, Jim Rude and Janelle Smidt; freshmen Gayle Borchert and Karen Schmitz; plus eighth graders Jill Olson and Heidi Tofte.

"I'm looking forward to a good season," said Onkka. "Every year we seem to improve. I really think we should do well this year."

Lincoln boys have just one home meet appearance this season — the annual Thief River Falls Invitational, scheduled to be held Tuesday, May 15, at 9:30 a.m. at the Thief River Country Club.

While the boys concentrate on larger invitational meets, the girls also add several dual outings to their schedule, giving them three home meets, including the annual Thief River Falls Invitational on Monday, April 30, at 9:30 a.m.

Extra-Curricular Activity Aids School Performances

Participants in the extra-curricular activity programs sponsored by the Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL) earn better grades and are absent from school less days than those students who do not participate in extra-curricular activities. This information is based on a survey recently completed by the MSHSL among its 500 member schools, reported Larry Larson, MSHSL director of information and publications.

Sixty-one per cent or 305 of the 500 member schools responded to the survey. All data was based on information for the 1982-83 school year.

Grade point average of the composite student bodies of the 305 reporting schools was 2.68. The average days absent for this group was 8.76 days per year.

Student athletes for whom the grade point average were compiled had a 2.84 average or about a B- average. The survey proved the attendance patterns also were better than the student body average with the boy and girl student athletes only being absent 7.44 days for the school year.

Grade point average of the students who participate in speech, drama, debate and music was 2.98 or a B average. Their absences averaged only 6.94 days per year.

GPA's and days absent data as established in the tables below are based on information reported by each of the 305 individual high schools that participated in the survey. There is no standardization from high school to high school so care must be taken to understand that this merely is the compilation of data from each member school. The grade point averages (GPA) are based on a scale of 4-A, 3-B, 2-C, 1-D and 0-fail.

Member schools of the MSHSL sponsor a total number of activities in excess of 7,100, or an average 14.3 activities per school. This number includes 26 athletic activities, plus speech, one act play, debate, band, orchestra and choir. The activities include 146,672 participants in boys and girls athletics and 62,599 in the fine arts programs.

Survey was conducted by the MSHSL with the support of the Minnesota Secondary School Principals Association. It was the first study by any statewide organization to consider such a broad base of data.

Murrae Freng, the Executive Director of the MSHSL stated, "The MSHSL is grateful to each of the 305 member schools who participated in this landmark study. It is interesting to note that students who are involved in the school activity programs generally have better grade point averages as well as better attendance patters. The study documents what school officials have long assumed to be true."

A third perception of the study dealt with the hours of excused absences from classes to participate in MSHSL sponsored contests. The data collected indicated that the greatest number of excused absences occurred in spring activities. This particular component of the study will be studied in greater detail in the near future.

Grade Point Averages

Average GPA for all students — 2.68; Grade 10 — 2.55; Grade 11 — 2.71; Grade 12 — 2.79.

Tom Williams of Thief River Falls recorded the first hole-in-one of the 1984 golf season Wednesday at the Thief River Country Club.

He used an eight-iron for his early-season ace on the No. 4 hole. It was his first round of golf of the season.

Williams was golfing with L.L. Jones, Dean Anderson and Bill Moreau of Thief River Falls, along with Don Bang of Crookston.

MR-MCC Co-op Team Rallies To Beat Roseau JV

Striking for two runs in the bottom of the seventh inning Thursday, the Middle River-Marshall County Central cooperative high school baseball team evened its 1984 season record at 1-1 with a 9-8 come-from-behind victory over the Roseau junior varsity in a game played at Newfolden.

Roseau led 8-7 entering the last half inning, but Darin Peterson singled, Brian Cwikla tied the game with an RBI double and Shawn Wagner won it with an RBI single.

Jon Kragness was 2-for-2 and Cwikla was 2-for-3 for the winners, who had a 7-6 base hit edge.

Tom Neumann, the third Middle River-MCC pitcher of the game, was the winner. Dan Cwikla was the starter, with Darin Rokke pitching the fourth and fifth innings before Neumann took over in the sixth.

Middle River-MCC will visit Greenbush Tuesday for a 4:15 p.m. game and will be in Thief River Falls Thursday for a 4:30 p.m. contest.

Northmen Lose Twice At UMC

University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC) handed Northland Community College a pair of identical 11-1 losses Wednesday in a 1984 season-opening Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) Northwest Division baseball doubleheader at Crookston.

Both of the scheduled seven-inning games ended in the bottom of the sixth inning because of the ten-run-rule. The wins improved the Trojans' overall record to 4-0 following a two-game sweep over the University of North Dakota junior varsity earlier. The Northmen had a scheduled season-opening twinbill at UND erased because of the weather.

Northland will play two more Northwest Division road doubleheaders this week. The Northmen visit Brainerd Wednesday for a 1 p.m. start and drive to Fergus Falls Saturday for a 12-noon twinbill.

At one point, Northland coach Chet Engelman figured he was three-deep at the catching position. But sophomore Ladd Bjugson transferred to North Dakota State University after the winter quarter, while freshmen Steve Robinson and Todd Stokke, both with high school catching experience, found themselves scholastically ineligible.

By default that left the catching chores to freshman Mike Bellanger of Waubun Wednesday, and he had more than a little trouble adjusting to the position, being charged with 14 passed balls in the two games — nine in the opener. Many of those resulted in UMC runs.

Northland fell behind 9-0 before scoring in the top of the fifth when the visitors bunched three of their five base hits. Freshman Bruce Nephew of Fertile, who had two singles for the game, started the inning with a base hit, stole second, moved to third on a single by Keith Huerd and scored on an RBI single to center by Sevin Sanders.

Huerd (Warroad) and Sanders (TRF) are the only sophomores back from last year's strong Northland team.

Duplicating the first-game score, UMC finished the sweep with an 11-1 victory in the nightcap.

Despite the one-sided score, Northland was out-hit only 10-7 and committed just one error. But five more passed balls charged against the Northmen, plus six stolen bases kept the Trojans in scoring position throughout the contest.

Lone Northland run crossed the plate in the top of the third as Jerry Bjerke singled and later scored on a wild pitch. Bjerke, a freshman from Thief River Falls, was 2-for-2, including a triple, while Kevin Sanders, a sophomore from Thief River Falls, was 2-for-3.

TRF Foot Races Are Scheduled May 5

Two foot races to be sponsored by the Falls Clinic will be held in Thief River Falls Saturday, May 5, starting at 9 a.m.

There will be a 10-kilometer (6.1-mile) race and a two-mile "fun run." Both races will begin at the main clinic entrace at First Street and LaBree Avenue, loop through the city, and return to finish at the clinic.

Special race T-shirts will be given to everyone completing either race. Trophies will be awarded to the first place male and female finisher in four age categories: 19-and-under; 20-29; 30-39; and over 40.

In addition, special awards will be given to any finisher in the 10-kilometer race who defeats the "Falls Clinic Rabbit," Dr. Richard Heinrichs, rumored to be the favorite in the men's senior division for runners over 40.

Entry forms are available at the Falls Clinic, Northwestern Hospital Services and TG Sporting Goods. Entry fee is $2.

Race director is Dr. Jim Langland of Internal Medicine Department at the Falls Clinic.

Purpose of the races is to promote the theme, "Health In The Long Run," and it is hoped the races will provide an incentive for individuals to begin or continue personal exercise programs, according to race officials.

Dr. Langland states that regular exercise has been shown to lead to a reduced heart attack rate, lower cholesterol levels, lower blood sugar content, lower blood pressure, improved sleep patterns and reduced stress. The motto, "Health In The Long Run," has been chosen to reflect those benefits.

A slow faucet drip can waste 10 to 20 gallons of water a day, says "National Wildlife" magazine.

Lincoln Girls Win Bemidji Triangular Track Meet

After achieving little in the way of team success in three earlier outings, the girls on the Lincoln high school track team enjoyed a winning performance Thursday in a triangular outing at Bemidji.

Thief River Falls collected 70 points, while Bemidji scored 65 and Cass Lake 29.

It was more of the same in the junior varsity portion of the meet as Thief River Falls won with 69 points, followed by Bemidji with 49 and Cass Lake 2.

"That was probably the most productive meet we've been in for a long time," acknowledged, Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer. "It really surprised us."

In their first three meets the Prowlers finished fifth in a five-team meet at Crookston April 6; fourth in a four-team meet at Crookston April 13; and tenth in a 16-team meet at Grafton April 16.

"We took it careful the first couple of meets," explained Schafer. "We wanted to make sure we put the girls in the right spots. We had a lot of depth in this meet, and we ran some very good times — that's what pleased me the most. All the times are good for this time of the year for us."

Especially pleasing, according to Schafer, were the 1600 and 3200 relays for the Prowlers, who normally do the bulk of their scoring in the longer races. "We feel confident," he said. "From the 400 (meters) on up, we'll compete with anybody."

Thief River Falls will be back in Crookston for a 4 p.m. meet Thursday. The Prowlers' home debut will be next week at the Tues., May 1, boys and girls Quentin Jones Invitational.

Boundary Waters Limits

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources has changed the regulations on fishing limits for Minnesota-Canadian boundary waters.

Under the new rules, anglers with both Minnesota and Canadian licenses will be allowed to possess only one limit of fish from these boundary waters regardless of the number of licenses held.

Previously, anglers with both a Minnesota and a Canadian license were allowed to have the limit allowed under each license, providing they were on land and not on the water when checked by conservation officers.

Anglers returning from Canada after fishing the inland waters of Ontario or Manitoba who have both a Minnesota and a Canadian license and who wish to angle in Minnesota, may not, while in Minnesota, possess more than the legal limit of fish allowed under one of those licenses — unless the excess fish are accompanied by proof of taking from inland Canadian waters.

Acceptable proof will be either written verification issued by United States Customs of having entered the United States at a time consistent with the alleged time of having taken fish in inland Canadian water, or a receipt from a resort, campground or place of lodging located on inland Canadian waters issued at a time consistent with the alleged time of having taken fish in inland Canadian waters.

Limits established for various species of fish taken from Minnesota-Canada boundary waters are the same as from Minnesota inland waters, with the exception of the walleye and sauger limit of Lake of the Woods.

On that lake, anglers may have an aggregate of 14, providing not more than six are walleyes. Because of the problem in identifying dressed fish as to species, regulations require that dressed or filleted saugers be counted as walleyed pike.

Minnesota-Canada boundary waters are listed on Page 10 of the 1984 Minnesota Fishing Regulations, available from DNR fisheries and enforcement officials and license agents.

Urge Flood Insurance

Department of Natural Resources has urged Minnesota residents to assess their exposure to flood loss and consider purchasing flood insurance.

Officials pointed out that there is a five day waiting period for a flood insurance policy to take effect. They also emphasized that a standard homeowners property insurance policy does not provide coverage against flood loss.

Flood insurance can be purchased for a structure or its contents through the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP), provided the property to be insured is located in a community participating in the NFIP.

Community eligibility in the NFIP is established by municipal government for incorporated areas and county government for unincorporated areas.

Hassen Township in Hennepin county and White Bear Township in Ramsey county are the only townships in Minnesota enrolled in the NFIP separately from county eligibility.

An individual (including renters) can purchase flood insurance from the NFIP through any property agent or broker licensed to sell property insurance in Minnesota. Those interested in purchasing flood insurance should contact a local insurance agent or broker, or call the NFIP toll-free at 1-800-638-6620.

Maps are available on request.

As in past races, all participants will be required to wear helmets.

Registration before May 2 will be $5 for BSU students and $7 for the general public. After May 2, the fee will increase by $1. You may register on race day, but entry by mail is preferred.

Northwomen Drop Division Twinbill

Brainerd, after an 11-1 first-game victory, held off a last-inning rally to claim a 13-12 decision over Northland in the nightcap for a Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) Northwest Division women's fast pitch softball doubleheader sweep Wednesday at Brainerd.

Northland fell to 0-4 with the losses, but coach Deb Jacobson said it was a much-improved performance over a season-opening appearance at the Inver Hills invitational the week before when Northland was out-scored 53-5 in two games.

"They have a little more confidence now," reported Jacobson. "They did a good job. It was fun."

Northland has Northwest Division doubleheaders scheduled Wednesday at Fergus Falls and Friday at home against the University of Minnesota-Crookston. Both have 3 p.m. starting times.

Brainerd 11, Northland 1

Northland was out-hit just 5-4 and matched Brainerd's one error on defense, but the Red Raiders worked in nine walks to emerge with an 11-1 five-inning first-game victory.

Lone Northland run came when Brenda Dahl singled, moved up on a pair of infield outs and scored on a single by Lynette Huot.

Huot was the losing pitcher. She struck out two. Pam Steinhaus was the winning pitcher, walking only two and striking out four.

Brainerd 13, Northland 12

Trailing 13-6 going into the seventh inning, Northland threatened to leave Brainerd with a split when the Northwomen rallied for six runs before the rally ended at 13-12.

Northland, out-hit 16-8, collected six of them in that seventh inning rally. Kathy Pietruszewski, a freshman from East Grand Forks, was 2-for-3 for the visitors with four RBI's. Kim Phillips, a sophomore from Lancaster, also had two hits and drove in two runs.

Kari Skoglund was the losing pitcher. She walked five and struck out 1. Connie Tuttle was the winner, with five walks and seven strike-outs, but she needed seventh inning relief help from Pam Steinhaus, the first-game winner.

Brainerd had three of the game's four errors.

Major Stream Study Done By State DNR

Major streams in the Rainy River drainage, St. Croix River drainage and along the North Shore of Lake Superior are being surveyed to study the distribution and abundance of Minnesota's 149 fish species.

Directed by Dr. James Underhill, University of Minnesota, the project is funded in part by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, Section of Fisheries. Matching funds are provided from citizen donations to the nongame wildlife checkoff.

Fish not traditionally taken by fishermen are the primary focus of the survey. Included are sculpins, darters, sticklebacks and madtoms. Many of these fish occupy remote portions of streams not frequented by most people. Several of the species also are extremely difficult to identify.

This current survey is part of a larger, statewide stream survey initiated in 1972 as a cooperative effort of the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources and the University of Minnesota. The long range objective is to inventory all fish species found throughout the streams and rivers of Minnesota. Extensive data is available on the fish fauna of the state's rivers and streams.

State budget cuts in 1976 unexpectedly put an end to the 1972 survey before all the major drainages in the state had been sampled. Widespread public support for the nongame wildlife tax checkoff made completion of this important survey possible.

— DNR Hotline —

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources Division of Enforcement would like to inform you of the laws regarding shining and the new additional shining law.

Shining laws are in effect all year round. MS 100.29 subd. 10 provides that it is unlawful to throw or cast the rays of a spotlight, headlight or other artifical light on any highway, or in any field, woodland, or forest for the purpose of spotting, locating, or taking any wild animal while having in possession any firearm, bow and arrow, or other implement whereby big game could be killed, unless guns and bows are unloaded and unstrung and encased and contained in the trunk of the car with the trunk door closed. If the vehicle has no trunk, the firearm or bow must be placed in the rearmost location of the vehicle.

A new additional shining law is in effect September 1 to December 31 each year, whether or not in possession of a wapon. MS 100.29 subd. 9a provides that between the hours of 10 p.m. and 6 a.m. from September 1 to December 31, it is unlawful to cast the rays of a spotlight, headlight, or other artificial light in any field, woodland, or forest for the purpose of spotting, locating, or taking any wild animal except for taking raccoon in accordance with the provisions of MSA 100.29 subd. 10. It is not a violation of this subdivision for any person to carry out any agricultural, occupational or recreational practice, including snowmobiling which is not related to spotting, locating or taking any wild animal.

During the time period between September 1 and December 31 you may not attempt to retrieve game with an artificial light from 10 p.m. to 6 a.m. Before 10 p.m. you may still use a light to locate game you shot, but were unable to retrive during legal shooting hours as long as you do not possess a firearm, bow and arrow, or crossbow. You may still use a flashlight to find your way into and out of a hunting area, but do not shine the surrounding area as you pass through — it is illegal. Provided they do not possess a firearm, bow and arrow or crossbow, farmers legally may shine their lands to locate livestock. Raccoon hunters, while hunting on foot only and using dogs, may use a light to find their way and may use a light to shoot raccoon.

If you have any information regarding poaching instances, call TIP ( Turn in Poachers), 24 hours a day. Rewards are offered. Telephone 1-800-652-9093.

DNR Reports Winter Fish Kill About Normal

While more than 150 lakes were opened to "promiscuous fishing" this winter by the Department of Natural Resources, the number is about average for a Minnesota winter, according to DNR fisheries specialists.

They noted that in 1979 more than 250 lakes were opened to such fishing.

In lakes opened to promiscuous fishing, the DNR allows fish to be taken without limit. The lakes opened are shallow bodies of water where tests have shown that oxygen has declined below the level that will support fish life.

Oxygen depletion occurs when a heavy snow cover on the ice cuts off the sunlight that would otherwise stimulate the growth of aquatic plants that supply oxygen to the water.

Most "winterkill" lakes are located in the southern half of the state.

New Wildlife Stamp Issued Through FWS

First "Wildlife Stamp of the Year," an unprecedented portrait of two Ross' geese by renowned wildlife artist Chuck Ripper, is now available from the National Wildlife Federation (NWF) in exclusive stamp and print combinations for collectors.

After almost 50 years of issuing wildlife stamps, the National Wildlife Federation commissioned Ripper to create the striking painting, available as a limited edition art print, a special edition, art print, an individual stamp, or a sequentially numbered block of four stamps.

"Ross' Goose" is a portrait of the smallest of North American geese, often described as a miniature snow goose. In September, these birds of the northern Canadian tundra begin their long migration south, heading for California's lush Sacramento Valley.

Ripper has painted many of the National Wildlife Federation's wildlife stamps, and drawn more than a thousand wildflowers for Peterson's Field Guide.

His "Wildlife Stamp of the Year" is available in several versions:

+ First edition has been signed and individually numbered by Ripper, is limited to 1,500 prints and includes a mint condition stamp.

+ Special edition print is also signed and numbered, but has also been remarqued to include a small, personally drawn sketch unique to each print. This edition includes the stamp and is limited to 250.

+ Open edition is of the same high quality as the others but is not signed or numbered. The stamp is included.

+ Single Stamp of the Year is 2x2¾-inches and comes in a commemorative folder.

+ Block of four stamps, carrying an individual number in a sequence of only 5,000 blocks to be produced, comes in a commemorative folder.

For more information, write to Stamp of the Year, National Wildlife Federation, 1412 16th St., NW, Washington, D.C. 20036.

Wildlife Group Seeks Help In Tracking Birds

Help from citizens of the Missouri and Upper Mississippi River Valley states and several Canadian provinces is being sought in the location of more than 1,000 red-winged blackbirds, brightly marked for identification.

Attached to legs of the birds are small plastic ribbon of various colors.

Anyone observing the marked birds is asked to write a note advising of dates, ribbon color and location of the sightings to John Cummings, research biologist, Denver Wildlife Research Center, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Building 16, DFC, Denver, CO 80225.

Tracing of the birds is part of Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS) efforts to help farmers reduce or prevent damage to sunflower crops by blackbirds in North Dakota, South Dakota and western Minnesota.

"The color-marked birds currently are on their way north from Missouri and southwestern Minnesota," Cummings said. "We expect it's possible they may be observed in Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana and Wisconsin — as well as in Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Ontario.

LOOKING SOUTHEAST along the bank of the Red Lake River in Finsbury Park, one can see the curvature of the river as it makes a sweeping turn around the park. The individual standing in the upper left of the picture is at the mouth of a ditch which has resulted in some controversy in the city. Requests to dredge the ditch out in an attempt to increase water flow through it have been denied by the Minnesota department of natural resources, on grounds that water flow would not be significantly increased because the channel flow is practically flat. Because it is located on an inside bank of the river, area hydrologist Donald Grasser notes that recurrent sedimentation would require constant cleaning of debris and aquatic growth. Park board will meet on the issue at 7:30 p.m. tonight in city auditorium.

Area Hospital Use Is Reduced

Total hospital use fell dramatically in Minnesota during January and February, according to patient utilization data released today by the Minnesota Hospital association.

At Northwestern hospital in Thief River Falls, patient days in both January and February showed a decline of about 15 per cent from the same months hospital utilization in 1983. Outpatient utilization during the same period, however, showed an off-setting increase of about 11 per cent.

Hospital utilization varied widely around the state and approximately 25 per cent of the administrators said they felt the local economy was a significant reason for the drop in patient days.

In Northwestern Minnesota — Kittson, Roseau, Lake Of The Woods, Marshall, Beltrami, Polk, Pennington, Red Lake, Clearwater, Mahnomen and Hubbard counties — hospital admissions dropped 22.9 per cent in January, but recovered in February, with an admission drop of .4 per cent compared to the previous February. Total patient days fell 23.1 per cent in January and 10.7 per cent in February.

The average length of stay in northwest Minnesota in 1983 already was one of the shortest in the state, and dropped just .1 day in January and .6 day in February for average stays of 5.2 days and 5.1 days in January and February.

The hospital association, which represents all but one of the state's 178 acute care hospitals, reported that patient days — the total number of days spent in hospitals by all patients — dropped 16 per cent in January of 1984, compared to January of 1983, and 13 per cent in February compared to the previous February.

In January of 1984, patient days totalled 250,451, down from 297,680 during the previous January. February patient days were 231,068, compared to 264,761 in Febuary of 1983.

Admissions dipped slightly (one per cent) in January of 1984,, and were up slightly (one per cent) in February. A total of 43,378 persons were hospitalized in January and 39,384 in February this year.

The average length of stay for a patient also dropped sharply during these two months. In January of 1984, the average length of stay was 5.7 days, off more than one day from the previous January when the average stay was 6.8 days. February's length of stay also dipped from 6.7 days in 1983 to 5.8 days in 1984.

These figures were obtained from 148 hospitals statewide, which reprensent 83 per cent of all hospitals.

Most of the hospital administrators said they feel Medicare's new prospective payment system (PPS) for hospitals is the main cause for the decline in patient days and for the shorter lengths of stay.

(PPS was enacted last year by Congress to control Medicare spending. Under the PPS system, which had the support of the hospital industry, a hospital is paid a pre-determined amount for each Medicare patient, depending on the patient's diagnosis and treatment. The diagnoses and treatments fall into 467 different diagnosis-related groups, called DRGs. If a hospital can treat a patient for less than the DRG rate, the hospital can keep the difference. However, if it costs more to treat a patient, the hospital must absorb the extra cost. The incentive to hospitals is to treat patients as efficiently as possible and to discharge them as soon as it is medically feasible).

The PPS system started in October of 1983, and each hospital is phased into the new system at the start of its fiscal year. Only 28 of the 148 reporting hospitals were not yet under the PPS system.

Persons age 65 and older, those whose care is paid by Medicare, represent about 40 per cent of all persons who are hospitalized in Minnesota, and it is in this category where the greatest drop in patient days and in length of stay occurred. Medicare patient days fell 26 per cent in January and nearly 25 per cent in February.

The average length of stay for Medicare patients dropped 1.2 days in January for an average of 8.9 days and nearly two days in February for an average stay of 8.3 days.

The only patient categories to show increases in patient days and in lengths of stay were Medicaid and health maintenance organization (HMO) patients. Statewide, Medicaid patient days were up seven per cent and eight per cent respectively in January and February, and HMO patient days were up 30 per cent and 17.8 per cent. (It should be noted, however, that these two groups combined represent less than 10 per cent of all patient days and these increases may not be a part of a trend).

Those patients whose care is paid by other payers also experienced a drop in the average length of stay by .9 days in January for an average stay of 6.3 days and by .5 days in February for an average stay of 6.8 days. Total patient days in this category fell by 12 per cent in January and seven per cent in February.

Kidney Foundation Helps Local Family

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

People who develop serious kidney problems require frequent hospitalization or check-ups and the necessity for travel and overnight accommodations for family members presents an additional problem. It is a problem being addressed by the Thief River Falls area kidney foundation.

That is why when six-year-old Traci Rendulich of Thief River Falls returns to St. Luke's hospital in June for hospitalization and extensive examination, her parents will be able to receive some assistance with the expense for travel and lodging. Traci's mother, the former Margie Sorenson of Thief River Falls, will be able to be with her daughter during the process.

"They helped us when we needed it," Bob Rendulich and his wife said of the local foundation. "When we first called we couldn't get help because the organization hadn't completed its legal formation. But the next time we called we could pick up a check right away."

That was in early April when Traci had to go back to Fargo for her monthly examination and it was thought she may have to stay more than the day. The more extensive exam was put off to June, however, and the local kidney foundation has offered to provide needed funds at that time.

The Rendulich family moved back here from Oregon about two years ago and now live in the Aaseby trailer park near the drive-in theatre. In addition to Traci, the children include Lisa, seven; Kristen, four; Angela, two; and Eric, one. Bob was a truck driver for a number of years, hauling freight from coast to coast, but now is employed on the night shift at Bridgeman's in Thief River Falls, loading trucks.

Traci's kidney problem was discovered for the first time during a pre-school physical examination. It was learned that she had only one kidney and that it was severely enlarged due to urine retention. She was taken to a Grand Forks hospital where she underwent major surgery and was hospitalized from early July to mid-August of 1982.

For nine months following the surgery she had tubes protruding from her side for urine collection. Her kidney function continued, however, and the tubes were later removed in Fargo. Her condition is being closely monitored through local laboratory analysis and at least monthly check-ups at Fargo.

In late September last year, Traci began to limp quite heavily. She said her leg didn't hurt but it felt better when she limped. She was taken to the health clinic conducted here periodically through the state department of health.

Further examination indicated the existence of Legg-Perthes disease, a death of cells in the upper part of the main leg bone near the hip joint which leads to degeneration of the bone. She has been fitted with a brace and maintains an active role as a kindergarten student of Lois Benson at Mark Twain school. She also rides her bike and participates in active play.

AN EASY SMILE belies some of the physical difficulties encountered by six-year-old Traci Rendulich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Rendulich of Thief River Falls. In addition to degeneration of the right hip due to Legg Perthes disease, which requires wearing a brace, she has only one kidney and faces the likelihood of a kidney transplant at some time in the future. Despite the health problems, she maintains an active existence, attending Mark Twain elementary school, riding her bike and playing with her friends and four younger children in the family.

Changes In Law Liberalize FmHA Loan Authority

Emergency Agricultural Credit act of 1984, passed by congress recently and signed into law by President Reagan, makes major and immediate changes in the U.S. department of agriculture's farm loan programs administered by the Farmers Home administration (FmHA), according to state director Russ Bjorhus.

New law extends benefits to financially stressed farmers who were unable to qualify for them under previous law. Most immediately affected, Bjorhus said, are the disaster emergency and regular farm operating loan programs.

The new law opens the disaster emergency loan program to qualified farmers in any county bordering a county designated eligible for emergency loans resulting from a natural disaster occurring after May 30, 1983.

Nine counties in Minnesota have been so designated by secretary of agriculture John R. Block — most of them as a result of last year's heavy rains.

"We don't know at this time how many additional counties will be involved," Bjorhus said, "but we are preparing to meet the challenge." He also pointed out another provision in the new law which expands the opportunity to apply for emergency loans by two

Few Contests In School Filings

Present members of area school boards have expressed most interest in serving by filing for the annual school board elections to be held May 15, according to a Times survey of area school districts. Grygla and Oklee districts are notable exceptions.

A unique situation has developed at Newfolden where five of the seven members of the Marshall county central board will face the electorate in May. Three members of the board will have their regular terms expire this year and all have filed for reelection. They include Donna Graham, Doyle Harstad and David Bakke.

In addition, two board members who were appointed during the past year to fill

City Council Faces Zoning Hassles Again

Thief River Falls city council faced another ticklish zoning issue last night, as resident business people sought denial of a special use permit which would allow competition from out of town to erect a temporary structure to conduct retail sales.

Permit was applied for by Tim Shea's Nursery, to build a 20 by 80 foot greenhouse on a lot located just south of the Hardware Hank store in Northland Plaza, for the purpose of conducting retail sales of nursery stock from May 1 to July 1. The business would lease the property from Ev Ault for that period of time, dismantling it at the end of the sale period.

Mrs. Tim Shea, who was present to answer questions, explained that they were from East Grand Forks, and will be operating similar businesses in Crookston, Grand Forks, Fargo and Grafton, ND. She said that the building would be constructed of wood and plastic, and would be anchored to the ground and surrounded with a fence.

Noting that there were already seven or eight nursery businesses operating in Thief River Falls, owners of several of those businesses asked that council not allow another to come in on a temporary basis.

Rainbow Nursery owner Bernadette Hvidsten commented, "We live here year 'round, we pay taxes here, spend our money here and we're here to help our customers when they have questions. . . Why should you allow these people to come in and take the best months of business in the year."

Larry Molstad, owner of Horseshoe Gardens, voiced similar feelings, noting that if plants died, people wouldn't go to North Dakota to get their money back. "That's the worst thing for me," he commented. "We'll get the telephone calls and the questions and complaints. They'll take the money and go back to Grand Forks. I'm fed up with it."

Although council members expressed general agreement that the situation seemed unfair, they were advised by City Attorney Paul Ihle that legal precedent indicated that they could not zone for economic reasons or to protect existing businesses. They were also advised that the fact that the nursery license had not been issued by the state did not affect the zoning issue.

Since the special use permit was recommended for approval by the planning commission, on conditions that proper drainage be established and a site plan be submitted prior to issuance of a building permit, council was advised that they had 45 days to act on the recommendation.

After considerable discussion regarding the importance of not delaying the project as a subterfuge, and become embroiled in yet another lawsuit, council voted to table the matter pending presentation of a site plan and study of drainage at the site, with Mayor Bob Carlson assuring Mrs. Shea that council would move rapidly once those questions were

DST To Begin Sunday; Set Clocks Ahead

Residents of the Times area are reminded that the start of Daylight Saving Time will arrive at 2 a.m. Sunday and they should set their clocks ahead one hour before retiring Saturday night.

Federal law provides for the observance of Daylight Saving Time from the last Sunday in April to the last Sunday in October each year. The hour of sleep lost by the time change this Sunday can be regained October 28.

HUNDREDS OF SWANS may often be seen in the spring as they rest and feed on flooded wild rice paddies in southeastern Pennington county. Pictured above is part of a flock of about 150 birds which was stretching, preening, loafing, feeding, drinking, squabbling, swimming and other things that contented birds do on one of the paddies owned by Paul Imle and John Gunvalson. The paddies are flooded by natural run-off and water accumulated from snow and rain as well as water pumped from the nearby Clearwater river. Regulation of the water flow in the Clearwater river, which runs through Plummer and meets the Red Lake river at Red Lake Falls, was recently established by the state department of natural resources' division of waters. The regulation provides for a minimum flow to be maintained at the Plummer check point and rice growers taking water from the river may not pump when the flow has been reduced to the established minimum. Department of natural resources personnel maintain that the flow level established is necessary to provide sufficient water for recreational uses and preservation of fish resources in the river. Rice producers have appealed the state hearing examiner's decision on the minimum flow and contend that a lesser flow would still provide adequate water for recreational uses and fish protection. "We went into the hearing with documentation to make a case and the DNR presented only supposition," Gunvalson said, "yet they won and we lost. Rice producers certainly aren't anti-wildlife. We believe our operations greatly benefit waterfowl and many other water birds and we enjoy observing them. We have even designed part of our paddy areas to provide for nesting sites. We would like to cooperate with the DNR but we feel cooperation is a two-way street." Gunvalson pointed out that most water is pumped on the paddies during high water levels in the spring, that the paddies provide a reservoir to prevent downstream flooding and that release of water from the paddies during July and August helps maintain river flow during traditionally low water level periods. There are 9,500 acres of paddies on the Clearwater river but not all are in production in any given year.

During the business session, the need of picnic tables in the Lions Park in Goodridge was discussed. Members agreed to ask Albert Johnson to make six tables.

The members also voted to give $75 to the Northland Community Hospice program in Thief River Falls.

Reports included the information that the board had made $10 donations to the Climax and Berley Lioness clubs as their charter night gifts; that a large number of Lions and Lionesses in the district had attended the zone meeting at the Goodridge cafe; that the club had realized $600 for the activity fund from the rummage, bake and barbecue sale held April 14; and that the Lionesses had assisted the Lions at the blood drive by contacting donors, helping with the registration and by serving refreshments.

The supper meeting began with the singing of the table prayer and a poem read by Toni Bryle. Beverly Solheim won the free supper, Octavia Jorgenson, the door prize. Winning other prizes were Marilyn Olson and Beverly Solheim.

Zehlian Club Will Assist On Various Projects

Committee reports and requests for volunteers for various community projects dominated the Zehlian General Federation of Woman's club meeting held at the home of Gretchen Beito.

Reporting on the Art Adventure program was Mrs. Beito. She stated that the spring meeting of the Art Adventure volunteers will be held May 9th at her home. She also stated that the cabinet for their materials had been completed and delivered to the Public library where the Art Adventure materials will be stored. She requested help in card filing the materials on May 4th. Margaret Saetre, Hank Ness, Marge Green, Jan Peterson, Kathy Winjum and Mary Evans volunteered to assist.

Jan Peterson reported on the Health Service clinics scheduled for May 1st and 2nd in Thief River Falls and stated that workers were needed. Alma Eolfson and Margaret Saetre offered to help with weighing and measuring, and Diane Freeman, Kathy Winjum and Maxine McEwen said they would work as nurses.

In discussing the Meals on Wheels program and the need for drivers, Sam Rasmussen and Ina Thorsgard agreed to drive for a week in June.

The slate of officers for the coming year was submitted by the nominating committee. They said that at present, the vice president of the art division hadn't been filled. The slate included president, Ina Thorsgard; secretary, Bunny Dondelinger; treasurer, Sam Rasmussen; and vice president of the book division, Marge Green.

The program included a report on the book, "Second Heaven" by Judith Guest. Nancy Tofte led the discussion.

Special guests at the meeting were Marilyn Gunderson and LaVonne Enerson of Oklee.

The meeting concluded with a monetary collection for the Lincoln high school wind ensemble Norway trip fund.

The May meeting will be a luncheon with a silent auction.

Law Changes Liberalize FmHA Loans

months — from six to eight months following designation by the secretary.

"Reopening the program for counties past the deadline and adding contiguous counties will mean a sudden increase in the FmHA county office workloads," Bjorhus explained. "I hope all those who apply for loans under these new provisions will be understanding. We will, of course, process all applications as speedily as possible."

Another provision in the law may result in opening up loans already made. It would base the value of assets used as collateral in emergency loans on the higher of either their value on the day before the governor of the state involved requested the emergency designation, or their value one year before that date.

This provision also applies to disasters occurring after May 30, 1983.

For operating loans, the limit for insured — or direct — loans for a single borrower was raised to $200,000 from $100,000 and to $400,000 from $200,000 for guaranteed loans. This applies only to new loans, Bjorhus said.

For operating, farm ownership and disaster emergency direct loans that are deferred, consolidated, rescheduled or reamortized, the interest rate will be set at the original note rate, or the rate in effect at the time the loan is changed, whichever is lower.

Other changes include:

—Requirement that all FmHA borrowers be notified "as soon as practicable . . . in the normal course of loan making and loan servicing" of the provisions of limited resource loans — which carry lower interest rates — for operating and ownership loans.

—The law restates an existing requirement that 20 per cent of operating and ownership loan funds be allotted to limited resource borrowers. However, recognizing that this may not be possible in every state, those state offices unable to meet the 20 per cent goal for operating loans may use remaining funds for regular operating loans, according to a joint conference committee report accompanying the bill.

—Limitation on the purchase of land by FmHA employees involved in the loan review process, including members of FmHa county committees, whenever another person has applied for and been denied an FmHA loan to buy the same land.

—Provision for a study of the feasibility of permitting delinquent FmHA farm borrowers to repay their loans with earnings from timber production on land diverted from crops or pasture.

—Provision that $310 million be made available for insured economic emergency (EE) loans this fiscal year and any of the $290 million portion not used for guaranteed EE loans may also be used for insured EE loans.

TEA TIME in the home occupied by Cinderella and her step-mother and step-sisters means more work for Cinderella. Topic of conversation between the step-sisters and their mother is marriage.

Local Kidney Foundation Helps Family

Her future is uncertain as her present doctor maintains there is a one per cent chance her kidney function will make it unnecessary to have a transplant operation. Other medical consultants have said a transplant is inevitable. In the meantime, however, the testing and the examinations and the necessary trips continue.

Bob and Margie note that their daughter has developed a maturity beyond that of the average six-year-old. While she can't fully understand why other children make fun of her leg brace or even have roughly pushed her down, she rebounds from such incidents with increasing determination to get along on her own. She drinks a minimum of two liters of liquid a day and limits her food intake voluntarily to foods which do not make her feel ill.

The local kidney foundation supports its activities with a benefit auction conducted each spring. This year's event will be conducted Saturday and Sunday, May 5 and 6, at the Thief River Falls sports arena. The sale will be held Saturday from 5 to 9 p.m. and Sunday from 1 p.m. until all the remaining items are sold.

Useable and saleable items (except clothing) which anyone would like to donate to the auction will be willingly accepted by the foundation. Contact Morris Howick, Cliff Bredeson, LaVonne Haraldson or W.G. (Web) Maves for more information.

City Council Faces Zoning Hassles Again

Report was heard from Harry Oen, from the Pennington county committee on aging, regarding the progress on the Senior citizen center project. Oen noted that they had received promises of financial support from the county board, although no dollar amount had been set. He added that they were negotiating with Gene Beito for purchase of a corner lot at Fourth Street and Horace Avenue, at a cost of approximately $45,000.

Oen noted that they expected to raise the approximately $369,000 cost of the building and site purchase through gifts and grants, with the city to be responsible for operating costs of approximately $12,000 per year, which would be partially reimbursed through operating profits of the center. Projects to be operated out of the center are expected to include the senior meals and meals on wheels programs.

In other business the council:

— Heard that representatives of the area vocational technical institute had signed an option for purchase of the 100 by 100 foot hangar building at the airport to take effect May 1. Cost will be $10,000 per year toward a purchase price of $90,000;

— Approved an extension of rural fire contracts between the city and five townships until April 1, 1985, at the present rate of $24,000 per year;

— Tabled a planning commission recommendation that annexation proceedings be begun on the former Arctic test track area, pending notification of interested parties;

— Directed the engineer to modify the 84 street project on Spruce Avenue, between First St. and Gulf Streets, to a 36 foot width, with a sidewalk on the east side and parking prohibited on that side;

— Approved a resolution requesting that the Soo Line railroad leave cabooses on all trains passing through the city, for reasons of safety. Bob Fitzgerald, chairman of the United Transportation Union, noted that plans by the railroad to cut cabooses could result in traffic being held up as trains were being backed up, in addition to potentially dangerous conditions going undetected which might result in spills of hazardous materials in the city.

— Approved park board recommendations for adding of an apron at the northwest corner of the sports arena, at a cost of $300 for gravel; purchase of a one-ton truck from Northern Motors on a quote of $8,499; and hiring of Kent LeMoine to replace Sue Beito in park maintenance;

— Heard that through an oversight, a variance had been approved to allow Northwest Beverage to expand its building, with the proposed construction covering two trunk sewer lines. Action was tabled until May 8, pending further contact with Northwest Beverage.

— Passed a resolution withdrawing a request that the Minnesota department of natural resources hold a hearing on the Finsbury Park ditch, pending further study of alternative solutions to problems of stagnant water in the boat harbor used by residents of the area.

Few Contests In Area School Board Filings

vacancies have filed for election to the unexpired terms. Roger Anderson, who was appointed to succeed Daniel Olson, has filed for a two-year unexpired term. Doreen Amundson, who was appointed to fill a vacancy created by the resignation of Robert Dahl, has filed for a one-year term.

At Middle River the two incumbents whose terms expire — Curtis Neumann and Leo Orpen — have filed for reelection and have no announced opposition.

At Goodridge only one filing was made. Incumbent board member Norma Hanson, who has completed two terms on the board, filed for reelection. Richard Parnow, whose term also expires this year, did not file for reelection and there were no other filings. The Goodridge district will therefore have to fill the position with a write-in ballot.

An exception to the rule took place at Grygla where incumbent James Holte filed for reelection, incumbent Phyllis Wikert (appointed to serve the unexpired term of John Harren) did not file, and non-board members Sue Schuler and Gerald Holthusen filed for three-year terms.

An even greater exception was noted at Oklee where Dr. Harold Lindquist, an 18-year board veteran, did not file for reelection. Incumbent Richard Rustan did file for reelection and he is being joined on the May 15 ballot by candidates Dwight Carlson, Richard Mathson, David Bachand and Robert Melby.

Seminar, sponsored by the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) aeronautics division, offers seaplane pilots and persons interested in aviation the latest in educational and technical information as well as an opportunity to obtain free dual refresher flight training, says Dick Keinz, assistant commissioner, aeronautics division.

Weather permitting, the world's only operational American Savoia-Marchetti S-56, amphibian biplane, will be on display. This restored seaplane was originally built in 1929 and certified in 1930. The seaplane owner R.W. "Buzz" Kaplan and his chief mechanic Gary Underland are from Owatonna.

Among the speakers will be Daniel Payne, regional aviation safety officer, Transport Canada, Winnipeg, on "Minnesota Accidents in Canada and Life Jackets Update." Dave Quam, Bellvale, N.Y., president, and Mary Silitch, executive director, Seaplane Pilots association, and international organization with headquarters in Frederick, Md., will discuss the association's goals. J.J. Frey, vice president of EDO Floats corp., College Point, N.Y., will discuss seaplane float maintenance.

Speakers from Minnesota include: Dr. Robert Pozos, University of Minnesota-Duluth, "Hypothermia — a Chilling Experience"; Joan Sommerfeld, Lakeville president of the Minnesota 99s, an organization of women pilots, will present the Flying Companion program in which members familiarize pilots' spouses with flying and aircraft.

President of the Minnesota Seaplane Pilots association, Jack Mathison, Squaw Lake, will talk about obtaining approval through the Experimental Aircraft association and the Federal Aviation administration (FAA) for use of automobile fuel in specific aircraft.

Verdon Kleimenhagen, accident prevention specialist, FAA, Minneapolis, will speak on "What It's All About?" A session on seaplane rules will be led by Neil Hyink, Mn-DOT aviation representative.

Seminar, co-sponsored by the FAA and state and national Seaplane Pilots associations, is open to the public. Registration at $7 a person may be sent to Hyink, Mn-DOT Aeronautics Division, St. Paul Downtown Airport, 644 Bayfield St., St. Paul, 55107; (612) 296-1141.

Program For Gardeners Is Now Available

With the increasing popularity of gardening, many amateur gardeners in Minnesota have sought out horticultural information wherever possible. The University of Minnesota's agricultural extension service has responded to this quest with a program to train expert gardeners as neighborhood resource people.

Master gardener program was developed in response to observations that most people rely on the gardener down the block, rather than the university, for information. Through the program, extension staff train volunteers who already know a lot about gardening and who will be able to return to their neighborhoods and answer most gardening questions after a minimal amount of training.

Experienced gardeners from all walks of life have become involved. Training consists of about 48 hours of classroom instruction over a four-week period, covering a wide variety of subjects beneficial to Minnesota gardeners. Most instruction is given by university extension faculty, who use lectures, slides, handouts and demonstrations.

In order to become a certified master gardener, about 50 hours of volunteer work are required. Gardeners must be recertified on a yearly basis and update training sessions are held periodically throughout the year.

Program originated in Washington state in 1972 and came to Minnesota as a pilot program in 1977. The participants were first selected from the metropolitan area; however, the program has since expanded to include volunteers from all parts of the state. More than 775 master gardeners have participated in the program since it began. According to Mike Zins, horticulturist at the university's landscape arboretum, "more than 50,000 people have been helped on an individual basis."

Program is adapted to local needs and publicized by county extension staff. This county staff involvement fosters a close working relationship between agents and volunteer gardeners, which leads to more effective use of the volunteer commitment as well as better program visibility.

According to Zins, the future for the program is bright. The master gardener program has the capability of becoming an important resource for the home gardener as well as an expansion of extension's educational services.

Phone the Pennington county extension service at 681-2116 from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. to find out how to become a master gardener.

Volunteering On Short Term Grows Popular

Short-term volunteering appears to be a new trend with profits other than dollars for both the volunteer and the program being aided. 4-H programs are welcoming this new trend, according to Polly Prunuske who directs the 4-H program in Pennington county as part of the University of Minnesota's agricultural extension service educational program.

"One result of short-term volunteering is that more people in Pennington county become acquainted with 4-H programs and we think that is good for us and them," Prunuske says.

"Those involved in the 4-H program and all of Pennington county's extension programs know the importance of volunteers. We are happy that the nation recognizes volunteers during Volunteer Recognition Week May 6-12 because we appreciate them every week of the year."

According to one dictionary definition, a volunteer is a person who "renders aid, performs a service or assumes an obligation voluntarily."

Volunteering on a short-term basis usually means for one project. For instance, volunteers might opt to help with a county fair. That might be when they have the time available or they might be assisting someone they know who has already volunteered.

Some projects need more volunteers than others. Pennington county 4-H might need as few as two volunteers for its dairy project and as many as 35 for its share-the-fun project.

Short-term volunteering means that you can spread your volunteering around. Perhaps you have wanted to volunteer in several different places, but felt committed to a certain organization so never had a chance to do the other bits of volunteering you would like. But volunteering for a project on a short-term basis seems to make good sense.

"In this world where people are constantly learning new things and even switching careers and jobs frequently, short-term volunteering seems to fit," Prunuske said. "And there can be benefits in both directions. Besides allowing the volunteer to become acquainted with more of what is happening in the community, organizations like 4-H youth development can profit from having volunteers with a wide variety of knowledge.

"This isn't to say that the faithful volunteer loyal to one group is out. It just means the field is opening up to the person who can work hard as a volunteer this month, but you may not see again until next year or the year after," Prunuske adds. "Programs like 4-H youth development that rely so much on volunteers need everyone.

Would you like to be a 4-H adult volunteer in Pennington county? Maybe you're hesitating because you're not sure you have the time to give to it. Volunteering doesn't have to mean forever. You'll be welcomed as a short-term volunteer. Ask how you can help," Prunuske urges.

Phone the Pennington county office of the University of Minnesota's agricultural extension service at 681-2116 during regular weekday hours (8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.) to volunteer.

Home Study Groups Join In Sharing Skills

Learning and volunteering go together in Pennington county's home study groups, sponsored by the University of Minnesota's agricultural extension service, according to Deborah Matero, Pennington county extension agent.

Member volunteers receive training from the extension agent before sharing new skills and information with their study group members. These skills could focus on consumerism, housing and energy, foods and nutrition or personal and family development, Matero said. May 6 to 12 is national volunteer recognition week. "These member volunteers may not think of themselves as volunteers but they truly are. In 1984 Pennington county has 360 members and 200 member volunteers in its home study groups," Matero said.

Farmers Given Opportunity To Support Bill

Minnesota farmers hit by several years of natural disasters will have an opportunity to submit written support for a bill to provide relief when a key House subcommittee considers the legislation on May 1.

Congressman Arlan Stangeland, author of H. R. 4610, says this is the farmers' best chance to be heard by Congressional leaders.

"If you believe there is a need for long-term relief for farm families in devastated areas, please put it in writing and send it to my Washington office," he said. "If you plan to come and testify at the Washington hearings, please get in touch with my office as soon as possible."

The Stangeland bill would consolidate all existing farm debts up to $500,000 into a single federal loan with a 15-40 year term and a five per cent interest rate for farmers in counties hit by three or more consecutive years of natural disasters.

Under the bill, some farmers would qualify for up to five years' deferral on repayment of the consolidated loans. Farmers in counties adjoining the perennial disaster areas could qualify for the same relief on a case-by-case basis.

Congressman Stangeland offered an identical proposal as an amendment to the 1983 drought relief bill last fall, but it was defeated on a party-line vote in the House agriculture committee. Eleven of the 12 Republicans on the committee supported the plan, but all 15 Democrats opposed it, he said.

"Now that the implications of the drought and other disasters have hit home in other Representatives' districts, the House may be ready to listen," he said.

The May 1 hearing was approved by Rep. Ed Jones (D-TN), chairman of the House subcommittee on conservation, credit and rural development.

People who want their written statements introduced at the hearing should write to: Congressman Arlan Stangeland, 1526 Longworth House Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20515.

Those interested in testifying before the hearing on May 1 should call Congressman Stangeland's toll-free number (1-800-432-3770) as soon as possible.

"This bill is a good investment in hard-working families," Congressman Stangeland said. He pointed out that the bill was not a "bail-out" provision for land speculators.

DOT Receives Grant For Carrier Safety

A federal grant of $197,000 will enable the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) to expand its statewide motor carrier safety and enforcement program, the department announced.

Mn-DOT now has a full complement of 19 motor transportation representatives (MTRs) working with motor carriers and conducting inspections and road checks for increased safety on our roads, said Gordon Boldt, director, motor carrier safety and compliance. The 19 include 16 enforcement agents, two hazardous materials specialists and a supervisor.

Federal grant enables us to increase our safety and enforcement programs, he said. They include conducting more safety seminars on motor carrier safety, handling of hazardous materials, explanation of economic regulations (operating authority and rates) and a stepped-up program of more unannounced truck safety checks throughout the state.

Nine of the 16 enforcement agents will be based at the following cities to serve surrounding areas: Bemidji, Detroit Lakes, Duluth, Mankato (two persons), Marshall, Morris, Rochester and St. Cloud. Seven MTRs will work from the transportation building in St. Paul, but will be traveling to various locations around the state. The two hazardous materials specialists and the supervisor are stationed in St. Paul.

WEDDING SCENE provides the happy ending for the fairy tale "Cinderella", to be presented as a musical production Thursday and Friday at 7:30 p.m. in the Newfolden school gymnasium. The Marshall county central high school musical is under the direction of music instructor Sheila Nelson and English instructor Paul Sharon.

Motorcycle Awareness Week May 6-12

In recognition of the need to be more aware of motorcyclists, Minnesota is observing motorcycle awareness week May 6-12. This is the third year for the observance which again has been proclaimed by Gov. Rudy Perpich.

An effort to make motorcycling safer in Minnesota, an extensive education, information and safety promotion campaign, funded by the motorcycle operators, is getting underway soon. The publicity campaign is aimed at both motorcycle operators and other vehicle drivers. Statistics show a personal injury or death usually occurs in a collision involving a motorcycle. In order to reduce the risk of collision, the program is trying to develop a more cooperative attitude among all drivers.

Week serves as a reminder that safe motorcycling requires skill, caution and preparedness on the part of cyclists and an awareness on the part of other drivers of motorcyclist's rights and presence on the road.

It is possible that an increased awareness of the motorcycle as a legitimate and frequently encountered vehicle has been developing in the state. Motorcycle deaths have dropped the past three years from an all-time record of 121 in 1980 to 96 in 1981, 72 in 1982, and 75 in 1983.

Number of motorcycles registered dropped in 1983 for the first time in several years to 155,502 from 159,345 in 1982. There was a dramatic increase in motorcycle registration from 1965 when there were 39,395 to the figures recorded the past few years.

"Far too many fatal or injury producing motorcycle crashes happen when another vehicle simply drives right into or turns in front of an approaching motorcycle as if the cycle were not even there. Both drivers of motorcycles and the drivers of other vehicles must keep this "invisibility' problem in mind whenever they drive," reminds Minnesota department of public safety commissioner Paul Tschida.

Owners of new motorcycles and parents of teenagers who would like to or have purchased a motorcycle should be especially aware of the special hazards and responsibilities involved in driving a high-powered, two-wheeled vehicle. More training programs for both beginner and experienced motorcyclists are being developed around the state. All motorcyclists should attempt to upgrade their driving skills and prove they are up to the challenge of motorcycling by taking a training course periodically.

Producers Of Soybeans Turn Down Increase

Official canvass of the 5,937 ballots cast in the April 10 referendum of Minnesota soybean producers confirmed that the proposed one cent increase in the marketing checkoff was defeated by a margin of 257 votes, according to deputy agriculture commissioner Rollin M. Denistoun.

"No" votes outnumbered the "yes" votes by 3,097 to 2,840. Defeat of the proposed increase leaves the existing soybean marketing checkoff at one cent per bushel, the same level in effect for the past seven years. Funds derived from the checkoff are utilized by the producer-elected Minnesota soybean research and promotion council for production and market improvements that will benefit all growers.

Outdoor Trips Are Arranged For Disabled

Wilderness Inquiry II (WI II), a non-profit outdoor program that has been bringing integrated groups of physically disabled and able-bodied persons together for wilderness trips since 1978, is now accepting applications for 17 wilderness canoe trips offered this summer. One of the trips is a 28-day canoe expendition deep in the wilds of the Yukon Territory.

Sixteen other trips, varying in length from four to 12 days, will be conducted in the Boundary Waters Wilderness area of northeastern Minnesota (the BWCA), and the vast wilderness areas of northwestern Ontario.

Intended to be fun, the trips offer all persons — regardless of their physical ability or camping experience — the chance to enjoy the beauty and serenity of the wilderness, develop new skills and make new friends among an interesting mix of people. Each group typically includes several persons with such physical disabilities as paraplegia, quadraplegia, hemiplegia, cerbral palsy, blindness, deafness, multiple sclerosis, epilepsy, muscular dystrophy, spina-bifida and diabetes.

WI II trips are special because they include integrated groups in terms of physical ability, age, cultural and racial background. Trip participants enjoy the wilderness together on an equal basis. Due to a cost-conscious staff and the support of many corporations, foundations and individuals, the trip fees (including transportation) are kept between $105 and $225, depending on the length and type of trip. Additional financial aid is available to those who need it — no one is turned away for lack of funds.

For more information on how to participate contact Wilderness Inquiry II, 2929 — 4th Ave. So., Suite O, Minneapolis, MN 55406, or call (612)827-4001.

Farmers Aid Each Other By Consulting

Seventeen experienced farmers in northern Minnesota are helping other farmers through a volunteer referral farmer program organized by Dave Radford, area extension agent for small farm programs with the University of Minnesota's extension service at Cloquet.

"There's tremendous credibility when a beginning farmer sees firsthand what an experienced, successful farmer has done to improve forage production," Radford said.

Referral farmer program was developed by Radford and the county agents in his five-county area about three years ago to meet a need that had in the past been met much less informally. Radford explained that, before the referral program began, farmers would go to their county agents with questions concerning crop or management problems. The agents were often unable to give the farmers the time needed to successfully deal with the problem or question.

Referral farmers, with their hands-on expertise and demonstrated knowhow, are able to meet the needs of their neighbors by relating through what Radford calls "farmer talk." Radford says it's a service that has always been there, but is even better now that it's organized.

"Farmers tell me there's a lot of teaching done when they see each other at the feed store. They talk to each other anyway, but now there's an exchange of farming ideas."

The 17 referral farmers were chosen for the program based on their ability to advice others, says Radford. Expertise was determined after considering the chosen farmer's success on his own farm as well as his innovativeness in adopting new farming practices and considering new crop varieites.

According to Radford, the program has been a real success. He tells about farmers who have "traveled a hundred miles to speak at meetings" and who have, through their enthusiasm and volunteer spirit, "proven again that farmers are a group of people who can cooperate and grow."

Future for the referral farmer program looks good. The participating county agents and volunteers would like to see the idea grow and spread to other areas. Some participants have talked about a brochure to help others learn about the program.

Radford is quick to add that the referral program is a "team approach." He stresses the important participation of companies and local feed stores who have donated seeds, chemicals and other supplies. Radford concluded by saying that "the county extension agents have helped make it go. The referral program represents a great team effort!"

National volunteer recognition week, May 6 through 12, is a time to say "thank you" to volunteers like those in the referral farmer program.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

On the subject of the court case pending against an eastern Marshall county resident under the wanton waste statute, I can't understand why the DNR has chosen to make an example of this individual. Surely they must realize that this person's handling of wild game is closer to the rule than the exception.

I think it would be interesting and very enlightening to have an organization like the International Fund For Animal Welfare or Greenpeace do a study on the disposition of wild game killed by hunters in Minnesota. It would put the so-called "sport" of hunting in its proper perspective.

Hunting is not done to put meat on the table but all too often the only motive is to kill a defenseless wild animal.

Gas Prices In State Inch Up In 1st Quarter

Gas price in Minnesota have increased by an average of two cents per gallon since Christmas, according to Minnesota AAA's latest fuel survey.

Full-service prices showed the greatest change, increasing an average of 2.6 cents per gallon, while self-service prices dropped seven-tenths of a cent during the last four months.

"Our surveys over the past six months have shown that gas prices in Minnesota have remained fairly stable," said spokesman Mark A. Larson. "Since last fall, prices on most grades of gasoline have only varied one to three cents per gallon."

According to the latest survey of 83 stations, average full-service prices in the state are: regular $1.342; unleaded, $1.395; unleaded premium, $1.597; and diesel; $1.298.

Current self-service prices are: regular, $1.187; unleaded, $1.244; unleaded premium, $1.329; and diesel, $1.213.

Average gas prices in AAA's survey five years ago this month were: 78.9 cents and 82.8 cents for full-service regular and unleaded respectively. Self-service prices in April, 1979, were 74.2 cents for regular and 78.8 cents for unleaded.

Northern Minnesota average price of $1.262 for self-service regular compared with $1.193 in central Minnesota, $1.142 in the metro area and $1.203 in the southern part of the state. Self-serve unleaded averaged $1.314 in the north, $1.243 central, $1.199 metro and $1.249 south.

Full service price average for regular gas was $1.300 north, $1.286 central, $1.391 metro and $1.275 southern. Unleaded full-service averaged $1.347 north, $1.328 central, $1.441 metro and $1.320 south.

Co-Op Pays $375 To Settle Seed Violation

Farmers Union Central Exchange, Inc., an Inver Grove Heights firm, has paid $375 to the U.S. department of agriculture to settle a case involving a shipment of seed alleged to be in violation of the federal seed act. The shipment was from an Oregon facility doing business as Cenex Western Commodities.

The case was settled in an agreement between the company and officials of the USDA's agricultural marketing service. The company neither admitted nor denied the charges.

James E. Springfield, an AMS official in Washington, D.C., said the case involved a shipment of orchardgrass seed from Oregon to Kentucky. Alleged violations were mislabeling from noxious weed seeds and failure to keep required records.

Federal Seed Act is a truth-in-labeling law designed to protect farmers and consumers who buy seed. AMS administers the program with the help of state seed officials. Seed regulatory officials in Kentucky cooperated with the agricultural marketing service in making the investigation.

Qualified commodity carriers using twin trailers are allowed on designated routes only. Any operation off a designated route is illegal.

State History Society Shows Fashion Wraps

To live in Minnesota is to dress for wintry weather, but how have women here dressed in fashion while not freezing? The answer comes by way of an exhibition at the Minnesota Historical society, 690 Cedar Street, St. Paul (next door to the State Capitol). "Wrapped in Style" presents 100 capes and shawls worn by Minnesotans from 1820 to 1950. Opening April 26, this exhibition will run through November 26.

To follow changing styles over 100 years is to recapture successive waves of popular taste. The Greek revival of the early nineteenth century influenced architecture, but it also led to the popularity of dresses modeled after the sheer robes of ancient Greece. To stay warm, women wore flowing shawls, drawn again from the long loose outer garment worn by both men and women in classic times.

By the 1850's the draped body lines were replaced by the hoop skirt with its voluminous material. Now a fitted coat was out of the question, but shawls and bonnets could be serviceable and fashionable for outerwear.

The Victorian period had a passion for the Orient, and not just for furniture and parlor pieces. We see the popularity of large, colorful shawls woven and embroidered in India. What have been known as paisleys are shawls displaying Indian motifs. Such shawls took their name from Paisley in Scotland, where weavers had turned to copying the popular Indian patterns. Some shawls displayed in "Wrapped in Style" are over 11 feet long, and one that is five feet square is entirely covered with intricate hand embroidery.

In the 1880's skirts became smaller, but bustles arrived. The perfect outerwear solution was the mantle, a hybrid between a jacket, shawl and cape. These garments were richly made of velvet and brocade, and exotically trimmed with swan's down, jet beads and fur. Fringed tails often rested stylishly on the bustle behind.

But with the 1890's bustles disappeared, and huge leg-of-mutton sleeves came in. Trying to stuff the neatly ironed yards of fabric into a coat sleeve was fruitless, and so women adopted the cape. The popularity of outdoor activities in the 1890's made the freedom of capes practical for ladies who now rode bicycles and played golf.

"Wrapped in Style" represents all these trends and more, and displays many more garments characteristic of the early twentieth century.

Being fashionable sometimes meant traveling abroad for the latest style. Two of the shawls in the exhibition were brought back from Cuba by Mary Folwell, daughter of the first president of the University of Minnesota. Or the latest styles could be ordered from such prestigious foreign sources as Pacquin of Paris. And local retailers attempted to have on hand for their customers the outwear of latest fashion.

One flamboyant blue satin cape from the 1920's was sold at Young-Quinlan in Minneapolis at a time when the company's intent was "to get whatever is in the fashion wind — at the moment when it is wanted." A more conservative cape with a warm collar was sold by Silberstein and Bondy in Duluth. Others were created by forgotten dressmakers like Mrs. Worley of St. Paul and Madame Boyd of Minneapolis.

It was certainly not only the well-to-do in Minnesota who sought out what was fashionable. From 1949, when the popular "Godey's Lady's Book" received its first subscriptions from the "remote settlement" of Minnesota, the state's style-conscious citizens have been eagerly following the fashion columns in such disparate publications as "Vogue," "Farm, Stock and Home," "The Delineator" and the "New Ulm Plaindealer." So there could be less expensive copies of items of outerwear, either found in the ubiquitous mail order catalog or made at home.

The exhibition includes one homemade mantle from Darwin, which is trimmed according to the best fashion on the outside but which shows on the inside that the maker apparently felt that warmth takes precedence over style, for she lined the mantle with a brightly clashing checked flannel.

Minnesota Historical society has one of the best collections of nineteenth and early twentieth century clothing in the country assembled almost entirely through donations by Minnesotans over the years.

$12 Million In Bonding Set For Railroads

More than $12 million for railroad rehabilitation projects throughout the state is included in House and Senate capital bonding bills this session, according to District 1 legislators.

State Representatives Jim Tunheim and Wally Sparby and State Senator LeRoy Stumpf report they were successful in "securing vital railroad bonding which will finance 70 per cent of the rehabilitation work on the Burlington Northern rail line between Warroad and Red Lake Falls and the Soo Line running from Oslo to Thief River Falls."

Tunheim said that although the final $12 million figure was less than approved in the House (the House passed legislation with $17 million for railroad bonding), its availability will be on a first come, first serve basis so the local projects could both receive money.

"This is welcome news for residents in northwestern Minnesota — especially those who recently formed the Railroad Shippers association to lobby for rail line rehabilitation," Tunheim said.

"We did not want to see the Burlington Northern or Soo Lines abandoned, even though they are in bad shape, because area farmers and manufacturers depend on them to transport their goods," he added.

Sparby called the lines "vital" to the area's economy, but said he and Tunheim stressed their importance to the entire state in discussions with other lawmakers.

"Area communities produce agricultural products the rest of the state depends on and manufacturers like Marvin Windows or Polaris Industries also feed a nationwide market so they must be guaranteed a workable method of shipping and receiving their goods," he added.

All three legislators credited local business owners and government officials for effectively alerting the legislature to rail line problems in Minnesota.

"The legislature counts on local interests to more or less watchdog for problems occurring where state funds are needed to solve the problems," Stumpf said.

"I feel I can speak for both Rep. Tunheim and Rep. Sparby in thanking local citizens for their diligence on the rial line issues," he added.

"Now that the bonding authority will be available, our shippers association can better address which local projects take priority and the rehabilitation effort can begin," Tunheim said.

He cautioned residents that the rehabilitation work is a contract among three parties — the state, the shippers association and the railroad — and final agreement among the three parties is still needed.

MN Feedlots Have Reduced Cattle Number

Minnesota feedlots contained 350,000 cattle on April 1, down 14 per cent from a year ago, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. Placements during the first quarter of 1984 decreased 16 per cent from the same quarter a year ago. Marketings during January-March decreased three per cent from a year earlier.

Farmers expect to market 165,000 cattle during the next three months (April-June), three per cent more than the actual marketings for the same period last year.

Cattle and calves on feed April 1 for slaughter market in the 13 quarterly states, totaled 9.34 million head, two per cent more than last year and six per cent above 1982.

Placements of cattle and calves on feed during January-March 1984 quarter totaled 5.51 million, 10 per cent more than the same quarter last year but one per cent less than the same quarter of 1982. Other disappearance of 365,000 leaves net placements for the first quarter of 1984 at 5.15 million.

During the April-June quarter of 1984, 5.69 million head of fed cattle are expected to come to market. This would be a three per cent increase from the actual second quarter marketings in 1983 and nine per cent above 1982.

Elm Fungicide Effective In Saving Trees

In the field of Dutch elm disease control, time has been the vindicator for a successful injection technique introduced over 10 years ago by Elm Research Institute (ERI), a non-profit organization based in Harrisville, NH.

A recent survey conducted by the institute on over 8,000 healthy elms, preventively injected over a 10-year period with E.P.A. approved elm fungicide, shows a 96 per cent success rate.

"I've been using elm fungicide for eight years and I lost just one tree in all that time," reports an arborist from Sapulpa, OK.

"The eight elms on my street, which I have injected over the years are the only ones still standing in my area. They look like a beautiful, green oasis," comments an elm owner in Birmingham, MI.

Arborists, mayors, tree wardens, groundskeepers and groups of volunteers calling themselves "Conscientious Injectors" are responsible for injecting elm fungicide into thousands of healthy elm trees from Connecticut to California. These "Conscientious Injectors" groups have kept careful records of their injection programs and it is their data that is submitted to ERI for annual analysis on the computer.

"Ten years ago when we first began recommending annual preventive injection, doubters seemed to come out of the woodwork. You'll 'wound the tree', or 'cause rotting', we were told. Here we are 10 years later and we haven't lost a single elm due to wounding or rot. Instead, we have over 100,000 healthy elms . . . trees which otherwise would likely be stumps by now. . . that are being preserved for further generations to cherish and enjoy," said John P. Hansel, director of the institute.

For further information and-or a free copy of the 1983 Conscientious Injectors Report, contact Elm Research Institute, Harrisville, NH 03450, (603) 827-3048.

Fine Lunsetter On Charge Of Wanton Waste

AN UNCERTAIN FUTURE is faced by Mr. and Mrs. Bob Rendulich of Thief River Falls and their six-year-old daughter Traci. The youngster has only one kidney and has been diagnosed as also having Legg Perthes disease which has destroyed much of the right hip. Doctors believe a kidney transplant may be necessary at some point in the future but are reluctant to do one now because of the one per cent chance it may not become necessary. In the meantime, the condition requires constant monitoring and monthly trips to St. Luke's hospital in Fargo for testing.

RIDING HER BICYCLE is one of the activities enjoyed by Traci Rendulich, age six, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Rendulich of Thief River Falls. Traci has only one kidney and requires at least monthly check-ups at Fargo. Her family is provided with some financial assistance for travel through the Thief River Falls kidney foundation. The foundation will hold its fund-raising auction Saturday and Sunday, May 5 and 6, at the Thief River Falls sports arena. All funds raised are used to assist area residents with severe kidney problems.

Rudy Boschwitz reports to Minnesota

If you've even thought about volunteering for the Peace Corps, now is the time to do it.

Peace Corps is currently conducting intensive recruiting efforts for volunteer assignments beginning April 1, 1984. Over 2,000 volunteers have been requested for these assignments during the next six months by the developing countries in which Peace Corps volunteers currently serve.

There is a particular need for volunteers with education or experience in agriculture, forestry, math and the sciences. There is a wide range of additional assignments including: civil engineering; health, nutrition and home economics; education, including special education; the skilled trades such as auto/diesel mechanics, general construction, carpentry and electricity; and business, such as accounting, cooperative formation and general business management. U.S. citizens with a college degree or two to five years experience in any of these related fields are encouraged to apply.

Since 1961, over 100,000 Americans have served as Peace Corps Volunteers in developing nations around the world. Currently over 5,200 volunteers serve in 60 countries. Peace Corps volunteers are tackling some of the most critical problems facing developing countries today. In addition to the personal satisfaction gained from sharing their skills and energy with the people of the host countries, Peace Corps volunteers gain valuable career experience.

Although a volunteer program, there are substantial benefits in Peace Corps service. Volunteers receive paid transportation to and from the country, extensive training particularly in the language of the country, a monthly living allowance for expenses while in service, health care, vacation time and a readjustment allowance of $175 per month served payable upon completion of the two-year assignment (approximately $4,200). In addition, volunteers receive non-competitive eligibility for federal jobs for one year following service. This is a valuable benefit for those interested in federal employment upon return.

Any U.S. citizen with a commitment to helping others and a willingness to devote two years of his or her life to fulfilling that commitment is eligible to apply for Peace Corps service. Although the minimum age is 18, very few applicants under 21 have the skills or experience to qualify for an assignment. There is no upper age limit.

For further information, call or write: Peace Corps Recruiting Office, 104 Old Federal Building, 212 Third Avenue South, Minneapolis, Minnesota 55401; 612-349-3625.

They are talking about fertilizer. They encourage the wheat farmer to select varieties and apply fertilizer for optimum yields — that's your most profitable yield.

Yes, your cost per acre will increase as you move up toward your optimum yield. But your cost per bushel will be reduced. (See chart.)

You not only get more bushels per acre, you get more profit from every bushel you raise!

Mike Lundgren

Sports Editor

A new wrinkle added to the Lincoln High School hockey schedule next winter will find the Prowlers making an overnight trip to Rochester Dec. 28-29 to play both Rochester Mayo and Rochester John Marshall.

It'll be the first-ever Thief River Falls meeting with a Rochester school. Transportation for the trip is budgeted through the athletic department, but the school will not cover the housing costs.

To accomodate the Rochester games, the Prowlers will drop Fargo South and Hallock from their 1984-85 schedule. Rest of the schedule remains intact, with home-and-home series against Warroad, Fergus Falls, Bemidji, Roseau, East Grand Forks, Crookston and Moorhead, plus single meetings with Detroit Lakes, Grand Forks Central, Grand Forks Red River and Lake of the Woods.

Thief River Falls-Fargo South series ends after a string of five straight years. Suspension of the Thief River Falls-Hallock series is more noteworthy. In the 40 years of Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL) sponsorship of hockey, the Prowlers and Bears have met every year except for the 1944-45, 1968-69 and 1972-73 seasons. In number of games played, it's the third longest series in the Prowlers' hockey record books.

During their 40 years of high school hockey, the Prowlers have played 63 different opponents. Only two of them have appeared on every Thief River Falls schedule — Roseau and Warroad.

Thief River Falls and Roseau have met 105 times over the years, including both regular season and tournament games. Thief River Falls and Warroad have met 93 times, while the Thief River Falls series with Hallock is at 66 games.

Taking a look at the other Thief River Falls hockey match-ups shows that the Prowlers have played Baudette (Lake of the Woods) 65 times, East Grand Forks 51, Crookston 48, Williams 44, Grand Forks Central 40, Bemidji 39, Mount St. Benedict (Crookston Cathedral) 31, Moorhead 22, Red Lake Falls 19, Eveleth 18, Fergus Falls 17, Greenbush 15, Grand Forks Red River 14, Detroit Lakes 14, St. Paul Johnson 11, Virginia 9, International Falls 8, Indus 7, Fargo South 6, Minneapolis Roosevelt 6, Hibbing 4, Grand Rapids 4, Alumni 3, St. Paul Park 3, Greenway-Coleraine 3, Anoka 3, Minneapolis Washburn 3, Duluth East 3, St. Cloud Tech 2, Minneapolis South 2, South St. Paul 2, Edina 2, Duluth East 2, Minneapolis Patrick Henry 2, St. Paul Alexander Ramsey 2, Richfield 2, Ft. Francis, Ont. 2, Mounds View 2, Bloomington Lincoln 2, St. Paul Academy 2, Aurora-Hoyt Lakes 2 and Grafton 2.

Thief River Falls has had single games with Mahtomedi, St. Paul Hill-Murray, St. Paul Henry Sibley, Superior Wis., Cloquet, Duluth Central, Benilde-St. Margaret's, St. Thomas Academy, Alexandria, White Bear Lake, Fosston, Minneapolis Southwest, Winona, St. Paul Harding, Robbinsdale, St. Paul Humboldt, Duluth Denfeld and Bloomington (when it was a single school).

Basketball Schedule Announced

There will be only one change on the Lincoln High School basketball schedule next winter, according to Thief River Falls coach Tom Hunt, as the Prowlers replace Mahnomen with Red Lake Falls.

That means that Prowlers will be playing home-and-home series with Bemidji, Crookston, East Grand Forks and Warren, plus single games with Roseau, Detroit Lakes, Moorhead, Argyle, Marshall County Central, Red Lake Falls, Fergus Falls, Middle River and Park Rapids.

Thief River Falls will also play host to its second annual Holiday Invitational, with the eight-team field returning intact except for Mahnomen. The Indians, who won just one game in 1983-84, will be replaced in the tournament by Hallock, with the Bears joining Roseau, Middle River, Marshall County Central, Kennedy, Argyle, Thief River Falls and defending champion Fertile-Beltrami in the three-day affair that was well-received this past winter.

Miscellaneous

+ Eric Bondy, a Lincoln High School graduate, is listed as a back-up defensive tackle in spring drills on the Moorhead State University football team. The 6-4, 225-pounder served as a Northland Community College football captain this past fall when he played linebacker for the Northmen.

TRF-Ada Game Is Postponed By Rain Tuesday

Rain Tuesday postponed the scheduled Thief River Falls vs. Ada high school baseball game at Ada.

With Ada scheduled to visit Thief River Falls Thursday, May 10, the rain-forced postponement was immediately rescheduled as part of a doubleheader here that day beginning at 3:30 p.m.

Thief River Falls, 1-0 for the year after opening with a 4-3 come-from-behind victory over Red Lake Falls last week, will begin a string of seven consecutive home games Thursday when Middle River-Marshall County Central visits the fairgrounds diamond for a 4:30 p.m. game.

During the homestand the Prowlers will follow the Middle River-Marshall County Central contest with games Tuesday, May 1, vs. Moorhead; Friday, May 4, vs. Bemidji; Tuesday, May 8, vs. Crookston; and Thursday, May 10, vs. Ada. The first three are all single 4:30 p.m. games. The Crookston and Ada dates are doubleheaders, with the Prowlers-Pirates twinbill scheduled to start at 4 p.m.

Prowlers Host First Tennis Meet Thursday

Rain Tuesday reduced a four-team East Grand Forks Invitational high school tennis tournament into a triangular inside the Grand Forks Tennis Center, where the host Green Wave emerged with a win by collecting six points, followed by Detroit Lakes with 5 and Thief River Falls 4.

Thief River Falls actually got a split out of it, beating Detroit Lakes 3-2 while losing to East Grand Forks 4-1. The Lakers, in turn, decisioned the Green Wave 3-2.

Lone Thief River Falls double winner for the day was junior Dan Imgrund at No. 2 singles, where he beat Detroit Lakes' Jim Poehler 10-5 and handed East Grand Forks' Todd Martin 10-3.

After four consecutive triangular meet outings on the road to start the 1984 season, the Prowlers are scheduled to make their home debut Thursday with a 2 p.m. triangular of their own against Moorhead and Mahnomen.

Thief River Falls will participate in a tournament at Hibbing Saturday, where the Prowlers will join the host Bluejackets, plus Duluth East, Virginia, Anoka, Pine City and Apple Valley in the 9:30 a.m. event.

Busy schedule continues Monday when the Prowlers host Detroit Lakes in a 4 p.m. dual.

Quent Jones Meet Is Set Tuesday . . .

LHS Track Team Runs In Roseau, Grafton Events

A shorthanded Lincoln High School track team is beginning to accumulate a few points here and there, but not enough to challenge for top honors as the boys competed in meets Thursday at Roseau and Tuesday at Grafton.

It was a four-team affair at Roseau, with late-arriving results just received Tuesday from meet officials. Warroad won it with 85 and five-sixths points, followed by Fosston with 68 and two-thirds, Thief River Falls 62½ and Roseau 26.

Thief River Falls had five first place finishes in that one — Jeff Langan, 43.69 in the 300-meter intermediate hurdles; Kevin Kezar, 2:10.5 in the 800 meters; Dave Gobell, 40-11 in the shot put; Chris Helle, 9-0 in the pole vault; and the sprint medley relay team of Paul Brandt, Dan Iverson, Paul Helgeland and Kezar in 4:08.

Host Grafton was the winner in Tuesday's 14-team invitational with 87 points, finishing just ahead of Grand Forks Red River with 86 points, Crookston 85 and Larimore 80.

Rest of the field included Drayton with 54 points, Thief River Falls 46, Grand Forks Central 41, East Grand Forks 37, Park River 16, Minto 12, St. Thomas 11, Stephen 10, Adams-Edinburg 5 and Cavalier 3.

Randy Swenson, who missed the Roseau meet due to a family commitment, was a winner for the Prowlers in the 110-meter high hurdles in 15.9 and ran the third leg of the Prowlers' first place 1600-meter relay team. Scott Fowler, Langan, Swenson and Kezar ran it in 3:43.9.

Thief River Falls coach Tim Olson cited big performance improvements by Dave Dalager in the 3200-meter run and by Jeff Johnson in the shot put, even through their efforts brought them just fifth and fourth place finishes, respectively.

"Our times are coming down fast," he mentioned.

Thief River Falls will compete in the VFW Invitational Friday at Crookston beginning at 3:45 p.m. Lincoln girls will be in Crookston Thursday for a 4 p.m. meet at UMC.

Annual Thief River Falls Quent Jones Invitational for both boys and girls, is scheduled to be held Tuesday beginning at 4 p.m.

Awards Presented To Goodridge Girls

Special award winners among the girls involved in the 1983-84 high-school volleyball and basketball programs at Goodridge were announced at the school's recent awards banquet.

Volleyball awards went to Cheri Nelson, most valuable and best server; Shelley Iverson, most improved; Jodi Berg, best setter; and Melissa Iverson, best spiker.

Basketball award winners were Diana Troska, most valuable; Bridget Sjulestad, most improved; Lori Sjulestad, defensive hustle; Jennie Boutain, offensive hustle; Lori Sjulestad, 1-on-1 winner for grades 9-12; and Bridget Sjulestad, 1-on-1 winner for grades 7-9.

"The Goodridge girls have a bright future ahead of them," reported Patti Johnson, who serves as the Huskies' head coach in both volleyball and basketball. "We have been hindered by our youth in the past, but now we have the maturity to open many new doors. In many ways we have grown up together as a team, and have a lot of potential built through togetherness."

Just how young the Huskies were in 1983-84 is displayed in post-season statistics just issued by Johnson showing only two seniors on the basketball team — Diana Troska and Dawn Anderson — along with just one junior, three sophomores and three freshmen. No seniors were listed on the volleyball statistical sheet that included three juniors and three sophomores.

Goodridge boys receiving basketball awards at the banquet were announced earlier, with Tony Wiseth named most valuable and owner of the best free throw percentage; Mike Scheef, most improved; Ross Parnow, rebound champion and best field goal percentage; Jared Sjulestad, outstanding defense; and Scott Groven, outstanding offense.

Chuck Berg was named the outstanding freshman.

Scott Groven was also named a recipient of a National All-Star Award, presented on the basis of academic and athletic achievement, plus a recommendation from the coaches. Less than one per cent of the students in the United States reportedly receive the award each year.

Music awards were also presented, with Bonita Johnson named most valuable choir member; Michelle Henrickson, most valuable band member; Rosemary Smith, most improved choir member; and Betty Kiesow, most improved band member.

Members of the Grygla-Goodridge cooperation football program were recognized last fall at a football banquet.

Migratory Bird Hunting Dates Being Proposed

Preliminary hunting regulations for ducks, geese and other migratory game birds for the 1984-85 hunting season have been proposed by the Department of the Interior's U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS), in line with a five-year study on stabilized waterfowl regulations, no major changes from last year's hunting regulations are being proposed at this time. The 1984-85 season represents the fifth year of that study.

Owing to substantial declines in the populations of cackling Canada geese and white-fronted geese in the Pacific Flyway, the proposed regulations would close the season on cackling Canada geese and further restrict, throughout their range in the United States, the harvest of Pacific Flyway white-fronted geese. This proposal reflects the results of the consultations with representatives from Alaska, the Pacific Flyway Council, the California Department of Fish and Game, and other interested agencies, organizations and individuals.

In 1983, the FWS initiated a program to further restrict the harvest of black ducks. This species has also suffered population declines and the proposed regulations would continue last year's restrictions.

Proposals, published in the March 23, Federal Register, describe tentative season frameworks, daily bag and possession limits, and shooting hours for migratory game birds in the contiguous United States, Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands. Species discussed in the proposals include ducks, geese, brant and swans; doves and pigeons; cranes; rails, coots and gallinules; woodcock and snipe.

Shooting hours will remain from one-half hour before sunrise to sunset. Framework dates for most duck and goose seasons will be from October 1, 1984, to January 20, 1985, for the Atlantic Flyway and from the Saturday nearest October 1, 1984, to January 20, 1985, for the Mississippi Flyway. For the Central and Pacific Flyways the dates will be from the Saturday nearest October 1, 1984, through the Sunday nearest January 20, 1985. The framework proposed for the Alaska waterfowl season extends from September 1, 1984, through January 26, 1985.

All of the published proposals are subject to changes if the need is indicated by information obtained from surveys, state conservation agencies and the public. Public comments on the proposals are invited through June 21, 1984, for Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands; July 16, for other "early" seasons (those opening before October 1); and August 17 for the "late" seasons (those opening after October 1). Comments should be addressed to the Director (FWS-MBMO), U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior, Washington, D.C. 20240.

To ensure that the public has ample opportunity to comment on the proposals, two public hearings will be held to review the status of migratory game birds and consider proposed hunting regulations. The first hearing will pertain to "early" season regulations and will be held on June 21, 1984, at 9 a.m. in the Department of the Interior Auditorium on C Street between 18th and 19th Streets, N.W., in Washington, D.C. A second hearing on regulations for seasons opening on or after October 1 will be held on August 1, 1984, at 9 a.m., also in the Interior Department Auditorium. Persons wishing to participate in these hearings should write to the Director (FWM-MBMO), U.S Fish and Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior, Washington, D.C. 20240, or telephone 202-254-3207. Those wishing to make statements should file copies with the Director before or during each hearing.

To date, more than 700 man-made chemicals have been identified in drinking water, says the National Wildlife Federation.

DNR NEWS

Turn in Poachers Program

Minnesota's "Turn In Poachers" program produced 15 arrests of game and fish law violators during March, according to the Department of Natural Resources and TIP President Robert Larson.

Larson said TIP INC. paid out $950 in rewards during the month to five persons who supplied the DNR Enforcement Division with information that resulted in arrests.

Program guarantees informants that they will remain anonymous.

Of the arrests made during March, 13 were for deer or fish violations.

So far this year, conservation officers have made 57 arrests with TIP information and TIP INC. has paid out nearly $5,000 in rewards.

For the convenience of those who wish to provide the DNR with information under the TIP Program, a special toll-free telephone number has been established: 1-800-652-9093.

Ducks Unlimited

Wildlife officials at the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources have congratulated the state's Ducks Unlimited (DU) organization for raising $2.4 million in 1983 and increasing the number of DU sponsors by 1,100.

Sponsors are individuals who contribute at least $200 annually. DU has 40,000 members in Minnesota.

Throughout North America, Ducks Unlimited has 504,000 members and raised $38.2 million for wetlands conservation during 1983.

Minnesota DNR Wildlife Chief Roger Holmes said the DU organization in Minnesota "deserves great credit for a remarkable effort in a cause vital to the perpetuation of waterfowl populations and the preservation of wetlands resources."

He said Minnesota DU produced the largest revenue increase and the greatest increase in the number of sponsors of any Ducks Unlimited group last year.

"It was also the greatest per cent increase in sponsors over 1982, more than 125 per cent," said Holmes.

Overpowered Boats Illegal

It is illegal to operate a boat in Minnesota that has a motor of greater horsepower than the maximum safe limit shown on the boat's capacity plate.

Kim Elverum, boat and water safety coordinator, Department of Natural Resources, said the capacity plate is usually located on the boat's transom or is attached to the craft near the steering wheel or throttle.

He said he receives numerous calls every year concerning the regulation.

It is not illegal for the dealer to sell a boat with a motor larger than shown on the capacity plate, he said, but it is illegal to operate such a boat. He noted, however, that most dealers will not sell an overpowered boat as a matter of policy.

"The boat buyer should check the capacity plate before he purchases the watercraft," said Elveum," especially on used boats."

Furthermore, he said, the boat owner may find that insurance does not cover cases where the owner knowingly overpowers the watercraft and then has an accident.

He also emphasized that there is no truth to the rumor that the law allows a 5, 10 or 15 per cent horsepower increase over the maximum shown on the capacity plate.

In addition, said Elverum, overpowering a boat may damage the transom. It may also create a dangerous situation by forcing the stern lower in the water causing the bow to rise, reducing the operator's forward visibility.

If there is no capacity plate, persons may write the DNR, Box 46, Centennial Building, St. Paul, MN 55155 or call 612-296-3336 to obtain an estimate for their boat. Before contacting the DNR, however, it is necessary to know the centerline length of the boat and the width of the craft at the transom (from outside edge to outside edge).

Pheasant Stamp Contest

Rules for the 1985 pheasant habitat stamp art contest are now available from the Department of Natural Resources.

Contest entries will be accepted starting Sept. 4 and must be submitted no later than 4 p.m. Sept. 24, 1984. Officials emphasized that entries must be delivered to the DNR Bureau of Information and Education or received in the DNR mail room by the deadline or they will be ineligible for the contest.

Judging will take place on Sept. 27.

Copies of the rules can be obtained from the DNR Bureau of Information, Box 46, Centennial Building, 658 Cedar Street, St. Paul, or by calling 612-296-3336.

Artists who have entered past contests are asked to note the change from previous years when the deadline was in December and entries had to be in by noon.

Officials stressed that no one should enter the contest without first obtaining a copy of the rules. The contest is open only to Minnesota residents.

This year, for the first time, the rules stipulate that the use of any photographic process in the finished art will cause the entry to be declared ineligible.

Artists planning to submit entries for the 1985 trout stamp contest will have to wait until May for the rules, because there is legislation being considered in the current session that would make the stamp a requirement to fish in designated trout lakes and Lake Superior. Existing law only requires the stamp for fishing in trout streams.

Typical U.S. family of four uses about 350 gallons of water each day, says "National Wildlife" magazine.

Wheat Grower Ass'n. Opposes Fertilizer Tax

Minnesota Association of Wheat Growers has strongly urged Minnesota Congressional leaders to oppose House Resolution 4813, which would impose a fee on the sale, production or importation of certain chemicals, in order to clean up hazardous waste sites.

According to Harry Howard of Warren, president of the association, the legislation proposed would impose a $7.44 fee on each ton of ammonia sold in the United States.

"This is a significant increase from the current fee imposed upon ammonia in the amount of $2.64," Howard said. "Further, this legislation would remove the exemption existing in current law that prohibits the imposition of the fee on ammonia used for fertilizer puproses."

Howard said the imposition of a fee of this magniture on all ammonia sold in the United States could have devastating results on ammonia producers and farmers.

"Ammonia production is currently well below capacity because of high operating costs and adding further costs would only worsen the situation," Howard said. "Furthermore, it is clear that the farmers are incapable of absorbing this additional cost. Farm operations are conducted on a thin margin and farm operators do not have sufficient funds to pay an additional $7.44 per ton of ammonia so that such money can be 'banked' back in Washington, D.C.," Howard added.

"One need only consider the number of farm failures and foreclosures to recognize that imposing additional unproductive costs on this segment of society is unreasonable and undesirable.".

SANDHILL CRANES, large birds with a distinctive piercing call, nest in the area of wild rice paddies on the Clearwater river in southeastern Pennington county. Other large birds including herons, egrets and bitterns utilize the food supply provided by large populations of frogs and minnows in the paddies.

DIVING DUCKS, including scaup or "bluebills", have been present in large numbers this spring on wild rice paddies on the Clearwater river in southeastern Pennington county. Ringnecks, canvasbacks, redheads and other diving ducks join mallards, pintails, shovelers, teal and an increasing number of wood ducks in feeding on the paddies. A study of wild rice paddies indicates that they provide a higher level of waterfowl production than the best of waterfowl refuges which are government operated.

CAPITOL COMMENTARY

by LeRoy Stumpf
State Senator — District 1

By the time you read this news column, the 1984 Minnesota legislative session will be history, and the Senate's 67 members will have gone home to their local communities, families and "full-time" jobs.

As I write this column, we are reaching an agreement on some of the key issues of the session, such as a major tax relief bill providing over $358 million to taxpayers this year, and another $114.3 million to be sent back to taxpayers over the next biennium (1985-87).

Property tax relief in the form of $21.5 million this year, to be followed by another $51.6 million or more in the next biennium, is also included in this bill, as is reform in the state's agricultural mill credit formulas for the first 320 and 640 acres of land, plus an increase in the amount of tax aid that can be received from $2,000 to $4,000 for individual farmers.

There are a number of other important bills that have successfully survived during this short (seven-week) session, from additional funding for the statewide jobs program, railroad rehabilitation and a passenger train service study to the approval of a bill I authored that would make low-interest, capital farm loans available to farmers who qualify for this aid.

We listened to the public and repealed the state's 10 per cent income tax surcharge; we are refunding the state's public educational system by certifying the $1,585 per pupil aid level for the 1985-86 school year, and we approved some demonstration projects involving the need for agricultural land preservation and the conservation of other natural resources as well in our state.

During the 1983 session, we set into place the building blocks of future economic development by which we could boost the state's recovery. During the past session, we have expanded on that effort and offered taxpayers additional relief in the form of direct and indirect relief. We also have provided for additional funding in our state's reserve to guard against an uncertain national and state economic situation in 1985 and beyond.

As such, we have held the line on justificable state spending in all other areas of state government, and, in general, have achieved our goal of maintaining fiscal stability in the state overall.

In the coming weeks and months during the interim, I will be reporting to you on the specific accomplishments of this session, such as in education, agriculture, business, local government and transportation. If you have any questions or wish to contribute to a discussion of these issues, I would urge you to contact my office at: 306 Capitol Building, St. Paul, MN 55155, or call (612) 296-8660.

Soil Erosion Is Major Problem In Minnesota

Preliminary statistics from the 1982 national resources inventory (NRI) show that wind and water are eroding Minnesota's soil resource at a rate of 153.7 million tons annually.

This erosion is from Minnesota's rural non-federal croplands, pasture-lands, renagelands, forestlands and other lands.

"That information is based on the most exhaustive and extensive survey the U.S. department of agriculture's soil conservation service has ever made," said Donald G. Ferren, state conservationist for the soil conservation service in St. Paul.

Agency's 1982 report shows that 96 per cent of the soil erosion came off the state's 23 million acres of cropland. Ferren said, "In Minnesota, wind erodes 90.1 millions tons of soil, and water erodes another 57.7 million tons from this cropland. Our average soil loss on this cropland is 6.4 tons per acre per year. A further breakdown shows that water erodes this soil at an average rate of 2.5 tons per acre and wind takes an average of 3.9 tons of soil per acre." He added that about 12.8 million acres of this cropland have excessive soil losses of about ten tons of soil per acre per year.

Other 1982 NRI data shows that erosion by water takes another 1.7 million tons of soil annually from the state's 13.1 million acres of ungrazed non-federal forest land. Water erosion also affects the state's 3.6 million acres of pasturelane, displacing 1.5 million tons of soil.

The last erosion inventory was made in Minnesota in 1977. At that time, erosion on cropland was 2.3 tons per acre per year, as compared to the 6.4 tons per acre in 1982. "However," Ferren explained, "The soil conservation service did not compile wind erosion figures in 1977."

Also, noteworthy from the 1982 NRI report, is that the state has 107,000 more acres in cropland now than it did in 1977.

Data from the 1977 and 1982 national resources inventories are comparable, according to Ferren, except for changes in definitions and the fact that more than five times as many sample points were used to estimate resource conditions, making it accurate for much smaller geographic areas.

Warn Farmers Of Calls To Sell Chemicals

Minnesota farmers are cautioned by agriculture commissioner Jim Nichols to be wary of telephone solicitors offering "sensational one-time bargains" on pesticides to control weeds and insects for this crop production season.

"Every spring the con artists climb over the telephone and into the mailbox with slick high pressure talk and literature designed to get the farmer to buy pesticides that often are grossly overpriced and too often worthless. And in hard times on the farm like now, these telephone salesmen are more aggressive and farmers are more vulnerable. Last year farmers paid as high as $75 a gallon for absolutely worthless, verbally misrepresented chemicals," Commissioner Nichols stated.

He recommends that farmers buy their chemicals and other production supplies only from reliable local dealers, who are state licensed and regulated.

Farmers who have been offered a special deal on pesticides by a telephone salesman are urged to insist on a written guarantee, actual label of the product, name and address of the salesman and of the chemical manufacturer, and check these out with the Minnesota department of agriculture before making a purchase or tendering a payment.

Commissioner Nichols pointed out that the state has little regulatory authority over telephone solicitations by salespersons or marketing firms located outside of Minnesota.

"A call from a chemical salesman located in Florida, New Jersey, New York, Michigan, Texas or any other state is good reason to be suspicious immediately," Commissioner Nichols warns. He added that an almost sure sign that the call is a ripoff try is if the caller insists "This is a one time offer that requires an immediate purchase decision."

Nutrition For Aged Is Topic

Elinor Luke will be guest speaker for the senior citizen's day program at the Northwest regional library meeting room from 3 to 4 p.m. Thursday, April 26.

Elinor's presentation is entitled "Nutrition for the Elderly". Refreshments will be served. Meeting is open to the public.

State's Cities To Observe Arbor Month

A special survey by the Minnesota department of agriculture has revealed that more than 250 municipalities plan to commemorate the annual observance of Arbor day Friday and the ensuing Arbor month in Minnesota by renewing shade tree disease control and reforestation programs this year, according to Commissioner Jim Nichols.

"Arbor day and Arbor month observance is not reserved for cities, but is an annual Minnesota grown event in which every family can and should participate, by grooming existing trees and by planting new trees," Commissioner Nichols urges.

Responses were received from 325 of the 450 municipalities surveyed. Of that response group 151 rated Dutch elm as still a significant threat to urban shade trees, and half of the cities rated reforestation and continued shade tree disease control equally important.

Funding of these programs is a major concern of the responding municipalities. More than 60 per cent of the cities reported that they would like to see the state financed shade tree program reinstated. This is the second year that the complete cost of maintained shade tree disease control and reforestation programs have had to be funded by the participating cities. The state program was terminated among the emergency cutbacks forced by the state government's financial crises several years ago.

One-fourth of the Minnesota municipalities surveyed said that improved access to information on urban tree pest problems is needed.

Commissioner Nichols termed this an important issue, with new problems surfacing as threats to the environmental and aesthetic benefits of the urban forests.

Some of the new tree hazards specified by the city foresters included unidentified declines in the populations of such hardwoods as maple, ash and hackberry, plus a variety of cankers, salt and construction injury to trees, native elm wilt, and the rising incidence of isolated but potentially explosive Gypsy moth infestations.

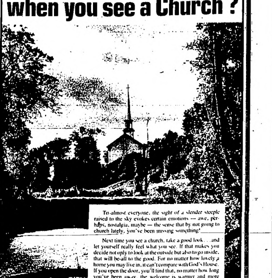
The Times — growing with progressive Thief River Falls.



What do you think of when you see a Church?

To almost everyone, the sight of a slender steeple raised to the sky evokes certain emotions — awe, perhaps, nostalgia, maybe — the sense that by not going to church lately, you've been missing something!

Next time you see a church, take a good look . . . and let yourself really feel what you see. If that makes you decide not only to look at the outside but also to go inside, that will be all to the good. For no matter how lovely a home you may live in, it can't compare with God's House. If you open the door, you'll find that, no matter how long you've been away, the welcome is warmer and more wonderful than you'll find anywhere else.

Helen Flateland talked about the Cope program where new and used socks, jockey and boxer shorts and jeans are still very much in need. Keep this in mind when doing spring cleaning. You don't have to be an auxiliary member to contribute to this worthy cause. Call anyone who is an auxiliary member and she will pick up your clothing. Old eye glasses are also needed. Helga Lambert spoke on the rehabilitation program. Twenty-one lap robes have been made by auxiliary members and sent to the Fargo V.A. hospital. Layettes are still a real need. Doris Evje talked on community service. Two ideas suggested for this project were a community clean-up day and planting trees day. Carolyn Person spoke on membership. The Trail auxiliary now has $100 plus. Action was taken to authorize the ways and means committee to order more fund raising merchandise from the Tracy Hamilton Co. New business was that the auxiliary will serve at the George Rindahl auction on April 29 and for the 38th anniversary of the Trail post. A dinner was served on Saturday, April 14 at 7 p.m. at the V.F.W. hall. In connection with the dinner there was a birthday cake and program for Herbert Samson on his 90th birthday and George Herberg on his 85th birthday. These two are the only W.W. I veterans left in our post. Group 2 served the dinner. Members of that group are Glendine Benson, chairman; Irene Wishard, Effie Handy, Marilyn Halvorson, Pat Finseth, Stella Hangaard, Irene Dessellier, Doris Evje and Connie Syverson. Herbert received his discharge on June 10, 1919. George Herberg who is 85 years old, served in the U.S. navy entering the service May 2, 1917. He served in the navy armed guard in the North Atlantic protecting U.S. merchant ships from German submarines. George received his discharge March 27, 1919. Doris Evje auxiliary junior vice president congratulated the post on their 38th anniversary and stated the fact that Leon Nepper who is deceased, was the post's first commander with 34 charter members when they organized on March 26, 1946. Agnes Coswell Hamery who is now living in Bagley, was the auxiliary's first president with 30 charter members when they organized on June 13, 1946.

HEALTH BEAT

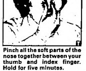
HOME TREATMENT EFFECTIVE FOR MOST NOSEBLEEDS



Pinch all the soft parts of the nose together between your thumb and index finger. Hold for five minutes.

The next time your child runs home from the playground with a bloody nose, follow these simple tips. According to the American Academy of Otolaryngology-Head and Neck Surgery (AAO-HNS), the national society for physicians who treat the ear, nose, throat and related areas of the head and neck, most nosebleeds do not require professional care.

There are two types of nosebleeds — anterior and posterior. Anterior nosebleeds begin with a flow of blood from one or both nostrils when the patient sits up or stands. This is the type most common in children and the type which can be treated at home.

Posterior nosebleeds flow down the back of the throat as well as from the nostril regardless of position. This more severe nosebleed requires a physician's care. Older people, those with high blood pressure and facial injury victims are prone to posterior nosebleeds.

According to the AAO-HNS, these four easy steps can help stop an anterior nosebleed:

1) Blow all the clots out of the nose.

2) Sit up and lean forward.

3) Pinch all the soft parts of the nose together, push firmly in towards the face and hold for five minutes. (If possible, put cotton or tissue, one-half inch inside the nose before pinching.) See picture.

4) Apply crushed ice to the nose, cheek and neck.

Remember to refrain from vigorous activity for at least 48 hours after a nosebleed.

To prevent nosebleeds, especially during the dry winter months, rub a small amount of lubricating cream up inside the nose, and increase the humidity in your home or work place.

Although nosebleeds usually can be safely treated at home, remember a physician's care is recommended for posterior, recurring and uncontrollable nosebleeds. Your otolaryngologist can offer more specific advice. If you would like a list of otolaryngologists in your area, write: AAO-HNS Membership, 1101 Vermont Ave. NW, Suite 302, Washington, D.C. 20005. Enclose an addressed, stamped envelope.

NEWS YOUR WEIGHT AND FATE

Overweight people could increase their lifespan if they decreased their weight.

Obesity is a major health problem in this country. An estimated 70 million Americans are overweight. The relationship of obesity to a higher risk of death and illness has been demonstrated in many studies. One of the largest, sponsored by the American Cancer Society, investigated mortality among 750,000 men and women. The study, according to the authors, "indicates clearly that increasing overweight is associated with rising mortality."

A recent report from the U.S. Surgeon General found obesity to be clearly related to the development of high blood pressure, diabetes and gall bladder disease and a significant contributor to heart disease when associated with other risk factors. The report, entitled "Healthy People," also warned of the serious social consequences of obesity for young people.

Most doctors agree that the way to lose weight safely and effectively is to reduce the number of calories consumed while maintaining a balanced nutritional diet. Fortunately, there are diet aids available to help people control their appetites and lose weight. Most contain Phenylpropanolamine, (PPA), an appetite suppressant available over-the-counter which has been recognized as safe and effective, used as directed, for weight control.

Approximately ten million Americans use PPA annually to help them lose weight and establish good eating habits. Products like Dexatrim, containing PPA, can be an important part of an overall diet program for those consumers who need help to control their appetites and lose weight.

Commercialized Games

Following editorial is from the Scottsdale Daily Progress in Arizona:

The Olympic Games are big business. They are no longer a pure and innocent competition among individual athletes. Instead, they are a contest between nations that involves huge expenditures.

It has been estimated that the Olympic Games this summer will bring California $3 billion in revenue. They also will create close to 70,000 jobs for the Los Angeles area.

In 1976, the City of Montreal lost up to a billion dollars when it hosted the Games. In order to prevent a loss this year, the Los Angeles people have sold everything in sight. They obtained $272 million for broadcast rights alone. And they have sold sponsorships for everything from hamburgers to sneakers.

Only the athletes have not been officially sold. But many countries subsidize their best athletes so that they can train throughout the year.

In view of the fact that the Olympics have become totally commercialized, it is hyprocisy to ask that American participants remain pure. Instead, athletes should be allowed to benefit financially, as everyone else does, because most of them really are professionals.

A Morel Question

No, that isn't a spelling error in the heading for this editorial. It doesn't have much at all to do with morals. At issue here is the morel mushroom, prized by some, rejected by others, ignored by everyone else. It is now, by act of the state legislature, the state's official mushroom. We must agree with Doug Schultz of the New Prague Times who wrote the following column while the morel issue was still in debate.

The state legislature is at it again. Amidst all the hoopla, bustle and back slapping of trying to get well-publicized, controversial bills passed in the last week of the session, someone always manages, it seems, to sneak through a "quiet" bill with devastating effects.

This time, they're pushing through one which seems more insipient, more insidious than any to come down the pike in a long time.

They're trying to make the morel the state mushroom.

With praise for its supposed delicacy, members of the Environment and Natural Resources Committee recommended the morel, also known as the sponge mushroom, or honeycomb morel, as the official state mushroom, April 6.

"Not only does it symbolize the exquisiteness of our woods, but it also symbolizes our quality of life. It's a great delicacy," said Rep. Phyllis Kahn (DFL-Minneapolis).

The bill passed in the Senate March 21. Rep. Connie Levi (IR-Dellwood) is author of the House Bill, HF1053, which goes next on to the Consent Calendar in the House. In other words, it could be going to the floor for final approval any day now.

Okay. I think it's time for the silent majority to stand up and be heard on this on. For too long, the culinary culture of this state has been boondoggled and horsewhipped by a fanatical few who insist the morel is not only edible, but the finest fungus found anywhere.

Many of us can barely stand to look at the pale, slimy growths. If you look too closely at one, you'd swear you were on the set of George Lucas (Star Wars) film, encountering some beast or bizarre landscape. It's enough to scare you half way to Alderan.

If they are really such a delicacy, why does the most popular way of fixing morels seem to be to boil them to death in heavy salt water, then smother them in a pan full of grease and scrambled eggs?

Now, the button mushroom (cute little thing), on the other hand, is at its peak sauteed ever so delicately with a smattering of onion and garlic and olive oil.

And trying to reconstitute a dried morel in soup is like, . . . well, I've had better luck with old shoes.

Even those who truly are fond of morels should be opposed to this bill, for it threatens their very existence.

If it becomes law, there is no doubt that the Department of Tourism will pick up on it in no time flat, groping as those folks are for something to promote from this haven of snow and mosquitoes. They will soon be broadcasting and billboarding the virtues of morels and Minnesota all over the nation. I can see it now. Gargartuan morels in living color on billboards in South Dakota that say, "Come to where the flavor is. Come to morel country."

Soon, there will be New Yorkers and Californians crawling all over our woods, unsuspecting that they are looking for one of nature's best camouflaging jobs in a cruel game of hide and seek. And when the first several hundred frustrated, angry seekers call the tourism department about being skunked, no doubt the tourism folks, or even the legislature, will demand that the most fruitful morel habitats be made public knowledge. A centuries old tradition of secret rites would be shattered.

The more profitable alternative, of course, would be to restrict access to the woods and require morel hunting permits, along with the hiring of a seasoned guide. The Department of Natural Resources, then, however, would become enmeshed in the murky malaise of morel management. We would need more taxes to fund morel hatcheries, no doubt.

What concerns this writer as much as anything, however, is that this state mushroom bill will start a trend with the legislature. If we can have a state mushroom, why not a state vegetable? I'd vote for the rutabaga. Maybe they too would be wiped out. How about a state insect? The choice is obvious. A state sausage? We'd have another thirty-years' war on our hands between the Germans and Swedes and no doubt jitrnice would win by default.

"Dear Commandante . . ."

Columnist Richard A. Viguerie notes that Congressman Newt Gingrich of Georgia has again exposed some of the hypocrisy of certain Washington politicians. He has revealed that 10 liberal congressmen had written a letter praising the communist dictatorship of Daniel Ortega in Nicaragua, and informing Ortega that he could count on them for support.

"We have been, and remain, opposed to support for U.S. military action directed against the people or government of Nicaragua," they wrote in the letter to Ortega on March 20.

Viguerie then comments as follows:

Remember that Commandante Ortega heads a government that censors every newspaper in the country and prohibits criticism of communist governments. His government murdered tens of thousands of Miskito Indians — driving men, women, and children from their homeland in forced marches, bombing their homes, burying them alive, and forcing them at gunpoint to work in the sugar cane fields. His government recently tried to name, as envoy to the United States, a women who seduced a general into her bedroom and then tortured him to death in a manner that I can't describe in a family newspaper.

In communist Nicaragua, soap, toilet paper, gasoline, and food are provided only to those who join the local communist organization. Ortega's government has repeatedly scheduled elections, only to cancel them each time.

The ten Congressmen wrote, "We want to commend you and the members of your government for taking steps to open up the political process in your country. . . We support your decision to schedule elections this year, to reduce press censorship, and to allow greater freedom of assembly for political parties." They praised him for taking these actions "in the midst of ongoing hostilities," as if the anti-communist rebellion were an excuse for his government's campaign of terror. They gave him advice on how to build support for "broad political participation" (that is, communist participation in the government) in El Salvador.

It's easy to be cynical about Congress when, during a period of hostility between the U.S. and a foreign power, members of Congress take it upon themselves to negotiate with that power and praise the government of our adversary. It is shameful that the Congressmen include Jim Wright of Texas, the Democractic Leader of the House of Representatives.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Game Warden: "What's your excuse for hunting on last year's license?"

Hunter: "I'm only shooting at birds I missed last year."

The buyer of a used car had driven only a few blocks when the vehicle broke down. He returned to the dealer who denied any responsibility. "But your sign says 'Guaranteed Used Cars'," the buyer pointed out. "I don't deny that," the dealer responded. "I guarantee every car to be used."

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

This letter should be of interest to every resident of Thief River Falls, and every resident of the state of Minnesota. I trust it will be of special concern to the chief of police and fire department, and the city council of Thief River Falls, and the county commissioners of Pennington county as well.

Railroad management plans to operate trains, regardless of length without cabooses. If this was not their intent, surely their proposal at a national level would not show a desire to operate trains of 35 cars, 75 cars, 120 cars, and more than 120 cars, minus the caboose, if no stops are scheduled. We have not witnessed such an operation in this area yet, but as sure as I am typing this letter, that day is approaching.

Well, that day has approached. On Jan. 23, 1984, the Soo Line Railroad served a notice to the United Transportation Union that they want to eliminate caboose(s), on the following territory: Trans No. 72 and 73, which operate between Thief River Falls and Superior, WI; Trains 115 and 116, which operate between Thief River Falls and Drake, ND, going through towns of Radium, Viking and Warren; Trains No. 937, 938, 941 and 950, which operate Thief River Falls to Noyes, and all trains which operate in work, wreck or snow service, operating in all directions out of Thief River Falls.

On several occasions, when trains have left Thief River Falls, the engines have started grass fires, which the men riding in the caboose have noticed, and have taken action to notify the Soo Line yard office to call the fire department. There have been occasions where the public has noticed something wrong with a train and they have signaled to the men riding in the caboose waving their arms, flashing their car lights, or in the summer months, when the men in the caboose have the windows open, by shouting to the men riding in the caboose to stop the train.

I do not know if you are aware of the hazardous material that is handled on the trains that I have mentioned, but these trains handle L.P. gas, isobutane, anhydrous ammonia and numerous other hazardous materials, which could cause serious conditions in the cities, town and surrounding areas in which these trains operate.

Our community leaders, heads of police and fire departments, mayors, city council members, county commissioners and Senators, Representatives in St. Paul and Washington should take a strong exception to the latest plans of the American Association of Railroads for removal of cabooses from all freight trains.

Are cabooses necessary: The following rules for the Consolidated Book of Rules so state: Rule 103 (B), "Public crossings must not be blocked longer than necessary, and no longer than authorized by law." Rule 713 (C), "Members of the crew must watch their trains carefully for hot journals, brakes sticking, car on fire, defective braking equipment, sliding wheels, load shifted, swinging doors, protruding object, or other dangerous conditions." Rule 713 (D), "Members of crew on rear of train must, when able, make inspection of track from rear of train." This means, that dragging equipment will make marks on the ties and road crossings.

You — the residents of Thief River Falls, Pennington county and the state of Minnesota — would you drive your car or truck down the highway without insurance on your vehicle? I think your answer would be no. This is what the railroads are going to do. By eliminating the caboose on freight trains, they are taking away their insurance of a safe operating condition. By eliminating crew members on a caboose to observe the train and conditions of the track behind the trains, they have cancelled their insurance policy of protection to avoid a major derailment, which could cause a major spill of hazardous materials.

If you care to voice your opinion on this, please write to the, Federal Railroad Administration, Department of Transportation, 2100 Second St. SW, Room 4100, Washington, DC 20590, or write to your State Representative or Senator in St. Paul, and stress that the caboose(s) should be left on all freight trains in the state of Minnesota.

Thank you,
Robert E. Fitzgerald

Hints For Homeowners

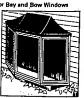
New Roofing Available for Bay and Bow Windows



This angle bay roof features a tough acrylic copper finish for long-lasting strength and enduring beauty.

Homeowners who buy popular styles of bay and bow windows can now avoid costly custom construction or less luxurious "carpenter's specials" with new, easy-to-install and affordably priced one-piece moulded roofs, especially designed to go with such windows.

The copper-toned KSI Polymer Roofs were made for use with Andersen Perma-Shield bow and bay windows, the largest volume selling windows of their type in the U.S. These roofs are for installations where there is no overhang roof protection or where a fascia board-to-sofit of overhang is not wanted. Economical and easy to install, this roof offers ample space for insulation material where such protection against the elements is desired.

These roofs provide outstanding tensile strength as further assurance of durability. Thanks to the one-piece construction of these roofs, there are no joints to leak. The drip edge is moulded to fit with auxiliary casing applied. The roofs are maintenance-free and weatherproof. The top flange provides tight weather seal against siding.

To give your home a special look of distinction, both the bay and bow window roofs feature a ribbed design for a classic appearance. There's a five-year warranty and full installation instructions are included.

These new window roofs are, many agree, a wise investment for the economy-minded home handy person who wants the luxury look of a bay or bow window and the added styling and protection of a complimentary roof.

1984 Property Tax Deadline Is May 15

Traditional May 31 and October 31 deadlines for paying the first and second halves of property taxes have been moved up two weeks this year, and taxes will be payable on May 15 and October 15, according to Ellsworth Jorgenson, Pennington county treasurer. The previous deadlines had been in effect for more than half a century.

Jorgenson said the reason for advanced deadline has been explained by Arthur C. Roemer, state tax commissioner. Roemer said the reason is to get property tax dollars to school districts before the end of the school year (in the case of the May payment) and closer to the beginning of the school year (in the case of the October payment).

Although the payment deadlines were moved up only two weeks, other provisions of the law change by the 1983 legislature result in school districts getting their property tax dollars as much as seven weeks earlier than in the past, the tax commissioner said.

The law now requires county governments — which collect the property tax for school districts — to turn over property tax money to school districts within two weeks after it is collected. Before the law change, counties did not have to turn over the money until seven weeks after it was collected.

Background explanation was provided by Commissioner Roemer as follows:

The reason for the shift to earlier property tax payment deadlines stems from action taken by the legislature to save money for the state during its financial crisis in 1982, and it involves the question of whether school districts start each school year by using revenues from the previous May property tax payment or the impending October payment.

School districts receive proceeds from both the May and October property tax payments and the proceeds from both payments are necessary to finance the expenses of a single school year.

Until the 1982-83 school year, state law required that the revenues from the May property tax payment be applied to the expenses of the upcoming school year.

Although county governments did not have to turn over the May property tax schools until July, the important things was that schools had the money from the May property tax payment on hand and available for use when classes started each September.

Furthermore, schools received the revenues from the October property tax payment no later than December, and so—less than halfway through the school year — received full payment of property tax revenues from the entire year's expenses.

But a timing problem was created for schools when — as a money-saving measure during the state's financial crisis — the legislature in 1982 passed a law requiring that each May's property tax payment must be used for the expenses of the just-ending school year rather than for the upcoming year's expenses.

Requiring that each May's property tax payment be applied back to pay for the expenses of the just-ending school year meant that for the 1982-83 school year — and that year only — schools would receive three instead of the normal two property tax payments.

Since schools received an extra property tax payment for the 1982-83 school year, the legislature was then able to subtract $234 million — roughly the amount of the third property tax payment — from the total amount of state aid it would have paid to schools for the year.

While the measure saved $234 million for the state, applying the May property tax payment back to the expanses of just-ending school year meant that in the future, schools would open each September without having funds from the May property tax payment on hand for expanses.

Furthermore, no funds from

Area Evacuated While Officials View Chemicals

Discovery of what was at first considered to be potentially explosive chemicals at 503 Dewey av. N. in Thief River Falls resulted in evacuation of about 20 homes in the area for a short time Friday afternoon. Investigation revealed that the chemicals were different than those expected and didn't present the danger of explosion.

John (Jack) Matlock, regional pollution control specialist with the Minnesota pollution control agency at the Detroit Lakes regional office, said the chemicals had at first been throught to be sodium hydrazide — which would be highly explosive if mixed with air and water. The chemicals instead proved to be sodium hydroxide, a flammable but less dangerous hazard.

The chemicals were discovered when a resident of the house at 503 Dewey av. N., Daniel Hamilton, was complying with a judge's order to clean up junk vehicles in the area. A 15-gallon drum of crystals was discovered at the scene, and the container had rusted through and part of the contents spilled as it was being moved. Authorites were notified and fire chief David Bjorkman covered the container with plastic.

Matlock said the 15-gallon drum contained ferric chloride, which becomes an acid when mixed with water. Other containers of chemicals were found in a basement of the garage and placed outside. These were later moved back inside the garage and secured there. Included were two more drums of ferric chloride, one drum of sodium hydroxide and 15 five-gallon containers of paint resin used for metal base coat pre-treatment.

The area was barricaded at 1:15 p.m. Friday and residents of 15 homes in the area were asked to leave the area. At five other residences checked there was no on at home. Residents who left were told to contact the law enforcement center at 2:30 p.m. to determine if it was safe to return home. Evacuation was completed at 1:36 p.m.

Owner of the property where the chemicals were discovered is First Federal Savings and Loan association, which foreclosed on the property previously owned by Jerry Welch. Matlock said the owner will have to dispose of the chemicals in accordance with acceptable environemental and safety standards. He said that at least some of the chemicals may be useable.

The pollution control agency official also commended local authorities for their handling of the situation. While the evacuation of people from the area may have been unsettling, he said, it was a proper precaution and prudent decision. It is always best to err on the side of safety, he said.

Sparby Reports Tax Bill Results

Governor Perpich has signed a tax bill that will distribute $358 million in tax cuts throughout Minnesota, according to Representative Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls.

"Income taxpayers, businesses, farmers and homeowners will all benefit from this legislation," Rep. Sparby said. "Everyone is going to get a piece of the pie."

The tax cuts are the result of the projected state surplus. An additional $114 million is earmarked in the legislation for tax relief in 1986 and 1987, Sparby said.

The main features of the legislation are:

+ Repeal of the income tax surcharge, effective Jan. 1, 1984. Taxpayers will receive a reduction in their withholding beginning in May of 1984.

+ Property tax relief. Homeowners and farmers whose property tax bills go up more than 20 per cent in one year will benefit. In 1984 and 1985, the state will pay 100 per cent of any increases which exceed 20 per cent of the previous year's taxes. In 1986 and 1987, the state will pay 50 per cent of any increase above 12.5 per cent — up to a maximum of $400.

Council tabled the matter for further study at their regular meeting last Tuesday night. That meeting was attended by a number of local nursery business owners, who questioned the accountability of the East Grand Forks firm and asked that out-of-town competition not be allowed to take their "best two months of the year."

Noting that the school has been an accredited member of the North Central Association since 1911, Hamerlinck commented, "This accreditation should be a matter of quiet satisfaction to the students and the parents of this school, since accreditation gives assurances that the school meets minimal, yet rigorous, preconditions for effective education established by the association."

CLARENCE MELBY of the Greenbush area is one of several recipients of funds from the Thief River Falls area kidney foundation. Melby travels about 600 miles a week from Greenbush to Grand Forks and back for dialysis treatments. The foundation intends to assist Melby with $200 per month to help cover travel costs. Funding for the assistance comes from the foundation's kidney auction with the 1984 event scheduled for Saturday and Sunday at the Thief River Falls sports arena. Melby is shown at left with Morris Howick, a director of the foundation, who provided him with his April check.

Foundation Helps Greenbush Man

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Travel of 600 miles a week from Greenbush to Grand Forks will be made less of a burden for Clarence Melby through participation by the Thief River Falls area kidney foundation. Melby makes the trip every Monday, Wednesday and Friday for dialysis treatment.

The local kidney foundation, which derives its funds from an annual benefit auction sale, has voted to provide Melby with $200 per month for travel for as long as he needs it and funds are available. The annual benefit auction this year will be conducted Saturday from 5 to 9 p.m. and Sunday from 1 p.m. until all items have been sold.

While a large number of items have been received for the sale, other items of saleable nature will be accepted as donations to the sale. No clothing items will be accepted, but persons with other items they wish to donate may contact Morris Howick, Cliff Bredeson, LaVonne Haraldson or Web Maves.

Howick, one of the directors of the local foundation, said that the organization has about $6,000 in its treasury from the 1983 auction and is now distributing funds to area recipients. The foundation was chartered as a non-profit organization during the past year and is expected to expend most of its funds on an annual basis.

In addition to helping Melby with his travel expense, Howick said the foundation has committed $120 per month to assistance of an Argyle woman who also goes to Grand Forks for dialysis and an undetermined amount for Traci Rendulich, a six-year-old Thief River Falls girls who requires frequent examinations due to having only one kidney.

For Clarence Melby, who came to the Greenbush area in 1913 when he was three years old, farming had always been a way of life. Then three years ago he complained of being unusually tired while operating the family's combine during the fall harvest.

Perhaps it shouldn't have been unusual for a 71-year-old person to get tired after a full day of farm work, but Clarence and his family believed that something was wrong. Kidney failure was diagnosed and in August of

Waste Disposal Site Search Is Terminated

A bill halting the search for a hazardous waste disposal site was passed overwhelmingly by the legislature late Tuesday and forwarded to the governor for his signature, according to District 1 legislators Sen. LeRoy Stumpf and Reps. Wally Sparby and Jim Tunheim.

Representatives Sparby and Tunheim called the legislation a "victory" for their districts, which include Marshall county, where the Minnesota waste management board had identified a potential waste site.

"By passing this bill, we have said that we will no longer bury toxic wastes that later could seep into our ground water and threaten our health and our environment," Rep. Sparby said. "And we will not identify any site before we know that we need one," he added.

Tunheim and Sparby said the bill directs the state waste management board to evaluate whether there is a need for a waste disposal site in Minnesota.

"We need to look at the continuing availability of disposal sites outside Minnesota," Rep. Tunheim said. "That availability has a significant bearing on future legislative action."

The board is to complete an evaluation of whether a disposal facility is needed and report its findings to the legislature in 1986. That body will then decide if it will resume a search for a site.

The bill also reduces the emphasis on the need for landfills by underscoring the importance of finding alternatives, Sparby and Tunheim said.

The legislation gives the waste board the authority to drop two of the sites now under consideration. It also establishes programs to recycle and reduce the amount of waste generated in the area.

Governor Perpich has said he will sign the bill into law. The legislation also has the support of the Robert Dunn, chairman of the waste board and Sandra Gardebring, executive director of the Minnesota pollution control agency.

Brochure On Drugs Offered At Pharmacies

"The Kinds of Drugs Kids Are Getting Into" is the title of a free informational brochure being distributed through 55,000 community pharmacies across the United States. Included are Ekeren Drug, Thomas Drug and Bruce Pharmacy of Thief River Falls.

The pharmacies are cooperating with an organization known as Pharmacists Against Drug Abuse (ADA) to conduct the anti-drug abuse public information campaign. The brochure focuses on alcohol and marijuana as well as cocaine, the fastest growing drug of abuse in America.

"Parents and children need to know that using these drugs is harmful," pharmacists at the local pharmacies stated. "That's why we are making available to the public the free brochure. We encourage people to ask for one when they are in our stores."

The brochure notes that over one-third of all kids in America use illegal drugs, that one out of every 18 high school seniors is smoking an average of three and one-half joints of marijuana every day, and that drugs like alcohol and marijuana lead to use of other drugs including angel dust, LSD, cocaine, amyl nitrate, speed, hashish, heroin and prescription tranquilizers and narcotic agents.

'U'M Regents Plan To Raise Average Tuition

A plan for spending $382.6 million in state funds and income from tuition — which would rise an average of 13.3 per cent per student — for maintenance and operations at the University of Minnesota was approved by the board of regents recently.

The budget plan, which does not include self-supporting units such as University hospitals or income from federal and private sources, is $15.5 million or 4.2 per cent higher than the current budget. The comprehensive budget of money from all sources will be presented to the regents in July.

A legislative mandate requires that the university fund 32 per cent of its instructional costs — $85.5 million in the proposed budget — through tuition. Although the regents approved the budget plan for raising tuition income 9.1 per cent to meet that mandate, they will not decide until May exactly how the increase will be distributed among students. The administration has proposed that increases range from 9.5 per cent to 20 per cent. The lower figure would affect about 40 per cent of the students in the five-campus system.

However, the board did approve a plan to allow graduate students to pay a fixed term rate instead of the $70.89 per credit they now pay.

Kenneth Keller, vice president for academic affairs, said the graduate tuition plan should lower the projected cost of getting a graduate degree at the university by allowing students who sign up for an average number of credits — from seven to 15 — to pay $720 per quarter instead of the per credit rate. The proposal, outlined by Keller, would allow students to fulfill the requirement for 36 thesis credits in their regular quarterly schedules without additional cost.

Although no graduate students have yet paid for thesis credit, which was implemented last fall, if the current policy had remained in effect, the cost of a graduate degree would have risen dramatically, Keller said. He added that the thesis credit was established as a way to charge students for the substantial amount of graduate instruction that takes place outside formal classroom settings.

The per credit method of assessing graduate school tuition accounted for a decrease in the number of credits students took this year, leading to a $1 million shortfall in projected tuition revenue, Keller said. He predicted that the proposed system, which would couple the term rate with a requirement that Ph.D. students register at that rate for at least three years and that master's degree students register at that rate for at least four quarters, would generate more tuition income — despite a lower per-student cost — by encouraging more students to register for more courses. Under the plan, students who have fulfilled the minimum residency requirements and those who are not enrolled in a degree program would pay only half the $85 per credit rate that part-time students would pay.

"We believe that this will spread out the burden of tuition over several years and make our tuition structure comparable to that of almost all other universities," Keller said.

Agencies Work Together For Water Projects

Important changes to its program to protect Minnesota waters are being announced by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. The St. Paul District was simplified its review process for Department of the Army permits and minimized overlap between federal and state agencies. Corps regulates the placement of stuctures in navigable waters and of fill in almost all waters and wetlands of Minnesota.

Persons most likely to be affected by the changes are those who intend to 1) place fill to convert wetland to upland; 2) sidecast material in wetlands to divert water; 3) place fill material in waters or wetlands to enhance a swimming beach or for bank stabilization or access; 4) place fill in wetlands adjacent to state-protected waterbodies or watercourses.

Changes are the result of a cooperative effort by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR), the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency and the St. Paul District of the Army Corps of Engineers.

One red-tape-cutter is a general permit for work which was previously routinely authorized by DNR. Some of the work may include sand blankets, boat ramps, cofferdams, small dredging projects, bridge and culvert replacements, and submerged utility line crossings. This eliminates paperwork and needless burden on the taxpayer for low-impact activities.

A second change will provide regional conditions to nationwide permits. This change protects Minnesota's unique and valuable waters.

Regional conditions are for projects such as dredging up to 10 cubic yards, return of water from hydraulically-dredged material, and repair or replacement work. These activities don't need further Corps authorization if they have state approval. Fills for roads and utility lines, bank stabilization, and discharges of up to 10 cubic yards of fill are also permitted if certain provisions are followed.

In some cases, projects that would otherwise be authorized by a nationwide permit would receive a complete public interest review before the Corps issues or denies a permit.

Corps is soliciting comments on these changes; if you wish to review the entire proposal, you may request a copy by calling (612) 725-7712.

Infant Death Rate Decreases In 1981-1982

Between 1981 and 1982, there was a significant drop in the number of Minnesotans who gave birth before age 20, suffered fatal injuries, or got divorced, according to the state health department. There was also a sharp decline in the infant death rate, and the number of children who died before age one.

The 1981-82 comparisons were based on a provisional analysis of 1982 data on births, deaths, marriages and divorces in Minnesota, completed recently by the state center for health statistics, at the health department. Figures released by the Center indicate that:

— There were 68,512 births among Minnesota women during 1982, a slight drop from 1981. Both the birth rate and the pregnancy rate fell by one to two per cent, while comparable national figures rose by about the same percentage. Women 19 and under accounted for seven per cent of the Minnesota births, while women over 35 accounted for less than one per cent. There was a decrease in total births between 1981 and 1982 among women under 20 (down 8.2 per cent), and women 20-24 (down 2.4 per cent), while births among women 25-29 held steady. There was an increase among women 30-34 (up 4.1 per cent), 35-39 (up 15.2 per cent) and 40 or over (up 7.8 per cent).

— There were 32,976 deaths among Minnesota residents in 1982, but the death rate was unchanged from 1981. There were 645 deaths among children under age one, a decrease of eight per cent from 1981. The infant death rate declined by 7.8 per cent, to 9.4 per thousand live births, while the national rate decreased by only four per cent.

— Heart disease and cancer remained the leading causes of death in Minnesota. Heart disease accounted for 36.7 per cent of all deaths, while cancer accounted for 21.9 per cent.

— Deaths from traumatic injuries were down 14 per cent from 1981, continuing a long term trend. The sharpest drop was in motor vehicle-related deaths, which decreased by 36 per cent among Minnesotans 15-24, and 27 per cent overall.

— There were 37,409 marriages in Minnesota during 1982, down slightly from 1981, and an eight per cent drop in divorces. The divorce rate dropped from 4 to 3.7 per thousand population.

Senator's Bill Aimed To Thwart Sport Team Moves

Senator Rudy Boschwitz's efforts to keep professional baseball teams from leaving their hometowns for greener pastures has been joined by Senator Slade Gorton of Washington and his bill was expanded to include all professional sports teams.

Boschwitz said Gorton's position as an influential member of the Senate's commerce committee would "put the bill on a fast track."

Gorton's involvement was prompted by the sudden midnight relocation of the Baltimore Colts to Indianapolis in March. Gorton characterized that move as "nothing less than deplorable and shockingly shabby."

Boschwitz agreed, and promised that there would be no similar move by the Minnesota Twins baseball team, who he says, have been increasingly coy about their plans to sell out or to relocate the team to a more profitable climate.

"I'm as free and fair market oriented as most people, but when you are talking about a professional sports team, particularly a baseball team, you are not exactly talking about a main street business."

Sports teams, he said, have unique advantages, such as federal antitrust exemptions as well as state or local breaks, and with that should come inherent obligations.

"Professional teams are economically and emotionally important to communities — the domed staidum in downtown Minneapolis would certainly attest to that."

"The public frequently authorizes capital construction bonds to finance the construction of the stadium in which the pro team plays. The 'rent' the team pays for the use of this huge and costly stadium normally defrays only the operating cost of the facility. The public is never reimbursed for the actual costs of building the stadium. That in effect becomes a public subsidy for the pro sports franchise," Gorton added.

The new Gorton-Boschwitz bill — the professional sports team community protection act — expands the jurisdiction of the original bill to include all professional sports teams and covers any team relocation, whether the franchise changes hands or not. The earlier Boschwitz bill limited itself solely to baseball and sought to restrict only those selling teams.

"This is a natural and common-sense expansion of my bill," Boschwitz said. "While it is true that baseball is the only sport that enjoys the antitrust exemption, it seems inconsistent that different rules should apply to baseball than to other major league sports.

"There is no reason why the concept of a community's right of first refusal should not apply to all teams."

Boschwitz acknowledged that the new bill closes a possible loophole in the earlier legislation by applying to relocation of teams under current ownership.

The act would prevent the sale and relocation of the pro sports team unless one of two conditions could be met. Either the stadium would be determined clearly inadequate for play and the local governmental authority could not make a suitable facility available, or the team could show that it has incurred consistent operating losses that threaten the continued existence of the team.

The move would be allowed, however, if there were no local offers to buy the team at a fair value and if no objection to the proposed move had been made by a local governmental authority. Any owner attempting to relocate would be required to give reasonable notice of the sale.

The bill establishes an arbitration board to review a requested move. The board would have three members. One would be appointed by the current owner of the pro sports team. The second would be appointed by the appropriate governmental authority. The final board member would be appointed by the Secretary of Commerce.

The arbitration board would have seven months to hold a public hearing and determine the facts. Its jurisdiction would be strictly limited to a determination of whether or not grounds for relocation are adequate and an eligible buyer of the team can be found.

SWCD Expects Trees Soon For Area Planting

Pennington soil and water conservation district will be getting its trees within the next two weeks and farmers who have signed up to plant trees this spring should be cultivating the area again and considering putting chemical on for weed control.

People getting hand plants will be sent a card telling them what day they are to stop by the soil conservation office at Dale street and pick up their trees, according to conservationists Allan Gustafson.

Spring is also a good time to order replacement trees for those that may have winter-killed, Gustafson added. It is important to keep groves thick and uniform to provide maximum protection for the farmstead. Anyone interested in hand plants, replacements or a farmstead or field windbreak, stop by or call the office at 681-3348.

Solar Eclipse To Be Viewed On May 30th

One of nature's most dramatic events, a solar eclipse, occurs on Wednesday, May 30. According to the national society to prevent blindness, the safest ways to watch this late-morning event are by indirect viewing, on television or at a professionally sponsored eclipse watch.

The society reports that viewing the eclipse directly can be dangerous to the eye's retina — that delicate layer of cells at the back of the eye which sends visual images to the brain.

Intense sunlight is focused by the eye's lens onto the retina. The retina does not experience pain, so the burn is not felt. However, it effects are lasting. There is nothing that can be done to restore vision lost from a retainal burn.

Unlike the total eclipse of 1979, this May's eclipse will be annular. Even though the moon will cross over the run, an outer ring or annulus of the sun's atmosphere will be visible at all times.

The atronomical league reports that the eclipse will cross directly through the southeastern United States, and will be in partial view throughout the rest of the continental U.S., Hawaii and Puerto Rico.

At about 11 a.m., the moon's shadow will race northeastward at 1,400 miles-per-hour, beginning in Louisiana, crossing Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, the Carolinas and Virginia, and reach the Maryland shore less than one hour later.

To view the eclipse indirectly, the society recommends the following: 1. Get two sheets of white cardboard; 2. Make a pinhole in the center of one of them; 3. Stand with sun at your back; 4. With one sheet of cardboard in each hand, hold the sheet with the pinhole so that the sun shines through the hole onto the other sheet; 5. Adjust the sheets to focus the light. (You can change the size of the image by changing the distance between the sheets.); 6. Now, by looking at the bottom sheet, you can see an exact image of the sun and its eclipse. As the moon slowly crosses in front of the sun, you can see it all happen!

The society cautions that people using this method should not look at the eclipse through the pinhole. Similarly, photographers shooting this event are cautioned not to look at the sun through their camera viewfinder.

The society has printed instructions on safe eclipse viewing. To receive a free copy of "See the Moon Eclipse the Sun! Safely!", write: National Society to Prevent Blindness, 79 Madison Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10016. All requests should be accompanied by a self-addressed, stamped, business-sized envelope.

U of M Receives $58 Million For Remodeling

Bonding bill passed recently by the 1984 Minnesota legislature includes almost $58 million for building and remodeling at the University of Minnesota.

Biggest item is $21 million for a major renovation of Smith hall, the chemistry building on the Twin Cities campus. The 1913-vintage chemistry facilities have been obsolete and overcrowded for years.

Another major remodeling project will be for microbiology and public health facilities, funded at $8.2 million. The remodeling will involve several floors of the Mayo Building.

Other Twin Cities campus items on the bill include $4 million for phase II of the animal science facilities, $2.7 million for working drawings for an electrical engineering and computer science building, $1.2 million for remodeling Amundson hall and Mines and Metallurgy, $855,000 for remodeling Folwell hall, $656,000 for remodeling and adding to Green hall, $621,000 for phase I of the Williams arena remodeling project and $420,000 for remodeling Appleby hall.

Legislature also approved the reappropriation of funds to two construction projects that came in under bid. The new funds are $1.3 million for a music library, $1.6 million for a performance laboratory in the new music building and $800,000 for a teaching greenhouse for agronomy.

No funds were appropriated for an enclosed football practice field, but the legislature gave the university the go-ahead to build such a facility with non-state funds.

Major items funded on the coordinate campuses include $1.5 million for remodeling and adding to Owen hall in Crookston, $4.4 million for a physical education and recreational sports building and $1.8 million for the SAGE building in Duluth, $1.2 million for mechanized agriculture, a receiving dock and vehicle storage at Waseca and $200,000 for a greenhouse at Morris.

EPA Symposium Has Emphasis On Waste Recycling

"Around the nation, Minnesota is considered a leader in protecting environmental resources. This view was reinforced when I attended a recent symposium conducted by the federal Environmental Protection agency (EPA) on hazardous waste management," states Robert Dunn, chairman of the Minnesota waste management board.

"At the symposium, conducted April 3-5 in Fort Mitchell, KY it was clear that federal officials are now giving serious consideration to several hazardous waste management policies that have already been studied — and approved — in Minnesota," Dunn said.

"The symposium was attended by officials from over 40 states, Canada, Denmark, and Taiwan and included detailed reports on research recently conducted by the EPA on various hazardous waste management technologies. EPA administrators also discussed some of the policies and directions the agency will pursue in the future.

"We were pleased to discover that most of these future directions are similar to those already included in Minnesota's long-range hazardous waste management policies," Dunn said. "for example, EPA officials indicated that the federal government — particularly the U.S. Congress — is shifting toward hazardous waste reduction, recycling and treatment as preferred to the landfilling of hazardous wastes. While there was common agreement among EPA officials that land disposal facilities should not be banned, they are now coming to believe such facilities should be used only to contain thoroughly treated waste residuals."

In its draft hazardous waste management plan issued in February, the Minnesota waste board identified hazardous waste reduction as its top priority, and listed recycling and treatment (including incineration) — in that order — as the next preferred hazardous waste management methods for Minnesota. Disposal or long-term storage will be the last resort in the state's overall hazardous waste management system.

EPA officials also indicated they may regulate used oils and greases, which often contain hazardous constituents, more stringently than in the past. This information was rewarding for board officials because the board has planned for properly managing these substances as hazardous wastes.

In addition, the EPA is now considering a prohibition on land disposal of liquid wastes as well as certain "high hazard" wastes. Minnesota's new hazardous waste regulations developed by the Pollution Control agency (PCA) will prohibit land disposal of liquid wastes, and the board's hazardous waste management plan will, in effect, prohibit "high hazard" wastes from deposition in the disposal or long-term storage facilities the board will site in 1986.

Other insights provided by the research symposium included:

—The EPA is not very optimistic about the feasibility of new, unproven hazardous waste treatment technologies. Instead, the agency is devoting its efforts toward refining existing, proven treatment processes.

Congress is probably going to enact a ban on disposal of hazardous wastes in mined repositories until the EPA can develop suitable standards to regulate this type of disposal. (This seems to vindicate the board's recent decision to terminate its "crystalline bedrock" disposal siting program.)

—Future siting and regulation of hazardous waste facilities will be based heavily upon "performance standards," or detailed, predetermined measurements that will serve as yardsticks for predicting the safety of a particular facility and evaluating its operation.

—Recovery of heavy metals from hazardous wastes is viewed as a very promising recycling and treatment method. (The board has been supporting an effort to establish a metal recovery facility in the Twin Cities area.)

—Incineration of certain types of hazardous wastes in industrial boilers is going to be further investigated by the EPA.

—The EPA intends to spend $47 million on research next year in a continuing effort to develop solutions to the many complex problems inherent in providing for proper management of hazardous wastes.

Those who would like additional information about the EPA research symposium or the activities of the Minnesota Waste Management Board, please write to: 7323 58th Ave. No., Crystal, MN 55428; or call (612) 536-0816, (toll-free) 1-800-652-9747.

1984 Property Tax Deadline Is Advanced

the property tax would be available until December when the October payment would be turned over to schools by the county governments.

The measure also meant that schools could face problems — and extra expense — in applying the May property tax payment back to the expenses of the just-ending year because schools would be closed by the time county governments turned the May property tax payment over to schools in July.

So, to soften the effects of these potential problems, the legislature moved the property tax payment deadlines up two weeks, and also now requires that county governments turn over property tax revenues to schools within two weeks of the payment deadlines.

As a result, schools receive their first property tax payment about two months — instead of four months — after the start of classes, and school will still be in session when the second property tax payment is received around the end of May — instead of in July as in the past.

Sparby Gives Report On MN Tax Bill

+ Business tax relief, including property tax reductions on the first $60,000 of commercial or industrial property and a reduction of sales tax from six per cent to four per cent on new capital equipment, logging equipment (with the exception of chain saws; and special tools. Sales tax will be charged on only 65 per cent of the selling price of a mobile home and corporate foreign dividends and royalties will be excluded from taxation.

+ A special tax amnesty plan will allow delinquent tapayers to pay up during the months of August, September and October of this year and be forgiven 20 per cent of their bill, up to $2,000. Businesses who then still owe the state more than $1,000 in sales and withholding taxes could face withholding of their licenses. This provision does not apply to individual licensees, such as reachers or barbers.

+ The state budget reserve is increased to ensure future state fiscal stability.

"After the fiscal crisis we have just been through, we can all breathe a sigh of relief that the state is in good financial shape once again. I am especially pleased that Minnesota farmers, who have suffered greatly, are targeted for much needed tax relief," Rep. Sparby said.

SUBSTANTIAL GIFT to the Lincoln high school activities fund was made by these three former members of the Thief River Falls TRFinette drum and bugle corps. The organization is now inoperative and the board of directors consisting of Gail Bergland, Vern Lee, Bill Dee, Dorothy Wold, Barb Restad, Darlene Swanson, Ruth Klosterman and Avis Fagerlund decided to donate the contents of the treasury to non-funded athletic activities at the school. A check for $1,768.68 was presented to Lincoln athletic director Russ Smith by (left to right) Rhonda (Lee) Joppru, Nancy (Vagle) Harbott and Shari (Amiot) Larson. The presenters have a combined total of about 17 years with the marching unit. Smith said the money will be used to help finance programs of girls swimming, boys and girls cross country, boys swimming, baseball, girls golf, boys golf and boys tennis, none of which receive funding from the school district.

Greenbush Man Aided By Foundation

1982 he began twice a week kidney dialysis at Grand Forks. The trips each Monday and Friday for dialysis continued until last winter when he entered Hennepin county medical center in Minneapolis.

Melby said he entered the hospital on December 5 and remained there until he was able to return home on February 25. He had gone down to the Twin Cities with the idea that he could have someone trained for a home dialysis unit. That idea was discouraged and the hospital treatment was begun.

Uncertainty surrounds Melby's condition since he has partial kidney function and doctors are reluctant to consider a transplant on the basis that increased funcation may occur. He is on a diet to reduce calcium and potassium accumulation but otherwise restricted mostly in accordance with the way he feels. He said he tires very easily, especially after his long hospitalization.

He has sold his farm to a son but continues to make his home at Greenbush. Because of his weakened condition, he requires a driver to take him to and from Grand Forks for treatment. He wishes there was a dialysis unit closer to home, such as at Thief River Falls, but he appreciates very much the financial assistance which is being provided by the local kidney foundation.

Albert Kinney was born Feb. 24, 1896 in Bancroft, Iowa to Henry and Maude Peak Kinney. He married Anna Torfin on June 2, 1920 at Sheldon, N.D. She died June 11, 1966.

After retiring from farming in the Sheldon area, Kinney moved to Oklee.

In 1967, he married Florence Hartman at Red Lake Falls. They made their home at Red Lake Falls and later at Thief River Falls. Since 1982, he had been a resident of the Enderlin Hillcrest Manor Retirement home.

He is survived by his wife, Florence, a resident at Oakland Park Nursing home, Thief River Falls; a step-son, Darryl Hartman, Calif.; a step-daughter, Mrs. George (Ardith) Solney, Thief River Falls; and one brother and three sisters, none in this area.

In addition to his first wife and parents, he was preceded in death by a brother and one sister.

Attending services from here were Mrs. George Solney and Mrs. Maybelle Solney.

REFLECTIONS

The sweetest revenge is to forgive. By forgiving wrongs to us we cleanse ourselves of the acid effects of hate, bitterness and misery. How sad the man who wallows in revenge . . . plotting and planning to "get even." How much simpler and easier to forgive and then get on to more pleasant aspects of life. The harm done will heal more quickly because hate cannot flourish in a forgiving heart.

Arrests Are Up In 1983 For Minnesota

More people were arrested for crimes in Minnesota last year even though fewer crimes were committed in the state. The arrests of males continue to outnumber that of females four to one in all categories of crime with the exception of juvenile runaways. In that category, girls, 17 years and younger, were arrested for running away from home almost one-and-a-half times as often as boys in the same age group, according to the bureau of criminal apprehansion (BCA).

BCA superintendent John Erskine says four thousand more people were arrested in 1983. He attributes this to "law enforcement authorities doing a better job." Erskine believes police officers are more professional due to a greater emphasis on continuing education in police investigation. And he says, "you certainly have to recognize that technology has advanced criminal investigation immeasurably. The police today are better educated and better trained."

DPS commissioner Paul Tschida notes the increase in the number of drunk driving arrests as evidence of greater law enforcement emphasis encouraged by new state laws. He points out that 32,155 arrests were made for driving under the influence of drugs-alcohol in 1983, which is up from the 1982 figure of 27,326.

The 1983 report also shows juveniles, 17 years and under, account for one-fourth the total number of arrests in the state. There are 8,493 arrests of persons 17 years of age alone. Arrests for persons 18 years old numbered 7,871. The number for each age thereafter continues to drop.

BCA report using preliminary figures reveals there were 126,227 arrests in the state in 1983 compared with 122-132 in 1982. Sixty-three people were arrested for murder in 1983 including six juveniles. There were 98 total arrests for murder in 1982 including only two juveniles. In addition 1,000 more people were arrested for narcotics violations in 1983 than 1982 and liquor law violation arrests last year were almost double what they were the previous year.

Hats Off To Volunteers

If one were to tally up the amount of work that gets done as a result of volunteer labor in this community, there wouldn't be enough digits on most pocket calculators to print out a total.

And because volunteerism is so much a natural act here, so much a simple fact of everyday life, nobody really seems to think much about it one way or another. But the designation of May 6-12 as national volunteer recognition week gives us an opportunity to draw some attention to volunteers.

Most notable on a community basis are such large programs as the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and 4-H club programs, all of which involve youth training and which attract the bulk of their volunteer support from among the ranks of parents. Parents may be expected to participate in such programs because they have a special interest in their own children.

Within these programs, however, are many long term volunteers who may have started as parents of participants but stayed on to fill a need after their children had completed the program. Also within the ranks of these volunteers are those who have no children but desire to serve because of a public-spirited interest. Others involved are those who have benefited from such programs in their youth and who wish to return those benefits by serving others.

Aside from such programs, however, we think of the volunteers who serve as officers of organizations, donating their time to assure the success of those groups; those who voluntarily raise funds for charitable causes through any number of efforts; those who give freely of their talents in music or art or other fields to entertain or benefit others.

We think of the countless hours served by members of church groups, primarily women's groups, to relieve the family of responsibility at funerals, add to the festivity at weddings, instruct the Sunday school or Bible school, serve as ushers or work on committees. Serving as a volunteer seems to be second nature to many people and without them there are many events and activities which would never happen.

Just as volunteers are at the heart of community spirit and progress, there are others who could stand to learn a lesson from the selflessness of others.

We all know individuals who feel much more comfortable criticizing the way things are done by volunteers than offering to help. We know people with talent who could share their gift for the happiness of others who reserve such pleasure for those who will pay a fee. We know people who first ask "what does it pay?" rather than "how can I help?".

Thankfully for all of us — the slackers, the critics, the hold-outs included — there are many, many more willing volunteers than the others. And they are the ones who put smiles on young faces, establish community spirit among the middle aged, care about and provide for the elderly. And they are the ones who can go to their late night pillows with the satisfaction of service performed that leads to contented sleep.

Reform Is Ignored

Publisher J.S. Morrison of the Morris Sun charges that the current session of the Minnesota legislature again did nothing to reform the state's unemployment compensation program. He writes as follows:

The state of Minnesota owes a $428,000,000 unemployment compensation debt to the federal government. Interest payments are in excess of $50,000 a day. The federal unemployment tax for Minnesota businesses jumped 41 per cent in 1983 and another 30 per cent Jan. 1, 1984.

The source of the problem is an excessively generous benefit schedule. Minnesota's payout per recipient ranks fourth in the national despite the fact that we are 35th in unemployment. More than 20,000 seasonal workers in Minnesota earn over $20,000 a year and still receive unemployment compensation.

What did this session of the legislature do about this problem? Nothing. Lawmakers stayed on the sidelines as lobbyists for big business and big labor negotiated a so-called "compromise bill". Small businesses were not even represented in the deliberations.

The resulting bill very heavily favored the AFL-CIO. Instead of freezing or reducing benefits, this will would have increased them. Maximum weekly benefits would have gone from $191 to $258.

The legislature should have tightened the eligibility requirements. But the "compromise" bill would have done just the opposite. Benefits would have been extended to minimum-wage part-time workers. School bus drivers who work for private contractors would have become eligible for summer benefits.

Failure to reform unemployment comp provides another illustration of how big labor dominates the Minnesota legislature. By virtue of the number of DFL votes he can swing, AFL-CIO president David Roe has come to be known as the most powerful man in the Minnesota legislature. Many DFL legislators follow the union line even if it means voting against the interests of the district they represent.

Because the legislature failed to change the system, all of us who do business in Minnesota will be picking up the tab for the unemployment comp deficit. We can only wonder how long Minnesotans will tolerate such a drain on the state's economy.

Double Standard

Following editorial from CNS was published recently in the Bemidji Pioneer:

By all but ignoring until recently a death threat made publicly against a reporter by a key Jesse Jackson campaign figure, the media and Democratic opponents demonstrate again a double standard of kid-glove treatment and demeans the Jackson campaign. Almost everyone dreads being called a racist.

Several weeks ago, Louis Farrakhan, head of Nation of Islam, a Chicago-based black separatist group and Jackson's inseparable campaign companion and adviser, made the death threat in a radio broadcast against Washington Post reporter Milton Coleman who disclosed truthfully that Jackson had referred to Jews as "Hymies." Coleman was denounced as a "no-good, filthy traitor" for betraying his race, an "Uncle Tom" and a "Judas."

"One day soon we will punish you with death. . .," the Black Muslim leader said. That it was Farrakhan who said Malcom X deserved to die shortly before his assassination lent a particular chill to the threat. Then, after the "Hyie" remarks were reported, Farrakhan suggested an early grave for any Jew who took public offense at Jesse Jackson's "Hymietown" slur.

Although Jackson has disavowed the death threats, he steadfastly refuses to repudiate Farrakhan. Instead, he angrily blames the media whenever the subject is mentioned, however mildly. Belatedly as well as circumspectly, Democratic presidential contenders Walter F. Mondale and Colorado Sen. Gary Hart have called on Jackson to repudiate Farrakhan. But neither has made an issue of this unconscionable development or otherwise vigorously challenged Jackson for fear of alienating black voters, whose support will be needed against President Reagan in November.

"If this had been any other candidate, the aide would have been fired or the candidate would have disavowed his support," said James Lengle, a Georgetown University political scientist. "Without a doubt, a double standard is being applied. . ."

What Jesse Jackson doesn't seem to realize is that Farrakhan's black racism and his own racial slurs are as abominable as the KKK's brand of bigotry. Moreover, the Rainbow Coalition's black-against-white emphasis is slowly but surely igniting racial animosity which has been so painfully subdued in this country.

Jackson is likely to find all of this to be poor currency in purchasing influence as a power broker at the Democratic convention.

Borrowed Nonsense:

In the middle of the night on a camping trip, the five-year-old called out, "Mommy, bring me a drink of water." "Go back to sleep," the mother replied. A few minutes later the youngster again asked for a drink and was again told to go to sleep. "Mommy, I want a drink of water," the child said a few minutes later. "If you call me again, I'm going to spank you," the sleepy mother replied. After a few seconds of silence the youngster said, "Mommy, when you get up to spank me, will you bring me some water?"

A mother found a few gray hairs and commented to her four-year-old daughter that she was getting old. "Don't worry, Mommy," the girl said. "If you get too gray to be my Mommy, I'll let you be my Grandma."

Youngster at dinner table: "I just can't bring myself to say grace for a spinach casserole."

Fraud Detection System Saves $21,000 Taxes

Revenue commissioner, Art Roemer has announced that the department of revenue has had in operation, since December, 1983, a computer generated fraud detection system, reviewing the individual income tax and property tax refund returns passing through the revenue department's processing system.

To date, 400,000 returns have been processed and were matched against a series of computer selectors that have scored 13,000 of these returns for review by an examiner.

A fraud detection team has been established to review and investigate those returns scored by the system. If the tax return does not pass this review process, the claimed refund may not be issued immediately. Further checking will be done by telephone, mail, or in person, to determine the validity of the claimed refund. Refunds will be delayed until the investigative process has been completed.

This review program has been patterned after other states who have placed it in operation, and the revenue department has refined it for Minnesota tax returns. It was developed from known fraud schemes with the internal revenue service and other states, as well as fraudulent returns discovered by the revenue department in prior years.

One of the key elements to the program is that taxpayers must fill in and use a correct social security number on the tax return that is filed.

The program has the capability of detecting invalid and unissued social security numbers. Another key selector element is the mailing address for delivery of the refund warrant.

As of this date, five criminal complaints have been filed claiming false refunds. There are seven more active criminal investigations in progress.

There were two cases discovered involving persons living in other states filing false claims on Minnesota tax returns.

To this point in time the system has saved the revenue department $21,000 in tax dollars.

The 1983 state legislature enacted laws to assess more severe penalties against those found guilty of these schemes. Commissioner Roemer stated that these added penalties should provide his investigators with effective tools in seeking criminal prosecutions in this area.

Delay Pruning Of Oak Trees Until July

Many homeowners celebrate the coming of spring by trimming their trees on the first warm day. If these trees happen to be oaks, they may actually be endangering them.

Beetles that carry the oak wilt fungus will soon be active, looking for fresh wounds on oak trees. The oak wilt fungus can be introduced into these wounds, and invade the vascular system of the tree. Then, during warm weather in June, the tree will wilt rapidly.

Red oaks can be completely wilted in less than a week, while white oaks wilt more slowly. Once the fungus becomes established in an oak's root system, it can spread to other oak trees through connections between root systems called root grafts.

Oak wilt is considerably easier to prevent than it is to control. The beetles — unlike those that carry the Dutch elm disease fungus — cannot wound oak trees; and they are attracted to wounds made by some other agent. Pruning wounds are very attractive to these beetles. Since this fungus can only be spread to new locations by insects which fly to fresh wounds, oak wilt can be prevented by simply not wounding trees.

If by chance a tree is wounded, apply any non-toxic paint or a tree wound dressing to the wound, and it will no longer be attractive to the beetles. Oak wilt is also much easier to prevent than Dutch elm disease because — for some unknown reason — trees can only be infected by beetles during May and June. Thus, not wounding oaks during these months will reduce the spread of the disease to new locations. To be safe, delay pruning, trimming or felling oak trees until July.

Oak firewood is also much less hazardous then elm wood. The beetles that carry the oak wilt fungus do not breed in oak wood, but only feed on the oak wilt fungus which grows between the wood and bark. The fungus only produces its reproductive structures on red oak wood, so white oak wood is not hazardous.

The oak wilt fungus is not very competitive; when the wood pile is covered with a plastic tarp, other fungi will colonize the wood and kill the oak wilt fungus. The tarp should remain in place until July. Removing the bark will also prevent sporulation of the fungus.

Soo Objectives Outlined; More Growth Seen

Soo Line railroad will concentrate on productivity and new marketing tactics to provide future growth, stated president and newly named chief executive officer Dennis M. Cavanaugh in remarks to shareholders attending the company's annual meeting last week.

In the new competitive environment surrounding the railroads he said, "we can no longer rely on higher and higher prices to ensure our stability and growth. We will concentrate on our alternative — productivity. This is not a new concept to the Soo, but I can report that it's taken on a dramatic, positive new meaning."

"With increasing frequency, I've found myself attending a luncheon, dinner or coffee gathering to deliver awards to some group of employees who have extended outstanding efforts within the company. It is there people who are meeting to deal with issues. . . and causing a minor revolution at the Soo with such velocity that it really becomes a major revolution."

"They are a growing part of this team and it is perhaps this element of change that excites me the most," he said. "With this kind of cooperation among organized employees and managers we will be ready to take on whatever confronts us.

"Our marketing and sales department is exercising more ingenuity in pricing and selling than can be found on most other railroads. To date we have 400 contracts in effect with shippers which means that we have made agreements on rates and services, but in exchange, they have guaranteed their business over the lives of the contracts."

"We are continuing to look at intermodal, train-truck and train-barge transportation as a vital and growing shift in our industry. On no railroad in the country is that more obvious than on the Soo which has realized a 24 per cent increase in its intermodal traffic in just the past year. This surpasses the industry trend, with another eight per cent growth forecast for 1984.

"Intermodal facilities, from the pavement on up, have been reworked in Chicago and Minneapolis, our two largest sources for intermodal traffic. New lift equipment has been obtained which speeds the on-off process of getting trailers and containers from rail to highway and more square footage is being alloted the intermodal effort as needs multiply. It can be expected that more acquisitions to improve our facilities will be forthcoming.

"This is deregulation — but," he added, "then again, isn't it really free enterprise. With competition some drop from sight during the 'shake-out', some fumble around in a state of survival and some rise to the top through innovation, dedication and knowledge. The Soo is fully committed to that final option. We can more than survive in an environment of open competition and we have the team to do it."

In his remarks Cavanaugh pointed to the positive upturn the Company's business and financial results have taken this year. "In the first quarter of this year carloads surged ahead 25 per cent over last year as did revenues. Most importantly, net income more than tripled from last year to $4.9 million."

"That's good news for the Soo and you as shareholders," he said. "The railroad has rebounded sharply from the depressed business levels of early last year. The higher business levels speak for themselves: carloads of farm products up 54 per cent, chemicals up 38 per cent, nonmetallic minerals up 50 per cent, intermodal up 78 per cent, primary metals up 57 per cent. In the first quarter alone, Soo tripled its handling of solid trainloads of grain and potash.

Improvements in the company for 1984 in addition to intermodal facilities, Cavanaugh indicated, include acquisition of six new 3,000 horsepower locomotives, completion of a major renovation program for shop maintenance in Minneapolis and more "super trucks" which are being placed in the field to increase productivity for track maintenance crews.

"And let's not forget computerization. We will be placing over 60 new cathode ray tubes around the system this year and with them, will be installing more new computer programs to increase efficiency and advance productivity."

Maximum size farm trailer pulled by cars or trucks before being required to be be registered is 10,000 lbs.

Chief's Corner

by Ken Froschheiser
Chief of Police
Thief River Falls, MN.

In the April 25 issue of the Times there was a well-written letter to the editor about the intentions of the Soo Line railroad in removing the caboose(s) from their trains. The writer thought it should be of concern to the chief of police and he is absolutely correct. I do not write this article to condemn or ridicule Soo Line for their way of managing their business. However, I do wish to let the public know my concern.

Over the years, there have been numerous individuals who have contributed information to our department about crime, traffic and safety problems. If we were asked to name one organization or group of individuals which gives us information on a regular basis, it is the men riding in the caboose car as a train is coming into or leaving the city.

I can think of stolen property that has been recovered, leaking ammonia tanks, vehicle accidents, fires, children playing in dangerous areas, and on and on, that have been called in by these men. The writer mentions the fact about hazardous materials coming in and out of our city. If one considers the amounts and the possibilities associated with hazardous materials, it is alarming to even consider not having someone at the rear of the train to recognize and report any accidents involving the material.

These are some of the reasons why I am concerned. In the interest of public safety, timely and efficient reporting of incidents is critical. Without these dedicated men in the caboose the reporting factor is deminished considerably. I urge all citizens who feel that this move is not in the best interests of safety on the trains and public safety in the communities they pass through to let their concerns be known to the Soo Line, as I am.

Ag Advisory Committee Has Volunteers

National volunteer recognition week, May 6 through 12, will be a time to recognize volunteers who are helping to improve Minnesota's agriculture. Among these are members of the state's extension agricultural program advisory committee, formed in 1982 to help set the direction of agricultural extension programs.

The committee is made up of representatives from a variety of geographical areas and commodity groups. Nearly 140 people were targeted by county agents and regional district program leaders and invited to attend the first meeting in February of 1982.

According to Gerald Miller, assistant director of extension for agriculture, the purpose of the advisory committee is multifaceted. First, it provides a means for those using extension services to react to existing programs as well as to suggest changes for the future. "We can tell them what we are doing — what new directions we're taking — and get their reactions," Miller says.

"Another purpose of the committee is to broaden members' perspectives on agriculture. With this in mind, members have heard speakers discuss national economic policies and their affect on agriculture in Minnesota.

Norm Brown, extension director; Gene Pilgram, former assistant director of extension for agriculture; Joe Conlin, former state program leader for agriculture; and the district program leaders in agriculture all helped design the committee's structure and purpose.

Miller notes, "The committee could become a leading group for agriculture in Minnesota. It can bring in ideas on what the extension program could be like in the future and act as a support group to inform people in communities around the state about what kinds of ag extension programs are available, how extension is organized, and the role of county agents. The members can also pass on criticism from our clientele, telling us when we're not on target."

Third annual meeting, held in January of 1984, provided information on new trends in the Minnesota agricultural scene as well as the 1984 climate for extension. It also gave some insight into the future of the committee. Organizers considered the successful meeting of 85 farmers, county agents and administrators to be an excellent indicator of the important position the committee occupies in the extension program.

Compromise On Extended Shipping Plan

Conflicting action by two House committees has set the stage for a compromise on a plan to authorize an extended shipping season on the Upper Great Lakes.

The plan is a subsection of a multi-billion dollar authorization bill (H.R. 3678) for water projects across the country. The extended shipping season was approved unanimously by the House committee on public works and transportation last summer.

On a narrow voice vote Wednesday, the proposal was rejected by the House committee on merchant marine and fisheries. Negotiations must now be conducted to determine which version of the bill will be presented to the full House.

"I am committed to do everything I can to undo the serious mistake made in the Merchant Marine committee," said Congressman Arlan Stangeland, the main proponent of the plan. "The debate in that committee was vigorous and divided. Our opponents went into that meeting thinking they had a clear majority of the votes. But it became clear as the debate progressed that strong arguments and strong feelings exist for extending the Great Lakes navigation season."

Opposition to the plan was led by Rep. Jim Oberstar (D-MN) who represents Duluth, the western most port on the Great Lakes with the most to gain from the plan. Observers stated that Oberstar turned his back on that city and on farmers who want to export grain when prices are best, because Mr. Oberstar is seeking support from environmental activities from the Twin Cities in his race for the U.S. Senate.

"After members of the Merchant Marine committee heard our side of the argument, the vote was close," Congressman Stangeland said. "Now the negotiators will have to weigh unanimous votes in the public works committee and the water resources subcommittee against the divided and unrecorded vote in merchant marine.

"This overall bill is going to be passed by the House because it authorizes projects in so many Representatives' districts," he said. "I still believe that we have a good shot at including the extended shipping season in that bill."

The Stangeland plan calls for five years of environmental, economic and transportation studies on the plan. If those studies are positive, Congress could appropriate funds for the Army Corps of Engineers to extend shipping on those waters incrementally.

"This would create jobs in the depressed Upper Midwest and boost farm income," Congressman Stangeland said. "If we can do those things without significantly affecting the environment, we should move ahead with the plan."

Truman Home Daily Tours Begin May 15

by Ink Mendelsohn
Smithsonian News-Service

His face was covered with lipstick. He stood on the familiar rear platform of the presidential railroad car and thanked the crowd which had come to say goodbye. As the train began to roll, the thousands filling Union station started to sing, "Should old acquaintance be forgot. . ." Harry Truman was on his way home.

It was Jan. 20, 1953, lauguration day in Washington, D.C. Dwight Eisenhower had just been sworn in as president of the United States, and the former chief executive was ready to resume life in his hometown. Waiting for him and wife Bess in Independence, Mo., was a white Victorian house — 219 North Delaware st. It had been the scene of their decade-long courtship and their home from the day they were married in 1919. Their only child, Margaret, had been born in an upstairs bedroom, cradled in a dresser drawer because the crib had not yet arrived. At one time, four generations lived under the generous roof.

Summer White House, as it was known during the nearly eight years of Truman's presidency, was built by Bess's grandfather, George Porterfield Gates. It was a modest structure in 1867. But Grandfather Gates grew wealthy through his partnership in Queen of the Pantry flour, and in 1885 he commissioned an "addition" — a 14-room, 2½ story house with an ornate slate roof, stained-glass bay windows and the assorted porches considered so necessary to pleasurable family living in a 19th-century Midwestern town.

Bess Wallace came to live in her grandfather's house with her mother and three youngers brothers in 1904 after her father's death. Harry Truman's favorite aunt and cousins lived across the street at 216 North Delaware. The young farmer from Grandview, Mo., visited his relatives often in those days. "He had a special ring — three turns on the bell," recalls Ardis Ragland Haukenberry, Truman's second cousin, who lives at 216 today. "When we kids heard that signal, we came running. All of us were crazy about Harry."

"Bess's mother and my grandmother — Harry's Aunt Ella — were great friends," Haukenberry recounts the old Truman family tale. "Mrs. Wallace had baked a cake for my grandmother, and she asked Harry, who was vitiing, if he's like to return the plate." She smiles, "He said, 'I'd love to see Bessie again. She's the prettiest girl I ever saw.'"

Not with hat, but with cake plate in hand, young Truman rang Bess's doorbell. She answered his ring. And so began their romace, though actually Harry had fallen in love with Bess at Sunday school when he was six and she was five.

After her husband's death in 1972, Bess continued living in the Independence house. She died in October 1982, willing the house to the American people. Half a year later, President Reagan signed the legislative creating the Harry S. Truman National historic site. In celebration of the centennial of Truman's birth this May, the home will be opened to the public for daily tours beginning May 15.

Visitors will see not an imposing presidential mansion but a pleasing and substantial Midwestern house. "The Truman home looks like your grandma and grandpa's very nice house," National park service superintendent Norma Reigle observes. "In this house, politics stopped at the front door." Indeed, there are a few signs of Truman's almost half-century of public life — several pieces of presidential china in the dining room, a few photographs of well-known political figures.

Truman family repsence, though, remains in the house in clusters of family photographs and handsome oil portraits of Harry, Bess and Margaret Truman. In the foyer, the president's hat and coat are hanging on the bentwood rack just where he left them.

"Chopin's Waltzes" are waiting to be played on the baby grand. Truman gave the piano to his daughter the Christmas she was eight and hoping for electric trains. he was her first instructor and when she was six taught her to play "The Little Fairy Waltz." Truman himself loved to play Chopin and Mozart, but he cringed when asked to play "The Missour Waltz."

Mostly, though Harry Truman loved to read. As a boy, he always claimed, he had read every book in the Independence public library, including the encyclopedias. In the Trumans' home, the small library crammed with books was their favorite room. Bess sat on her brocade-and-mahogany chair and read mysteries. The president sat in his overstuffed brown velvet chair and read histories. It was well-known in Independence that when the light was on in the library, Harry and Bess Truman were at home.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

U.S. Chamber of Commerce

This is a package deal. Take it or leave it. You can have the following three things: $1 million in cash, a new home of your choice, and a nice case of leprosy. That's it. All or nothing.

Now, you say items one and two are of certain interest, but item number three you could do without. Sorry, that's not possible.

Laugh if you will at this implausible predicament, but it is precisely the choice, or non-choice, the House of Representatives offered the Senate when it hastily passed a bankruptcy law "reform" package that contains two much-needed reform measures and one ill-conceived and ill-disguised sop to Big Labor.

First the good news. The bill would reform the 1978 changes in bankruptcy law which made declaring bankruptcy more attractive to individuals who may be capable of making good on many, if not most, of their obligations. Even some of the sponsors of the 1978 bill recognize that they made a serious error in making it too easy for people to declare bankruptcy. Bankruptcy laws are supposed to allow individuals and businesses of good faith to begin anew if they become overcommitted and cannot — despite their best efforts — meet their obligations. (The very concept of bankruptcy replaced the ancient alternative of debtors' prison.) Bankruptcy was not intended to allow people to get away with stealing from businesses that extended credit through credit cards or deferred payment plans.

This portion of the bankruptcy law bill should be passed posthaste. Congress has waited too long already.

The second part of the bill would reconstitute the present bankruptcy court system, which the Supreme Court recently ruled was unconstitutional. This, too, is a good idea. Bankruptcy courts, like everything else, should be run in accordance with the Constitution.

It is the third part of the bankruptcy bill which, frankly, stinks to high heaven. It is a blatant attempt by labor unions to blackmail Congress into passing their special interest legislation by attaching it to serious reforms. The changes in the law the labor union bosses are seeking would be a grave mistake and are only slightly less repugnant than the underhanded manner in which they were railroaded through the House of Representatives.

The changes sought by the labor union bosses would overturn a unanimous Supreme Court decision in the Bildisco case in which the Court ruled on February 22 of this year that when a company files for bankruptcy — and is therefore able to abrogate all its contracts with creditors and others — it may also abrogate its union contracts and begin to renegotiate for different contracts. This means that a firm sliding into bankruptcy due to an abusive union contract which forces featherbedding or overly high wage and benefit packages may change those features of the contract which drove it into bankruptcy.

The labor unions want to pass their "reform" measure which would give preference to labor contracts and require that all concessions in a bankruptcy come from creditors, stockholders, non-union employees and management. Even if it was the union contract which caused the bankruptcy, there would be nothing the company could do to keep itself going and save the jobs of its employees. Union organizers clearly hope to use such a special advantage as an organizing tool — "Join our union, and if the company has bad times, everyone but union members will have to contribute to saving the company."

Even the AFL-CIO has some sense of shame over the special-interest nature of this "reform." Unlike other bills before Congress, this one rolled through the House of Representatives with no hearings, no testimony and no markup. No amendments were allowed. No committee report was issued. Everything happened within 48 hours, and the final vote was not recorded. Thus, the American people will never know how their congressman voted on this important legislation. That is how ashamed members of the Congress are of what they just did to pay off political debts to the AFL-CIO.

A long as this special interest section of the Bankruptcy Reform Bill is attached to the legislation, it is better to have no bill than to pass such a flawed piece of work.

The disgraceful scene of congressmen and women fawning all over the labor union bosses does provide two interesting lessons.

First, it makes the case for the line-item veto requested by President Reagan. The line-item veto would allow a president to strike out such nonsense without having to veto an otherwise sound piece of legislation.

Second, it shows that Congress can act quickly when it wants to. The foot-dragging that Congress has exhibited in coming to grips with runaway spending can no longer be explained to the American people as the inherent caution and deliberate slowness of the legislative process. We can get prompt action on such important issues as soon as the Congress pays as much attention to working men and women as it does to the threats and campaign contributions of Big Labor.

Prowlers Face Important Games

Two of the biggest games on the 1984 Thief River Falls schedule await the Prowlers this week as they prepare to host Moorhead Tuesday and Bemidji Friday in single 4:30 p.m. high school baseball games at the fairgrounds diamond.

Moorhead and Bemidji are the only North Sub-Region 8AA opponents the Prowlers are scheduled to play this spring, with Thief River Falls meeting the perennially strong Spuds just once while facing the rival Lumberjacks twice during a home-and-home series that will include a May 17 game at Bemidji.

With so few games scheduled against Class AA competition, it's important the Prowlers do well against Moorhead and Bemidji in an effort to enhance their status when it's time for the coaches to vote on post-season seeding positions.

Six teams will make up the 1984 North Sub-Region 8AA baseball tournament this spring — Thief River Falls, Bemidji, Moorhead, Fergus Falls, Detroit Lakes and Park Rapids. That will mean advantageous first round byes for the top two seeded teams, who will automatically move into the semifinals against the opening round survivors. The difference of playing two instead of three games in a three-day span is a big item when it comes to the pitching assignments.

Those North Sub-Region 8AA tournament games will be played Tuesday and Thursday, May 29 and 31, at Moorhead, with the winner serving as the host team for the Region 8AA championship game on Wednesday, June 6, vs. the South Sub-Region 8AA winner.

There doesn't appear to be an overwhelming favorite in the North Sub-Region 8AA baseball circles this spring. In early match-ups, Bemidji handled Park Rapids 13-4 while Moorhead came from behind by scoring twice in the bottom of the seventh to edge Fergus Falls 6-5. Rain washed out three scheduled North Sub-Region 8AA meetings last week, including a key Bemidji-Moorhead match-up Tuesday, a Park Rapids-Detroit Lakes game Tuesday and a Bemidji-Fergus Falls encounter Thursday. That game featuring the Lumberjacks and Spuds was rescheduled for today (Monday) at Moorhead.

Thief River Falls will begin a seven-game homestand Tuesday with its home opener against Moorhead. A single 4 p.m. game against Middle River-Marshall County Central, rained out Thursday, will be made up Wednesday, followed by the Bemidji contest Friday.

Homestand continues next week with a pair of doubleheaders as the Prowlers take on Crookston Tuesday and meet Ada Thursday. The Pirates have dropped from Class AA to Class A status this spring, but that shouldn't take anything away from the spirited Thief River Falls-Crookston series. Look for the Pirates, who have a pitching staff that includes lefthanders Craig Stahlecker, Mike Madigan and Pat Madigan, to be a Region 8A favorite. Stahlecker ranks as the best pitcher in the area.

New Area MSHSL Co-op Programs Approved

Six of the 42 new cooperative sponsorship programs recently approved by the Minnesota State High School League for the 1984-85 and 1985-86 school years involve Region 8A schools.

Joining the ever-growing list of cooperative programs next year will be Ada and Borup in football, volleyball, boys and girls basketball, boys and girls track and baseball; Alvarado and Oslo in football; Argyle and Stephen in boys and girls golf; Climax and Fisher in football; Erskine, Mentor, McIntosh-Winger, Plummer and Oklee in wrestling; Mahnomen and Waubun in boys and girls golf and boys tennis.

Miscellaneous

+ Board of directors of the Minnesota State High School League has approved a request from the Volleyball advisory committee and the league's athletic council to conduct a one-year experiment for volleyball in 1984 that will find all dual varsity matches played as a 3-out-of-5 game match to 15 points instead of the 2-out-of-3 game match to 18 points that was used in the past. Invitational tournaments and MSHSL-sponsored tournaments will play 2-out-of-3 game matches to 15 points, and junior varsity matches will be 2-out-of-3 game matches to 15 points. The 3-out-of-5 game match to 15 points has been used at Northland Community College matches.

+ Park Rapids' request to drop from Region 8AA to District 29A in Region 8A because of declining enrollment has been approved by the Minnesota State High School League for the 1984-85 school year. That will leave North Sub-Region 8A with just five schools next year — Thief River Falls, Bemidji, Detroit Lakes, Moorhead and Fergus Falls. Crookston and East Grand Forks left Region 8AA this year to rejoin District 31A.

Quent Jones Track Meet Is Scheduled Tuesday

Weather permitting, Thief River Falls' Quentin Jones Invitational high school track meet for boys and girls will be held Tuesday beginning at 4 p.m. at the Prowler Field track.

Crookston, East Grand Forks, Warren, Warroad, Roseau and Thief River Falls are scheduled to compete in the boys' portion of the meet. East Grand Forks, Marshall County Central, Warroad, Roseau and Thief River Falls would make up the girls' field.

Both Thief River Falls teams were at Crookston's Winter Shows Building Friday for an indoor meet.

A scheduled Thursday outdoor meet at Crookston's UMC track was altered to a Friday indoor meet at the Winter Shows Building for the girls because of the weather.

Crookston won the event with 76 points, followed by Detroit Lakes with 53, Roseau 41, East Grand Forks 35½ and Thief River Falls 30½. In the junior varsity portion of the meet, Crookston won with 78 points, followed by Thief River Falls with 68 and one-third, Roseau 23 and two-thirds, East Grand Forks 23 and Detroit Lakes 20.

"In the varsity meet we were disappointed with our point total," reported Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer. "We loaded up, but still scored about the same amount of points as our two previous indoor meets. But we're very pleased with our junior varsity performance."

Highlights for the Thief River Falls varsity included a first place effort in the 700-meter relay by Tricia Armstrong, Vikki Weigand, Bobbi Thompson and Michelle Puetz in a building record 1:40.58; a first place showing by Jackie Smith with a 13:25 in the 3200-meter run; a strong second place effort by Paula Wilkens with a 6:01 in the 1600-meter run; and a third place showing in a close 60-meter hurdle race by Stacie Kruta in a school record 10.12.

Crookston boys also emerged a winner with 111 points in a meet that was scheduled for Friday, but outdoors. East Grand Forks was runner-up with 82 points, followed by Thief River Falls with 46 and Roseau 14.

Thief River Falls had three winners, with Randy Swenson running the 60-meter high hurdles in 8.81; the sprint medley relay team of Jeff Langan, Scott Fowler, Swenson and Kevin Kezar running a 3:25.73; and Dave Gobell tossing the shot [illegible] 44-1.

Both Thief River Falls teams are scheduled to run later in the week, too, with the boys competing in the Grand Forks Red River Track-O-Rama Friday and the girls running at Bemidji Saturday.

Area Basketball Players Join 1,000-Point Club

Latest edition of the Minnesota High School 1,000-Point Basketball Club included a dozen new Region 8A players, reports Jim Carrington of the Bemidji Pioneer.

Those 12 were equally divided among boys and girls including three boys who completed their high school basketball careers this winter, a current underclassman and a pair of earlier graduates whose point totals were submitted this year. Girls added to the growing Region 8A list also includes three who will graduate this spring, a current junior and two earlier graduates.

Original 1,000-Point Club was started in the 1960's by the late Lefty Ranweiler, sports editor of the West Central Tribune at Willmar, and continued after his death by that paper, with Bruce Strand currently compiling the figures and updating the membership each year. The latest 1,000-Point Club honor role was published in the April 9 editor of the Tribune.

Region 8A players added to the list this year were Joe Krouss of Lake of the Woods-Baudette, Tommy Jon Deere of Kennedy, Randy Greendahl of Fosston, Mike Stennes of Erskine, Jon Blomquist of Hallock and Duane White of Laporte. Deere is a junior with a year of eligibility left with the Rockets. Blomquist (1983) and White (1975) graduated earlier but just had their point totals submitted.

Girls added to the list included Becky Evenson of Mentor, Jody Pahlen of Plummer, Jolyn Holstein of Cass Lake, Bonnie Safranski of Argyle, Sue Olson of Marshall County Central-Newfolden; and Julie Ellis-Pemberton of Cass Lake. Pahlen is a junior this year. Olson is a 1983 graduate and Ellis-Pemberton is a 1981 graduate.

Taken from the state-wide 1,000-Point Club by Carrington, the Region 8A listing (which includes Bemidji and Thief River Falls for local interest since the figures date back to single-class competition) includes 63 boys and 20 girls. Top scorer among the boys is Virgil Sonju of Kennedy with 2,008 points. Top scorer among the girls is Janice Woods of Fosston with 2,200.

In the state-wide charts, Norm Grow of Foley continues to be the leader among the boys with 2,852 points before graduating in 1958, while Janet Karvonen of New York Mills is the scoring leader among the girls with 3,219 points before graduating in 1980. Sonju ranks ninth among the boys in the state-wide scoring list. Woods ranks sixth among the girls state-wide, while Liz Holz of Alvarado, who finished her high school basketball career this winter with 2,129 points, ranks eighth.

State-wide, the 1,000-Point Club has 744 members, including 585 boys and 159 girls. Seven of this year's newcomers are juniors, including Deere and Pahlen.

Deere's addition to the club now gives Kennedy five players on the list, a total matched by Fosston. Roseau and Northome each have four and Gonvick three.

Locally, Scott McKeever of Middle River, a 1981 high school graduate who played two years at Northland Community College, leads the list of scorers in The Times' coverage area with 1,623 points. Lon Szymanski, a 1965 Goodridge graduate, ranks second on the list of boys with 1,400 points and Mike Fincher, a 1977 graduate of Marshall County Central, ranks third with 1,311.

Among the girls, Olson's addition to the list puts her immediately at the head of the class with 1,374 points. She is currently an athletic standout at Mayville State. Diane Fisher, a 1980 Plummer graduate ranks a close second with 1,353, but both of those fitures are likely to be surpassed by Pahlen in 1984-85.

Thief River Falls has two players in the 1,000-point list — Dave Hanson, a 1958 high school graduate, with 1,088 points, and Art Johnson, a 1954 graduate, with 1,012.

With 693 points, Michelle Olson, a current junior, ranks as the leading scorer among Thief River Falls girls.

Any area coaches with players who should be added to the list may submit the point total to Strand at the West Central Tribune in Willmar.

Seven of the Region 8A members of the 1,000-Point Club played basketball at Northland following their high school careers. That group included McKeever; Fisher; 1982 Middle River graduate Jon Neumann, who scored 1,152 points for the Skippers; 1968 Mentor graduate Nick Neibauer, who had 1,135 points for the Trojans; 1973 Middle River graduate Bill Gusa, who scored 1,026 points for the Skippers; and 1977 Goodridge graduate Georgine Troska, who had 1,148 points for the Huskies was the first girl on the Region 8A list.

Also among the Region 8A scorers in the 1,000-Point Club is Fr. Dave Super of St. Bernard's church in Thief River Falls, a 1972 Mentor graduate who scored 1,201 points for the Trojans.

Rain Interrupts Sports Schedule On Thursday

Wet weather wiped out Thursday's Thief River Falls athletic schedule.

Postponed because of rain was a tennis triangular here involving the Prowlers, Mahnomen and Waubun; a track meet for the girls at the University of Minnesota-Crookston; a golf meet for the girls at East Grand Forks; and a baseball game here vs. Middle River-Marshall County Central.

That tennis competition was rescheduled for Friday, May 11, when Moorhead, Mahnomen, Northome and Thief River Falls will form a quadrangular meet here on a date that originally called for the Prowlers to host Northome in a dual meet.

Track meet was moved back one day to Friday when the girls were to join an already-scheduled meet at Crookston for the boys.

No make-up date was announced for the golf meet, which was already underway before the weather stopped play. Thief River Falls Invitational was scheduled to be held today (Monday) at 9:30 a.m., with the Prowlers being joined by Roseau, Mahnomen, East Grand Forks, Crookston, Fosston and Bagley girls.

Baseball game was rescheduled for this week, with the Prowlers hosting Middle River-Marshall County Central Wednesday at 4 p.m.

Poor weather Saturday also erased a scheduled Thief River Falls appearance at the Hibbing Invitational Tennis tournament, with the weather report not very favorable for today (Monday), either, when the Prowlers were scheduled to make their delayed home debut with a 4 p.m. dual meet against Detroit Lakes.

Routes Announced For TRF Foot Races

Dr. Jim Langland, race director, has announced the courses to be followed for the Falls Clinic-sponsored 10K race and 2-mile Fun Run Saturday beginning at 9 a.m.

Both events will begin together at the main clinic entrance. Runners will follow a police escort up LaBree Avenue to Third Street, then east to Merriam Avenue. On Merriam, the course proceeds south to Nora Street, then west to the Airport Road.

At this point, the two courses separate.

Two-mile course will continue on Nora to Horace Avenue, cross the dam, and finish behind (southside) the hospital.

Runners in the 10K (6.1-mile) race will go south on the Airport Road to Greenwood Street, then follow Columbia, Chippewa and Horace Avenues to the dam.

A water stop will be available after crossing the dam.

Runners will then proceed on the sidewalk along Highway 32 to Riverside Avenue and follow Oakland Park Road to the walking path around Oakland Park. After looping the park, the runners will backtrack around Oakland Park Road and Highway 32 to finish behind the hospital.

Traffic control and participant safety will be provided by city police and volunteers along the course. Soft drinks, fruit and yogurt will be provided at the finish, as well as T-shirts to everyone completing either course. The course is considered completed whether a participant runs, jogs or walks the route.

Entries will be accepted until starting time. However, earlier sign-up is encouraged to help in race planning. Entry fee is $2. Entry forms are available at the Falls Clinic, Northwestern Hospital and TG Sporting Goods.

Trophies will be awarded to the first place male and female finisher in four age categories: 19-and-under; 20-29; 30-39; and 40-and-over.

Anyone not entered as an active participant is encouraged to be on hand to cheer on the participants along the course.

Jury, Rustad Win Tennis Titles . . .

Former Prowlers Win In College Net Tourneys

Two Thief River Falls tennis players won collegiate tournament titles Saturday as Bill Jury, a senior at the University of Minnesota-Duluth, won the No. 1 singles crown in the Northern Intercollegiate Conference (NIC) tennis tournament in St. Cloud and Mitch Rustad, a senior at the University of North Dakota, won the No. 2 singles event in the North Central Conference (NCC) tennis tournament at Grand Forks.

They both added No. 1 doubles laurels to their trophy collection, too.

Jury defeated John Carrels of Northern State 6-3, 6-1 in the NIC No. 1 singles finals. The winningest tennis player in UMD history, Jury emerged a champion at No. 1 singles after having won an NIC title at No. 3 singles as a freshman and at No. 2 singles as both a sophomore and junior before inheriting the No. 1 spot this spring.

He teamed with Scott Vesterstein to beat Carrels and Scott Novak of Northern State 6-2, 6-1 in the NIC No. 1 doubles finals.

Duluth won its third straight NIC tournament title with 43 points, followed by Moorhead State with 21, Northern State 20, Winona State 11, and the University of Minnesota-Morris 3.

Another Thief River Falls product, Mark Collins, a junior at Moorhead State and a Northland Community College transfer student, was a runner-up finisher at No. 4 singles in the NIC tournament, losing a close decision to Brad Beck of UMD 3-6, 7-6, 6-4 in the finals.

Collins and Brad Lessard were also runner-up finishers at No. 2 doubles, losing to Beck and Mark Parrott of Duluth 6-0, 6-2 in the finals.

Duluth took five of the six singles titles and two of the three doubles events to easily win its third straight NIC team trophy.

Rustad, who was a runner-up finisher at No. 1 singles in NCC competition as a freshman, sophomore and junior, won a conference title at No. 2 singles this spring by beating Chris Bailey of Northern Colorado 6-3, 6-0 in the finals.

Teamming with Dean Rudrud, Rustad added a title at No. 1 doubles where the Sioux tandem beat Pat Rost and Tom Krueger of Augustana 6-7, 7-6, 6-4 in the finals.

North Dakota, after a runner-up finish behind Northern Colorado in each of the four previous NCC tournament, finally emerged a winner this time around with 50 points, followed by Northern Colorado with 34, St. Cloud State 23½, Mankato State 14½, Augustana 12½, University of South Dakota 5, North Dakota State University 4 and Morningside 0.

UND won four of six singles titles and all three doubles crowns.

Age Cut-off Date Changed . . .

Ron Novak Named To New MAHA Position

Thief River Falls youth hockey program director Ron Novak was named to the new position of Minnesota Amateur Hockey Association North Coordinator during the annual MAHA spring meeting over the weekend in St. Paul.

Novak, who was serving as District 15 MAHA Director, will now coordinate all MAHA hockey activity in northern Minnesota in his new position, an area stretching from the Minnesota-North Dakota border to the Minnesota-Wisconsin border and from the Minnesota-Canada border to the St. Cloud-Alexandria area.

In a major change of MAHA regulations, directors over the weekend voted to move the age cut-off date from Dec. 31 to Sept. 1, a move designed to coincide with the school age levels.

That date change will alter the status of a number of Thief River Falls hockey players who will get an extra year of competition at their 1983-84 levels if they have a September, October, November or December birthday. A fall birthday could produce a third year of competition at the Squirt, Pee-Wee or Bantam levels, all normally two-year programs in the MAHA ladder of succession, with 9-10-year-olds in Squirts; 11-12-year-olds in Pee-Wees; and 13-14-year-olds in Bantams.

In another major rule change, MAHA directors voted to reinstate checking at the Pee-Wee level.

Northwomen Lose Two Games At Fergus Falls

Northland was scheduled to host the University of Minnesota-Crookston today (Monday) in a 2 p.m. Minnesota Community College Conference Northwest Division fast pitch softball doubleheader.

It's the home opener for the Northwomen, who played their six games on the road, including a twinbill at Fergus Falls Wednesday where they lost 13-5 and 3-2.

That dropped Northland's record to 0-6. The Northwomen were scheduled to open at home against UMC Friday, but that was set back because of rain. They will also play at home Saturday with a 1 p.m. doubleheader against Brainerd.

Fergus Falls 13, Northland 5

Northland surrendered 10 runs in the first inning Wednesday to lose a 13-5 doubleheader opener at Fergus Falls.

Fergus Falls collected eight hits that winning to go along with three consecutive Northland errors.

Northland scored three times in the second inning that featured a two-run single by Gwen Nyland.

Brenda Dahl and Kim Phillips were both 2-for-4 with an RBI for the Northwomen, who were out-hit 14-6. They also had five of the game's seven errors.

Winning pitcher Margaret Runyan walked six and struck out two. Losing pitcher Lynette Huot walked seven and struck out one.

Fergus Falls 3, Northland 2

Northland came close to collecting its first win of the season, but still lost a 3-2 second game decision Wednesday at Fergus Falls.

After spotting Fergus Falls a first inning run, Northland gained a 1-1 tie on a second inning error. Fergus Falls came up with two more single runs in the second and third to take a 3-1 lead, with Northland cutting the gap to 3-2 in the fourth on an RBI single by Gwen Nyland.

That was all the scoring. Northland held Fergus Falls hitless the rest of the way, finishing with a 6-4 base hit edge and just one error, compared to five for the winners.

Northland threatened in both the sixth and seventh, but failed to score on a bases-loaded, two-out situation in the sixth and on a one-out situation in the seventh with runners on first and second.

"It was very good softball," reported Northland coach Deb Jacobson. "They have improved so much since the start of the season."

She had special praise for the pitching of Thief River Falls freshman Lynette Huot, who pitched both ends of the doubleheader.

— DNR Hotline —

1. When fishing with a partner, if I catch my limit first, can I help him fill his limit?

Law allows that a person may take and possess their legal limit of fish. The law does not allow for one person helping another catch their limit. Byron Dyrland, Regional Enforcement Supervisor.

2. When fishing areas such as the Rainy River, and the inland season is closed, can a person fish in the tributary rivers such as Zippel Creek, Bostick Creek, Baudette River, etc? If not, how far from the main river can you stray?

You may only fish actual boundary waters, which are listed on page 10 of the 1984 fishing regulations. Tributaries into these waters are closed and inland regulations apply. Byron Dyrland, Regional Enforcement Supervisor.

3. Does the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources Division of Forestry have information on what to look for in determining whether your property is fire prone?

Fire prone property is generally lands and buildings located on sandy soils and with a thick covering of pine trees either in natural stands or plantations. Homes or buildings situated in these areas are very susceptable to loss in the event of a major forest fire. If you have taken the proper precautions in advance, you may be more successful in saving your buildings. A space of 100 feet or more, cleared of hazardous flammable materials should be maintained between buildings and surrounding brush or heavily wooded area. If a home or cottage is located in thick pine, 200 feet or more may be needed. Short green grass, such as a mowed lawn or a field cropped by animals, provides an excellent firebreak. Pine trees should not be closer than 25 feet from the buildings, and then trimmed to 20 to 25 feet apart to a distance of 75 feet from the buildings.

4. Do you have a question, comment or suggestion regarding how your natural resources are managed?

DNR Hotline is your direct channel to a representative who will answer you, whether it concerns parks, fish, wildlife, forests, waters or minerals. Write DNR Hotline, 2115 Birchmont Beach Road NE, Bemidji, MN 56601; telephone 755-3976.

Murrae Freng Resigns From MSHSL Post

Murrae N. Freng, Executive Director of the Minnesota State High School League since 1970, announced his resignation effective next January at a meeting of the MSHSL board of directors.

Freng, 59, has been a member of the executive staff of the MSHSL since 1965. During his 19-year tenure with the MSHSL, he has contributed significantly to the tremendous growth of the organization' which has a 500 school membership and conducts a varied program of 26 athletic and fine arts activities involving more than 125,000 students.

A Pelican Rapids native, Freng's service to youth of Minnesota numbers 38 years. After his graduation from Concordia College in Moorhead in 1946, he has been in the constant service of education and youth. From 1945-1965, he served as director of instrumental and vocal music at Brooten and was chairman of the music department and director of vocal music at Alexandria.

"One half of those 38 years I had the opportunity to work with high school students and the other half for high school students," Frang said. "The greatest thing about this work is the people I have become associated with through the years."

A participant in athletic, music and speech activities in high school and college, Freng earned the respect and admiration of students, parents, coaches, officials, and school administrators for his sincerity, integrity, congeniality and conscientiousness.

Through the years he has played a prominent role with the National Federation of State High School Associations while serving on numerous committees. Nationally, the Minnesota State High School League is considered to be one of the outstanding organizations of its kind in the nation.

There have been many memories during his tenure with the MSHSL, but the most gratifying to Freng is that day in March of 1969 when the Representative Assembly of MSHSL adopted by-laws to add a program for girls interscholastic athletics.

"That, above all, is most significant," Freng stated. "The girls athletic program today has 12 sports and involves more than 60,000 participations."

Many other significant changes have occurred also during his tenure.

During the past two decades the total number of activities sponsored by member schools has increased from 4,000 in the mid-60's to in excess of 7,100 this school year, or an average 14.3 activities per school.

A two-class system — Class AA and Class A — was established in basketball in 1971 and later expanded to include 11 activity programs in the 1975-76 school year.

Additional general changes during the Freng era include a restructuring of the MSHSL constitution to accomodate the two-class program and provide increased representation for membership in the MSHSL; a football playoff system; a cooperative sponsorship program; use of public hearings; a growth in the television intecest in state tournaments; a chemical awareness program; and the establishment of advisory committees and athletic and fine arts councils.

Frang is the fourth Executive Director of the MSHSL. He was preceded in service by O.E. Smith (1925-1942); H.R. Peterson (1942-1958); and B.H. Hill (1959-1970).

Northmen Lose Doubleheader At Brainerd

Host Brainerd swept two games from Northland Wednesday in a Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) Northwest Division baseball doubleheader.

Brainerd won the opener 7-0 and took the second game 14-4.

It was the second outing of the 1984 season for the Northmen, who lost a twinbill at the University of Minnesota-Crookston by identical 11-1 scores the previous Wednesday.

Northland's scheduled doubleheader at Fergus Falls Saturday was moved back to Wednesday at 1 p.m. The Northmen will make their home debut Saturday with a 12-noon twinbill vs. UMC.

Previously unbeaten UMC lost both ends of a Northwest Division doubleheader last week to Fergus Falls by 17-6 and 7-0 scores.

MR-MCC Team To Face Busy 4-Game Week

Rained out of its last two scheduled starts, the Middle River-Marshall County Central cooperative team will try to resume its 1984 high school baseball season this week.

That Thief River Falls game on Wednesday is a make-up from Thursday's rain-forced postponement. Middle River-Marshall County Central was also rained out of a Tuesday game at Greenbush last week.

A recommendation to temporarily wrap these pipes will be done immediately. They will be completely stripped and material removed at a later time, such as during the summer, when the risk of exposure is reduced.

The Board will be updated as progress is made in implementing the system.

5,000 Attended Scout Exposition Here Sunday

Approximately 5,000 persons attended the annual Voyageur Trails district Boy Scout exposition in the Thief River Falls sports arena Sunday, according to Dave Olin, show chairman for the sponsoring Thief River Falls Elks lodge. The exposition included 28 different booths and displays showing various aspects of Cub and Boy scout activities.

Olin said inclement weather conditions in the Winnipeg area forced the cancellation of travel plans by two of the Canadian entries when they were advised not to travel on Friday.

"Three Canadian entries — St. Boniface Boy and Cub scouts and Seven Oaks Boy scouts — all braved the weather and put on enthusiastic shows," Olin said. "All of them won awards of merit and honor, the highest awards attainable at the exposition."

Dave Carlson, chairman of judging, reported that the show exhibited a variety of high quality booths and displays, manned by enthusiastic boys and their leaders at all levels of scouting. Each booth and display was judged against a standard based on participation, appearance, theme presentation, discipline of youths and several other criteria.

Participation ribbons were given to all booths in accordance with their rating against the standards. Assisting Carlson in judging were Don Grabanski, Roger Shaffer, Dave Cariveau and Jim Haugen.

Among Cub scout units, awards of merit and honor went to Pack 57 and Pack 199, Thief River Falls; Pack 52, Red Lake Falls, and 173, St. Boniface, Manitoba. Awards of merit went to Pack 79, Karlstad; Pack 53, St. Hilaire; Pack 59, Thief River Falls; and Pack 66, Lancaster. Participation ribbons went to Pack 54, Greebush; Pack 69, Badger; and Pack 94, Erskine.

Webelos Packs 57 from Thief River Falls, 53 from St. Hilaire and 66 from Lancaster all received awards of merit.

Scout troops' receiving the top award of merit and honor were 199 and 59, Thief River Falls; 173, St. Boniface,
